KEEP COOL!

No necessity of becoming steamed up about the hot weather with one of these handy salt tablet dispensers around. According to scientists, people suffer from heat and heat prostration because of the salt lost during excessive perspiration. In order to keep the body's cooling system functioning properly, additional salt must be taken to supplement that consumed in normal foods. Swallowing one to six tablets each day is the simplest way of doing this. Salt tablets are especially recommended for men working in garages, bakeries, foundries, furnace rooms, coal miners, laundries paint plants hotel and restaurant kitchens and wherever the work results in considerable sweat. Salt also helps maintain the pep in athletes such as tennis and basketball players, boxers and wrestlers.

FOR TELEVISING

A new entertainment medium—television—demands an entirely new type of costume for its feminine stars. Virginia Davis, young U.S. folksinger, who sang the national anthem at the opening of the 1948 Republican national convention, is pictured in the gown especially designed for that occasion. Note the G.O.P. elephants romping on her scarf. The dress of turquoise blue jersey meets the requirements of the television camera for something flattering near the face or neck with a small horsehair ruffle around the shoulders. The demand for clarity of silhouette is met by the gown's simple lines; a four-inch brass belt binds the waist. The contrast in color—no all-black, or all-white—dictum is met with the turquoise blue color, and the jersey fabric meets the fussy camera's need for a fabric which reflects some light without being too shiny.

W.C.A. Discusses Plans for Future

The June meeting of the Women's Christian Association was held on Tuesday at three o'clock in the Board Room of the Hospital.

The meeting was opened by devotional period conducted by the President, Mrs. Imlah. Reports from the Recording and Corresponding secretaries, the treasurer, and the chairman of the "Home" Board were then received. Considerable discussion followed concerning plans for the future.

Since it was considered by the Women's Christian Association and the Board of Governors of the hospital that it would be in the best interests of the community to have it under the managment of the city, the offer to assume this responsibility was accepted. The Belleville General Hospital which was founded by the Women's Christian Association in 1886 at a cost of $20,000 was taken over by the city on June 1, of this year. From 1886-1948 it has been operated by this organization of women without municipal or county grants and but few endowments and today it is one of the best equipped for its size in Canada, a fine record of achievement for these sixty-two years.

The present problem facing the Women's Christian Association is the possible re-building of the Home for the Aged, destroyed by fire on January 24, 1948.

The Association adjourned until September, but was reminded by the president that emergency meetings might be necessary during the interval.

Meals to Carry With You

With hot weather the desire for outdoor meals becomes preponderant. Call a meal a picnic, whether it is on the back porch, in the nearby park or deep in the woods and everyone will be enthusiastic. The small fry enjoy the freedom of formalities at a picnic but any meal in the fresh summer air is soul-satisfying to most adults as well.

If the picnic is planned in advance, it is a nice gesture to make things that are special favorites with the family. If the idea for a picnic comes an hour or so before meal time and the basket must be packed in a hurry the lunch may be just what would have been served in the dining room. It is well, however, to have a few prize packages on hand and ready for such emergencies.

Sandwiches are always good picnic fare. Fillings which may be made ahead of time and stored in the refrigerator are excellent summer standbys. There are also many fillings which are made from supplies on hand such as eggs, cheese, left-over meat or poultry mixed with a good dressing. Picnic sandwiches should have generous amounts of fillings.

Cookies for picnics may be large and thick rather than thin and dainty. Cup-cakes are also well adapted to picnic menus. They may be cut and filled with either a sweet or fruity filling. This way they carry better than when the icing is on the top.

The home economists of the Consumer Section, Dominion Department of Agriculture, suggest a sandwich filling, a special bread and a cake that will satisfy all comers to the picnic.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Worried Aout Her Niece's Romance

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I have a very pretty niece of 21 who has been going with a young man for about four months. Six weeks after she met him, he asked her to be his wife and they had planned to be married in July.

Recently, my niece was asked to spend the weekend at his home to meet his folks and she did. But right after that things began to go wrong. He told her he didn't want to see her for a week, but when the week was over, he didn't come to see her. He promised to meet her in town and didn't show up. Then she called up and asked him to return some things of hers he had and he promised to do it but hasn't yet.

What should my niece do? She loves this young man very much and still thinks he will come back.

"A. G."

Dear "A. G.":

Has your niece tried to find out what has caused this sudden change of heart? It might, of course, be possible that for some reason your niece failed to win the approval of the young man's parents and they have influenced him. Certainly he owes her some explanation, but if he doesn't make one, all she can do is take it for granted that he wishes to make it plain he has lost interest in her. In that case, of course, she should simply make up her mind that she will accept the situation as philosophically as possible, and let him go.

Says Girls Don't Like to Be Chased, Either

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I have often heard that a boy doesn't like to be chased. Now, I have found this can be true with girls too.

How can I get rid of a boy who is constantly after me for dates? In school he is always watching me and following me around. Everywhere I go he seems to be there too. I have dated him twice already, and refused him many times, but he still won't take the hint. When I go out with other boys and girls my age in groups, he wants to pair off with me.

Please let me know how I can get out of this situation without hurting this boy too much. He is really a nice boy, but he is becoming impossible.

"Anonymous"

Dear "Anonymous":

I don't see anything you can do except to keep saying "No" to this boy consistently. The fact that you consented to go out with him on a couple of dates has, of course, encouraged him to believe that you would do it again. So if you really want to make him understand that you don't want to go with him, don't weaken and do it again. Always be polite about it, of course, but be quite firm and don't worry too much about his being hurt. He will get over it and find himself another girl before you know it.

Adivice About a Vacation Trip

Dear Miss Fairfax:

My daughter Betty, who will be 18 this Summer, and her girl friend, Jackie, who will be 18 in November, are planning to take a vacation trip to another part of the country to see Jackie's boy friend. Do you think it is all right to let them go with a chaperone? Their vacation lasts a week.

"Mrs. J. C."

Dear "Mrs. J. C.":

It seems to me that you must have written "with" a chaperone when you meant "without" for of course, there would be no objection whatever to the girls making such a trip if they were accompanied by an older person. There would be no objection to their going alone, either, if they have been invited to visit this boy friend by his parents, and if they are girls who will behave themselves properly when away from home on their own.

If they are simply going to the town where this boy lives, without invitation, with the idea of making dates with him after they get there, then I would not think it such a good idea.

Whats a Good Bride's Book

Dear Miss Fairfax:

Will you please give me the name of a bride's book that contains information about how a formal wedding and wedding reception should be conducted, and that also contains suggestions about trousseau needs and household equipment for the young housekeeper?

"A Reader"

Dear "Reader":

Two very good books that will give you detailed information on all these points are "Wedding Etiquette" by Marguerite Bentley, and "Your Wedding, How to Plan and Enjoy it" by M. B. Woods.

Shall She Give the Boy Friend A Birthday Gift

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am 20 years old and think I am old enough to know my own mind. I have been going with a boy for over three years, and I consider us almost engaged. His birthday is coming, and I want to give him a ring, or a radio for his car, but my mother says girls should not give boys expensive gifts. Mother also says a girl should not spend over $10 on a boy's gift, but I would feel cheap giving anything so small. I work, and it is my own money, so why can't I do what I want?

Mother holds it against him because he didn't give me anything for my birthday. I told her he was broke but she says no one is too broke to send at least a card. Don't you think Mother is unfair?

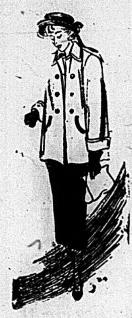
"Pick"

Dear "Pick":

I agree with your mother in this matter, because I think, that if your boy friend didn't remember your birthday even with a card, you would be overdoing things to spend a lot of money on a gift for him. I don't think any boy needs to be so broke that he couldn't find a little money for a birthday gift for his girl, even if he had to do a little extra work to earn it.

Of course, if you want to make him a birthday present in spite of his neglect of you, that is your own affair. But I think you would be foolish to make it more than a small memento.

Trig Twosome



Yellow Topper and navy skirt.

By GRACE THORNCLIFFE

COLORS GET together for some very attractive outfits. Here, a banana colored wool topper joins up with a navy skirt for a good showing. The coat hangs more or less straight in front and is well flared in back. It has six double breasted matching buttons but doesn't actually close, a neat deception! Curved slit pockets, turn-back cuffs and a casual collar are other details. The skirt is slim and straight with a small slit centre front.

Keep Wrinkles from Forming

Faithful use of face cream helps the complexion to keep its youthful freshness

By HELEN FOLLETT

NO young woman can possibly imagine that, some day, she may have wrinkles. But she should face facts, and save her face.

There are women of seventy and eighty whose countenance are as smooth as satin, without a crinkle. They fought facial furrows before they got them, escaped the curse.

Youthful Surface

It is the skin that is well lubricated with creams that retains the youthful surface. Girls in the twenties should use them freely; the flesh feeds upon them. Premature lines often appear before the thirtieth birthday; they are the penalty of neglect. Young women who pay little heed to their eating habits may find that the skin is not up to par. Lack of fresh air may produce pallor or a sallow complexion.

Keep on hand two cosmetics, a thin clean for cleansing and to apply when the face has been exposed to strong sunlight, a heavier emollient to tap into face and neck after the bedtime washing. The friction necessary for the application of creams gives exercise to the tissues. keep them firm. It stands to reason that a well cared for complexion has chances to survive. will not show little crinkles around the eyes.

Mental Hygiene

Mental hygiene is a wrinkle preventive. Be anxious, worry, lose your temper and all the body functions slow up. Nutrition is retarded. Think of the unpleasant people you know or come in contact with. Grouchers have groucher's faces. Naggers have nagger's faces. A sweet, even disposition is not only a factor toward beauty but it makes it easier for one to live with oneself.

The Experts Say . . .

By KAY REX
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa. (CP)—Believe it or not, the housewife still can find bargains in meat—if she has trained her family not to demand steaks and chops as a daily dinner dish.

Home economists of the consumer section, Dominion department of agriculture, suggest tongue as a real bargain. Calf, lamb or beef tongue are equally good.

Cold jellied tongue is a delicacy often seen on the cold meat counter at the butcher's. But it can be prepared easily—and inexpensively—at home.

Calves tongues — ingredients: four cups water; one-half teaspoon dried celery leaves or celery salt; one sliced onion; two carrots; one bay leaf; six to eight peppercorns; 1 1-2 teaspoons flour; two teaspoons cold water; salt and pepper; one teaspoon grated horseradish.

Boil the water, celery leaves, onion, carrots, bay leaf, peppercorns, salt and vinegar, for three minutes. Lower temperature to simmering and add calves tongues. Continue to simmer until tongues are tender about 1 1-2 hours); remove the skin. Drain stock and thicken with flour, which has been mixed to a smooth paste in cold water. Add salt and pepper to taste, and grated horseradish. Yield: six servings.

There are many ways of serving up those meat leftovers so the family will think they're getting something different.

Meat casserole —ingredients: one cup leftover gravy: two cups cubed, cooked meat; one-third cup tomato catsup ;three medium onions; salt and pepper.

Fry onions and then add gravy, catsup, and meat. Put in casserole and bake 30 minutes in a moderate oven.

A baking powder biscuit dough may be placed over this before baking.

Special Hamburg —Ingredients: one pound ground steak, one medium-sized onion, salt and pepper. One cup water, celery salt to taste, one can tomato soup.

Brown meat, onion, salt and pepper. Add water and celery salt and simmer for a few minutes. Add soup, simmer five minutes, and serve hot.

Hurry-up dinner: line a greased baking dish with alternate layers of sliced potatoes, onions, hamburg, carrots and rice. Season and pour a can of tomatoes over all. Bake in a moderate oven.

Fashion Flashes

FOOTNOTES to fashion include much use of wine suede, some shoes trimmed with gray. Many of the new shoes have high riding backs and vamps, while others, retaining the high back, are cut so low in front that the toes are almost exposed.

VARIETY marks the dance floor frocks at smart evenings. A beauty of a frock is ankle-length model of black lace, shorter in front, the lace lifted over several underskirts of pale pink tulle.

COMING back to its former popularity is the sweater, the plain old, good old sweater, the real thing, without trimming or even a smidgin of gilt or fancy stitching. Sports wear is simpler too, and the emphasis will be on plain suits of tweed or corduroy or suede, all co-ordinated with the plain sweater. So, page the sweater girl once more!

LATEST fad is to invest in one of those grand terry towelling robes and to have it dyed to match the color of the bathroom color scheme or at least, to dye it to match the towels. Nice and practical.

THERE isn't much to write about in a fashion way just now, for it is between seasons, with Autumn showings not unveiled yet. So in the meantime, please be advised that a really good afternoon suit or dress in silk satin is a sure-fire bet, right practically the year round. Slat gray, a bluish gray, amber, navy and black are the style leaders, and there is an absence of trimming on the good models, with the fabric, cut and style doing the sartorial honors. We notice fine satin suits at the theatre at in- mittee meetings and such. formal parties, at important com-

Huge Citrus Crop in Florida Causes Many Market Problems

(By John A. McWethy in the Wall Street Journal)

The citrus fruit industry has produced itself into a first class slump.

Grapefruit, in the heart of the Florida citrus belt, is selling as low as two cents a box (1 3/5 bushels) "on the tree." It costs over 35 cents a box to produce.

Orange growers will get less than a third as much for their fruit this year as they did at the wartime peak three years ago.

A 40-acre grove of oranges and grapefruit sold a short time ago for $800 an acre. During the war, it would have brought a whopping $2,500 an acre.

These are symptoms of the problem plaguing citrus fruit growers in the "sunshine" state. The problem Overproduction.

Largest Crop

In the crop year ending July 31, Florida will pick the largest citrus crop in its history. Growers predict it will total 91 million boxes. But more than 5 million boxes won't be picked because of the low prices. The top crop prior to the war was 56 million boxes in 1938-39.

That this mountain of fruit is hitting a sour note on the cash registers of growers is evident from the way prices have melted this season. Canneries, for instance, today are paying five to 10 cents a box "on the tree" for most fruit to be made into juice, compared with an average of 42 cents last year. For the season, they'll probably average about 15 cents a box compared with the low of 2 cents.

Grapefruit sold fresh this year will average about 35 to 40 cents a box "on the tree" or just about enough to cover growing costs. Last year, growers averaged 94 cents a box.

Future Worries Growers

But it's the future that worries citrus growers. From here on in, production will really move into high gear. Trees planted during the wartime years of sweet citrus profits will swell output to 125 million or 150 million boxes within five years, it's estimated by Marvin H. Walker, manager of the Florida Citrus Commission.

Fruit growers, however, have no intention of giving into the common enemy—overproduction—without a fight. They're marshalling an arsenal of superweapons to throw into the fray.

Among their big guns are:

Better marketing methods designed, among other things, to help growers obtain more favorable prices for their fruit.

A drive to blanket railroad terminals, office building lobbies and other public places with citrus juice vending machines.

An accelerated advertising program to extoll the virtues of Florida-grown oranges and grapefruit.

CSU pickets with gas masks march past the strikebound SS Joseph B. Burke at Welland. The strikers built a dance floor on the dock, invited townspeople to dance in effort to promote support for the union.

Atomic Poisons May Hang Around For Many Years

Chicago, June 23. (AP) — Atomic poisons, which Dr. Stafford Warren says may hang around dangerously for many years, were explained Tuesday.

Dr. Warren, one of the top medical scientists of the Manhattan district and the atomic bomb, showed delegates at the American Medical Association convention pictures of how these poisons work. All of them are radioactive atoms and nearly a dozen are deadly poisons if they get inside the body.

He said that after an atomic bomb war the poisons would fall into water supplies and areas where food is growing. They would be a risk to life, he said, unless doctors learn what to do.

These atomic things are slow poisons. They would take, Dr. Warren said, probably some years to cause sickness or death. He said it will require 15 years of scientific experiments to learn just how much of them people can be allowed to breathe in or eat without risk.

Citizens Demand Repairs to Clock

Edmonton — (CP) — The post office's six-foot clock is in condition again but for a week building officials were "ordered" by Edmontonians, who apparently used the timepiece as their own, to fix it when it was broken down.

Armand Roth, the watchmaker who finally repaired the miniature, yet not small, "Big Ben," is Canadian National Railways' watch inspector for Edmonton. He said the mechanism "is just as intricate and sensitive as any watch. It's just bigger that's all."

Installed 45 years ago when the Post Office was built, the clock received its first overhaul in 1937 and even then little was needed. Caretaker Dan McPherson, who looks after the clock normally, said he had not been able to do anything for a week because the phone rang all the time. "I sure didn't know so many persons watched the post office clock that closely."

Summer Insects Worse Than Cold In North Wastes

Whitehorse, Yukon Territory—(Reuters)—Summer insects hold greater terrors than winter blizzards for the men who roam the trails of the Yukon.

A man on the tramp in the Yukon during the summer months carries plenty of matches and netting with him. He "dopes" his skin with special preparations. If he stops for a meal or a rest, he builds a circle of "smudge" fires and sits in the middle.

There is many a tale of men frozen to death in the Yukon snows, but for sheer horror they cannot rival the stories told here of prospectors lost in the hills and unable to protect themselves from the swarms of mosquitoes and black flies. One search party last summer found a missing man sitting on a tree stump, crying softly.

Clouds of black flies, an insect usually no bigger than the head of a pin, have been reported reaching from ground level to a height of 25,000 feet, resembling the "funnel" of a tornado.

Besides interfering with everyday life in the north, these insects present a problem for military authorities, who since 1942 have been studying the operating efficiency of military forces in the sub-Arctic regions. So far, these experiments have had to do mostly with cold, but now the Canadian defence research board is turning its attentnon to bugs.

Experts Busy

Eight field parties are spending the summer in the north this year under the auspices of the defence research board. In addition, laboratory investigations will be carried out at Fort Churchill, Manitoba.

It is hoped to compile complete information on many types of mosquitoes, black flies and deer flies, and to investigate control methods. The parties will fan out across the north, from the river delta, Southampton Island, Gooce Bay, Ungava Bay and Frobisher Bay. The parties are being taken in by air, and will continue their experiments until the end of the Arctic summer, late in August.

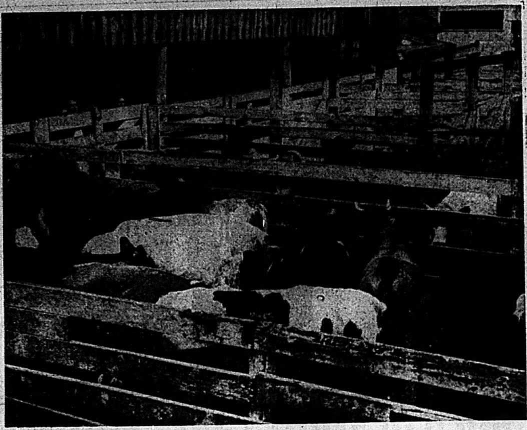
Their job will be to collect insects, observe breeding and biting habits, note the effects of weather and vegetation and compile 24-hour timetables of insect activities. Various repelants and control methods will be investigated and a new pest-proof suit will be tried out.

Last year, a check at Fort Churchill identified 10 biting types and various non-biting types of mosquitoes, 12 species of black flies and nine or 10 deer fly types. It was stated that the pests appear in round the clock shifts.

Most fertile breeding grounds are said to be in the barren lands, where spraying methods are described as ineffective because new hordes of insects move in as soon as an area is cleared.

One project envisages spraying snow with insecticide, designed to kill insects when the thaw comes.

The research teams also will conduct experiments to see whether it is possible to create artificial immunity to insect poisons in humans. Members of parties, many of them students or faculty members of Canadian universities, will be inured with various preparations and will expose themselves to insect bites.



Beef Prices Skid Downward—Some 4,175 cattle milled about Toronto's Union Stockyards, yesterday, but buyers were few, indicating prices may be due for further slump. Cattle (above) were only a small portion of those remaining in stockyards at closing of day's trading.

Ladies Take Over Job of Governing Town in Virginia

By HERB LITTLE

Clintwood, Va., (AP) — The ladies take over Clintwood next September 1 and, come good or bad, the men should keep their peace. Most of them voted for it.

This town of 2,000 had never before had a woman in its government. But on June 8, it went feminine in a big way and voted women into all six of its elective offices.

Although none of the present government sought re-election, there were five men on the ticket—one for mayor and four for council. All were badly beaten.

Here is the lineup of Virginia's first all-female town government:

Mayor—Mrs. Minnie (Sis) Miller, widow of a lumberman and mother of two sons. She won by a vote of 264 to 99.

Councilwomen:

Mrs. Beuna C. Smith, teacher in Dickenson county schools for more than 20 years and mother of two children. Her husband, now retired, was clerk of the local draft board during the war.

Mrs. Marian Shortt, former bank teller and now business manager of the local telephone office. She is the wife of a garage operato and is the youngest of the women elected.

Mrs. Ida Cunningham, another veteran of two decades of school teaching.

Mrs. Ferne Skeen, nurse and wife of a coal operator.

Mrs. Kate Friend, social worker and wife of the foreman of a state highway crew.

New Experience

Mrs. Smith and Mrs. Friend are grandmothers. None of the women has ever run for office before and none of their husbands has ever been in the town government.

A group of leading citizens persuaded the six women to run for ofice. One of the women explained:

"They felt there was a need for a change. The men in our government have been competent, but they have also been business men and haven't had enough time to give to the town."

But their big margin of victory was more than they expected. Mrs. Shortt said "we surprised everyone including ourselves. We certainly didn't expect a landslide like that."

And Mrs. Miller, the mayor-elect, said "we're just now getting over the shock."

As for the men of the town, Mrs. Miller remarked:

Some of them were pleased and some weren't, but I think they'll all be behind us."

Between now and September, the six plan to sit in on council meetings here and in nearby towns to see how things work and perhaps to get some ideas.

Mrs. Shortt explained the group's program for Clintwood as "clean-up and fix-up."

Police Receive Instructions To Evict Seamen

Cornwall June 23 (CP) —City police said today they had received instruction from C.I.O. officials to evict the Canadian Seamen's Union from the C.I.O. property if the seamen have not already vacated by tonight.

The C.I.O. charges the C.S.U. encamped on the property without permission, after being asked by city council to vacate city property, including all parks.

Police said they had been assured by George Bleakney, C.S.U. counsel, the union realized it was on the property illegally and would vacate by tonight unless it secure permission to remain.

London Olympiad Presents Problem For Music Master

By JACK SULLIVAN
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London — (CP) — An inoffensive sentence in the Olympic rules and regulations handbook says that as the winner of each event is announced, his country's flag will be hoisted and an abbreviated version of his national anthem played. Sounds simple, doesn't it?

But consider that there are 59 nations. Each has a separate tune, except Liechtenstein and Switzerland which, oddly enough, have the same as Britain's. Supposing each country comes up with a winner?

The Olympic Organizing Committee can't take chances and that is why the R.A.F. and Royal Marine bands are puffing and wheezing these days, trying to struggle with national anthems from Afghanistan to Peru. They will give the musical salute as each winner mounts the rostrum and receives his silver-gilt medal.

Anthems like "O Canada" are simple, but the question has been posed as to what to do with the Chinese lyrics and many others. Sir Malcolm Sargent, musical adviser to the committee, has been grappling with that problem for months.

The Chinese music, for instance, calls for instruments not in the R.A.F. or Royal Marine bands. Sir Malcolm has had to improvise and yet retain the tune so that Chinese athletes and any Far Eastern spectator in the stands will recognize it.

Then there's the tempo to be considered. Some national anthems are played to the beat of the "Funeral March" and others speeded to a ragtime rhythm.

Another Poser

The words "abbreviated version" in the rules also set a poser to Sir Malcolm and Olympic authorities, who received music from the various National Olympic Committees.

"For instance," said E. Blanchard McIntyre, Olympic official who receives all the music, "we know that he couldn't stop playing 'O Canada' at the words 'our home' and get away with it. We must be very careful not to offend anybody."

If a Canadian athlete places first in any event the band will strike up "O Canada" and then "God Save the King." This has been agreed to by the Canadian high commissioner's office here.

Eastern European countries also are a problem to the Olympic music-master. The Yugoslav, Bulgarian and Rumanian National anthems scores were available in Britain before the war but during and since the war these had been changed with the governments.

"We've had to approach these governments for the new scores," McIntyre said.

Bands will be at Henley to salute victorious rowers and at Torquay for the yachtsmen but winners in the shooting at Bisley and bicycling at Herne Hill probably will be brought to London for musical fanfares.

Olympic officials believe it would be fitting to acclaim them before huge crowds at Wembley Stadium rather than a comparatively small gathering at these centres.

Drug Traffic War Pursued by U.N. Throughout World

Lake Success, New York — (AP) — The United Nations are carrying on a war against drug smugglers and clandestine manufacturers.

In Mexico and China it has been a real war, involving use of troops and airplanes. In Canada, the United States, India and several far eastern countries it is the continued cold war of the customs and narcotics agents against the smugglers.

The Chinese government mobilized as many as 20,000 troops; Mexico put in the field some 700 soldiers, 10 planes, scores of federal and narcotics inspectors.

Reports of these activities recently were sent to a very peaceful United Nations organ, the Economic and Social Council. The council is the direct overseer of the commission. This body, in turn, inherited many of the functions of the League of Nations in the field of narcotics control.

More than 40 countries have accepted agreements made under the League of Nations. Still newer pacts, to control use and production of synthetic drugs — not covered in previous accords — now are being signed.

China reported on results of a six-year campaign to suppress the cultivation of the type of poppy which yields opium.

Grew Other Crops

Farmers in the Chinese provinces of Hupeh, Kansu and Shensi were persuaded to cultivate other crops, such as tung oil, corn and tea.

Tung oil has great demand for export.

But what the government calls an "uncivilized tribe" in the mountain country between Shensi and Szechwan would not co-operate. These people, called the Yee-Mings, thought they had a good thing and refused to give it up.

The area is large and communications are bad, except for the mysterious means used by the tribesmen to spot intruders. This year the government sent some 20,000 troops into the region and succeeded in destroying the plantations.

However, the Yee-Mings simply pick up their tents and move elsewhere to begin again. The soil is perfectly suited to the poppy and their job is easy.

Mexico did not request aid — it just wanted Canadian and United States co-operation because dope rings in those countries were encouraging trade. Ray opium in Indian ports is cheap, about $10 a pound, but the value is about $600 when it shows up in Canadian or United States ports.

Mexican opium yields what is called brown heroin. The stuff, depending on the demand and the place, reaches fancy prices: as much as $5,000 an ounce by the time it reaches Vancouver through Toronto and New York.

Hundreds of fields in Mexico were destroyed last year. Airplanes helped to spot them. Then troops moved in and destroyed them. The campaign costs money in more ways than one. For example, Iran has no war of this type, but it lost $39,000,000 in revenue from opium it used to sell before it agreed to suppress the crops.

Indian Harbor, Nfld. —(CP)— A nine-year-old mystery was reported cleared up here when a police constable found remains of clothing and the skeletons of two children. All Must Pay When National Assistance Act Comes into Force

By JAMES McCOOK
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, June 24 — (CP) — Dowagers and tramps, suburbanites and sailors, all must pay their share when the National Assistance Act comes into force July 5.

An estimated 3,500,000 persons, self-employed or not engaged in gainful occupations have escaped state insurance schemes so far.

But, under legislation approved with support of both Labor government and opposition parties for its main provisions, practically everyone in the United Kingdom over school age and under pension age must pay contributions to secure old age, sickness, unemployment and death benefits.

The employed man of more than 18 will pay 4s 11d. (98 cents) weekly and his employer 4s 2d. While the employed woman will pay 3s 10d. and her employer 3s 3d.

Self -employed men must pay 6s 2d. And women 5s 1d. Non-employed men will pay 4s 8d. And women 3s 8d.

Employed and self-employed persons qualify for sickness benefit but only employed persons can qualify for unemployment assistance. Payments will be 26s. weekly with 16s. Additional for a wife and 7s 6d. for one child. All children after the first receive the 5s. weekly family allowance.

A mother will receive a maternity grant of £4 on the birth of a child, plus an allowance of 36s. weekly for 13 weeks if she normally goes out to work.

A widow will receive 36s. weekly for 13 weeks after her husband's death plus 7s 6d. if she had a child of school age. After that time, she will receive a widowed mother's allowance of 33s 6d. for herself and the child. A widow without children unable to support herself will receive 26s.

A man may retire at 65 and a woman at 60 with a pension of 26s weekly. A woman whose settlement to pension depends on her husband's insurance will receive 16s.

Lone Daily Backs N.Z. Labor Policy

Wellington, N. Z. — (CP) — Although New Zealand has had a Labor government for more than 12 years without a break, there is only one metropolitan daily newspaper in the country which consistently supports the Labor policy.

The Southern Cross was started in Wellington two years ago by the Labor party itself. Capital was raised largely through the taking of shares by Labor party branches and trade unions. In the first financial year, covering 10 months' operations, the paper lost $117,760 and in the second year, covering a full 12 months, it lost $130,240.

The only other daily in the country which gives consistent editorial support to the Labor party is a privately owned publication, the Grey River Argus, published in Greymouth on the west coast of the South Island.

WEAPONS TO PREVENT WAR

Los Alamos, N. M., June 24 — (AP) — Gen. Omar Bradley, United States Army Chief of Staff, Wednesday called for development of more terrible weapons as a means to prevent war. "We can go a long way if we develop weapons so terrible that we won't have to use them and thereby make war further away."

Standard Machines For World Farmers Says Dutch Union

By JAMES McCOOK
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Paris — (CP) — The Netherlands has 1,200 types of plows but 200 could deal efficiently with all differences of soil and plowing. Dutch and other farmers would be helped by world-wide standardization of agricultural machinery.

This argument said that farmers observe "not only an increasingly greater variety of implements for various tasks but also a more and more confusing number of different implements for the same work.

". . . All (Netherlands) factories make their own type of implements, not only on account of patents, but also to outrival each other and to commit their customers with regard to purchase of spare parts and in this respect the trade is only too willing to lend its co-operation. Customers themselves have their own special requirements and wish to have their own 'improvements' applied."

The consumer had to provide technical knowledge in learning the mannerism of each machine, waste time in obtaining spare parts because machines were not standardized and pay higher prices for the machine and spares than if production was concentrated on a few styles.

Parts Interchangeable

Standardization would reduce the number of implements to a few similar forms which would be used for different purposes by the addition or changing of certain parts.

"We have in mind, for instance, a tractor provided with a tool-bar which is equipped with a fertilizer bin which can be used as a fertilizer spreader and a sowing bin which can be used as a seed drill. It would also be equipped with ridgers, weeding parallelograms, cultivator teeth and be used as a ridging plow, weeding machine or cultivator."

Spare parts should be interchangeable as between different types.

The union said standardization of implements would be restricted to those which have reached a certain degree of efficiency and development work would not be hindered.

Purchasers of implements should be advised that a great variety of implements and types was superfluous and that simplification would bring benefits.

International co-operation of farmers would be beneficial in assisting manufacturing firms to establish the most desirable simplified types. Mutual contracts for implements might be decided on by I.F.A.P. members with similar requirements to facilitate development of desirable standardization.

MAYOR TURNS GARBAGE COLLECTOR

Would Improve Health Services In Rural Areas

Toronto, June 23 — (CP) — The federal government's new $30,000,000 health program should "raise greatly" the level of health services for rural Canada, Health Minister Martin said today.

In the larger centres, he told the Canadian Medical Association in a speech prepared for delivery, it "will stimulate retarded hospital construction and alleviate many acute shortages of hospital beds."

The minister described those as two of the advantageous factors in a program that will "give a tremendous impetus to research, to preventive medicine, to the rapid expansion of hospital accommodation and to better health services generally."

Federal - Provincial co-operation enabled Canada "to press on towards our ultimate goal — a positive state of good health for every Canadian."

Mr. Martin, outlining the three-fronted program for health survey grants, national health grants and hospital construction grants, said the $30,000,000 annual outlay equalled federal health expenditures during the last 27 years. In most respects, on a per capita basis, Canada's health program "far exceeds that of the United States."

On this basis, Canada would spend twice as much on hospital construction and nearly four times as much on public health. Canadian cancer grants were 14 times as large as those in the U. S.

GAVE SELF IMPRESSIVE WAR RECORD

Chicago, June 24 — (AP) — A year's probation was granted Wednesday to a former Federal government clerk who falsified military records to give himself an impressive war record. Judge William Campbell told Andrew Keller, Jr., 21, his case was not a "big" crime. Keller gave himself a commission in the United States Army Reserve Corps by taking an army serial number from an unused block.

AT LEAST FIVE ARE GOING TO BE DISAPPOINTED

Lighting Kills Hydro Linesman At Campbellford

Campbellford, June 24 — (CP) — Cecil Buckles, 41, a hydro-electric linesman, was killed today near this community 25 miles east of Peterborough, when lightning struck high tension wires which he was repairing.

Buckles was electrocuted during one of the worst electrical storms of the season. Lightning struck the lines some distance away causing a "surge" along the wires which reached the point near Healey Falls where Buckles and a companion, Adam Yearwood, were working.

Yearwood who was repairing a transformer on the same pole escaped uninjured. Dr. Ward Baker and hydro employees unsuccessfully applied artificial respiration to Buckles for more than an hour.

Considerable damage was done during the storm to machines at the Healey Falls power house. The home of Alvin Hawkins, a hydro employee, was struck but did not catch fire.

Buckles is survived by his widow and a young daughter.

Gordon Harvey Remanded on Bail

Toronto, June 24 — (CP) — Gordon Harvey, 21, who is charged with the aggravated assault of eight-year-old Teresa Dowling, was remanded today until June 29 on $2,000 bail. The Crown Attorney said he would proceed with his case on that date.

Police said the girl identified Harvey as her attacker last Tuesday as she toured the area where she was attacked, accompanied by her mother and detectives.

The girl is said to have identified Harvey as the man who met her last May 18 after she tried to buy a speller and lured her into a bush with the promise she would see "wonderful things."

Police found the child next day lying in the field covered with branches, her face battered and covered with blood, and her skull fractured by what police called a sadistic attack.

Coroner Called On Fake Message

Toronto, June 24. (CP)—Police are investigating a fake telephone call early today which brought a coroner to the home of a Toronto constable who was reported by phone to be dead.

Posing as a doctor on the staff of a Toronto hospital, the man who called the coroner's office said Constable Oscar Pennock was dead and asked that the death be investigated.

When Coroner Dr. J. P. F. Williams answered the call he found the house in darkness and could not arouse anyone. As he was about to leave, an emergency truck of the Consumer's Gas Co. arrived. It was the second time they had been called to check a leak in a gas pipe.

When police finally aroused the occupants of the house, they found a bewildered and very much alive Pennock.

Study Civil Rights Of Married Women

Mont Tremblant, Que., June 24 — (CP) — Amendments to the criminal code and additional civil rights for married women are to be featured at the sixth annual meeting of the Bar Association of the province of Quebec opening here today.

Amendments to the criminal code and the civil rights of married women will be studied at committee sittings Friday and Saturday. Professional interests will be reviewed Friday and Saturday.

The redemption of real estates sold for taxes will be taken up at a first study session tonight. The municipal code committee also will study the awarding of building contracts by municipalities at a second meeting tomorrow.

Major Decisions Made on Housing

Halifax, June 24 — (CP)—The Canadian Federation of Mayors and Municipalities today had waded through major decisions on housing.

The 350 delegates, many accompanied by their wives and families, began the meetings Tuesday and after business sessions Wednesday were taken for an abbreviated sea voyage aboard three naval craft.

The conference theme is "responsible municipal government: democracy's best weapon," but the more prosaic subject of housing held the spotlight during Wednesday's busy sessions.

The Federation fell solidly behind J. O. Asselin of Montreal in his call for a Dominion - provincial - municipal conference on housing. Asselin, president of the Montreal Metropolitan Commission, said a strong stand on housing was required.

Technical aspects of the housing problem were discussed by D. W. Jonsson, provincial architect for New Brunswick.

Mayor Edward Wilson of Verdun, Que., federation authority on Dominion-provincial - municipal relations, recommended that the organization continue to press the federal and provincial governments for a "more adequate source of local government revenue."

The federation asked that the Dominion and provincial governments increase "substantially" their grants for social services and also that old age pensions be increased, and the age requirement lowered to 65, because of rising living costs.

Call in Police to Quell Scrap on Berry Farm

Huttonville, June 24 (CP) — Provincial police were called in to quell a riot on a farm just south of here Wednesday. One man was arrested and two others required medical treatment for bruises and cuts incurred in the scrap.

Ira Dailey, of no fixed address, was arrested on a charge of disturbing the peace. Police said he was the ringleader of a band of Indians who were employed on the farm as strawberry pickers. Cause of the disturbance is not known.

Dailey was later remanded for one week when he appeared in Brampton police court on the charge.

Barber Shop Singing Invades Western Canada

By GORD PEPPER
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Winnipeg, June 24 (CP)—Barber shop quartet singing has launched an invasion of Western Canada—without barbers.

Once believed headed for the ash can, the advocates of this form of singing believe it will last as long as harmony has anything to do with music.

Taking the bows for putting the lasting shine on such firtations with the musical scale is the society for the preservation and encouragement of barber shop quartet singing in America.

The society hung a barber pole, sign post for nearly 400 chapters in North America, on Winnipeg Wednesday in an effort to sell the idea in the west. There are 17 such groups in Eastern Canada—all of them providing harmony and good fellowship at points east of Sudbury and the Manitoba capital now becomes the first western stronghold.

The first chapter of this society with the initials S.P.E.B.S.Q.S.A.—something you might call your mother-in-law in a mood of anger—was put together in 1938 in Tulsa, Okla., by O. C. Cash.

The society was formed and Mr. Cash signed himself—"Permanent third assistant temporary vice-chairman," saying at the time that he wished to leave himself some room for advancement. His name still appears, under that title, on all chapter charters.

Bernard Murray Of Barry's Bay Fined for Assault

Barry's Bay, June 24 (CP) — In an aftermath of a fur smuggling case, Bernard Murray of Barry's Bay paid fines totalling $61 after pleading guilty Wednesday to two charges of assault.

The charges were laid by Emery A. Beebe of Dorset, pilot of an airplane which was seized by the Ontario Lands and Forests Department with an illegal cargo of 54 beaver pelts belonging to Charles Murray, father of Bernard, who was subsequently fined $2,200.

Beebe claimed he was beaten up at a dance hall here June 12 after Bernard Murray said "so you would squeal on us for having furs." Beebe suffered a broken nose and other injuries.

Murray said he could not remember making such a remark.

On the advice of Crown Attorney H.B. Johnsn, Beebe dropped similar charges against two other Barry's Bay men, Keith Billings and Charles Doyle.

FIRE CREWS SWEEP OVER REMAINING SMUDGES

Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., June 24 — (CP) — Fire crews made a quick sweep today over all three major Algoma district fires, in an attempt to extinguish remaining smudges.

Fires are still smouldering in the Mississagi and Montreal areas despite a two-day rain. District forester A. W. Leman said the situation will remain dangerous unless weather conditions are favorable in the next two days.

U.S. Editors Enjoy Banquet At Country Club

Twenty-two editors of United States weeklies extending from Kentucky to New York State were entertained at the Bay of Quinte Country Club by the City Council at a complimentary banquet Wednesday evening. This group of editors are on a tour of the eastern part of the Province under the sponsorship of the Department of Tourist and Travel of the Provincial government and will conclude their tour on Saturday in Toronto.

The editors are travelling by Colonial Bus under the direction of J. H. MacLean of the Departmen and announced themselves as having a most enjoyable and instructive trip. The banquet was presided over by McLean Haig, chairman of Tourist and Publicity for the Chamber of Commerce and Ald. H. J. Clarke, chairman of Finance in the City Council and acting for His Worship, Mayor Storey, welcomed the party to the Bay of Quinte district and particularly to this city.

He expressed the hope that the same friendly relations which have existed between the two countries for over a century would continue and that more crossing of the border would take place between the peoples of these two great countries. Ald. Clarke extended the freedom of the city to the visitors and hoped they would come back again. Warden George West extended the welcome of the County of Hastings and told of the resources of this wonderful county ranging from industry in the south to agriculture in the centre and a tourist paradise in the north.

Ald. Claude D. Tice, chairman of Tourist and Publicity in the City Council, welcomed the visitors and hoped that some would be able to come back and enjoy a holiday in the Bay of Quinte district or the Highlands of Hastings. Being reminded that Wisconsin was the home of Cheddar cheese in the United States, the Alderman expressed the opinion that Hastings County cheese could not be beaten and each editor was given a five-pound package to take home. The party left the city this morning after being served a complimentary breakfast by Gerald Jenkins, proprietor of the Hotel Quinte. The party will visit Peterborough today.

Phil Huddleston presided at the piano for the opening national anthems of the two countries.

Federal Govt. Fixes Deadline To Reach Pact

Washington, June 24 (AP) — The federal government fixed a late afternoon deadline today for John L. Lewis and soft coal operators to reach a peace pact.

President Truman's Inquiry Board reported "considerable progress toward a complete settlement" in the suddenly active negotiations.

But the Board asked both sides for a summary of the situation by 5 p.m., EDT.

The Lewis-operated talks looked promising. But it was still possible they might flop, requiring the Inquiry Board to report a new stalemate.

In that event, it was learned, the Justice Department is all set for the President's signal to seek another Taft-Hartley act injunction against a summer mine shutdown.

The Department may ask for a court ban against either a lockout by the operators or a strike by Lewis' 400,000 United Mine Workers.

The Inquiry Board also had another piece of news Wednesday for the White House.

Board chairman David Cole said both sides agreed to try for an extension of the present coal contract to permit further negotiations if it becomes impossible to write a complete new agreement in time.

The present contract expires June 30. The miners begin their annual 10-day holiday Saturday and are due to return July 6. So no mine stoppage could begin until then.

CUSTODY OF BOY AWARDED FATHER BY ONTARIO COURT

Appeal Court Reverses Judgment of California Court

Toronto, June 24 (CP)—Terry McKee, 10, who for most of his young life has been the object of a court battle between his divorced parents, had his future settled today, by the Ontario Supreme Court.

Custody of Terry was awarded to his father, wealthy Air Lines executive Mark T. McKee. Terry will live in Canada with his father.

Today's appeal court decision reverses judgment of a California court awarding the boy to the custody of his mother.

Mrs. McKee was today denied her appeal from a judgment of Mr. Justice Dalton Wells which last fall gave Mr. McKee custody of his son. The boy's mother argued that after she was awarded custody of her son in 1945 by the California court, Mr. McKee "kidnapped" Terry and took him to Michigan and subsequently to Kitchener.

The boy and his father have been living on a farm at Linwood.

The case has been fought in United States courts since the parents were divorced in California in 1942.

At a hearing last March, Mr. Justice R. S. Robertson ventured the opinion: "I'm afraid Terry will have celebrated his 21st birthday before he gets through with this litigation."

Mother to See Boy Once a Week

Mrs. McKee launched her appeal last Oct. 21, contending that Mr. Justice Wells should have ruled that Mr. McKee was not a bona fide resident of Ontario but merely temporarily in the jurisdiction of the court for the purpose of evading the California judgment.

In the terms of Mr. Justice Wells' judgment, awarding Terry to his father, it was provided Mrs. McKee could see Terry once a week "during reasonable hours."

Terry did not appear in court and every effort was made to hide from him the fact that he was the centre of a dispute between his parents.

During the hearing, Mr. McKee testified he intended to make his permanent home at Linwood, educate Terry there and later send him to McGill University in Montreal. Mrs. McKee has made her home in Los Angeles since her divorce.

Condemns Schools In Parts of Britain

Llandudno, Wales — (CP) — Sir Frederick Mander, Bedfordshire Education Committee chairman, thinks some of Britain's schools are so bad "it's a pity that the teachers don't steal out one dark night and set fire to them."

That's what he told a recent conference of the Association of Education Committees here, reporting that 100 schools condemned in 1923 and 250 others classed as only slightly better, were still in use today.

"Unless thousands of schools get the 'new look' hundreds of thousands of children cannot get the new outlook," Sir Frederick said.

Stanley Hirst, Middlesborough director of education, said public opinion "must force" the ministry of education to act and get rid of the condemned schools.

The conference endorsed a resolution asking the ministry to replace all such schools within the next five years.

New Radio Station For Provincial Police

Ottawa, June 24 (CP)—A new Ottawa radio station went on the air for the first time today—but it isn't likely the average listener heard any broadcasts.

The station—VF-9-V—is a detachment transmitter and receiver set up in Ontario Provincial Police Headquarters here, and will be devoted strictly to the business of crime prevention and detection.

The installation provides provincial police with three-way communication facilities enabling them to converse from car to car, or from car to station. It also provides direct radio communication with district headquarters at Perth and Belleville.

Affidavits Help Convict Three Jap Overseers

Ottawa, June 24. (CP)—Affidavits of 16 Canadian veterans of Hong Kong have helped convict three Japanese overseers of a mining company, charged with brutal treatment of Allied war prisoners working at the mine, army headquarters announced today.

Sentences of imprisonment were imposed on Tsurugi Komatsu, Masao Suzuki and Ken Suzuki.

Komatsu, nicknamed "Bulldog" by prisoners, was civilian overseer of the Kashima coal mine. He was found guilty of thirty-three charges, including beating prisoners with a mine hammer, shovel, pick handle and other weapons, and was sentenced to 25 years in prison.

The other two were mine foremen under Komatsu, and received sentences of 13 and four years respectively.

Among Canadian veterans supplying affidavits were: Matthew William Murray, Oshawa, Robert C. Stager, Ayr, Ralph D. Alley, Trent River.

Minimum Price For Sour Cherries Set by Board

Hamilton, June 24 — (CP) — Minimum price for sour cherries was set at 13½ cents per pound, an approximate reduction of one and one-half cents over that of last year, at a meeting of growers and processors in the Royal Connaught Hotel Wednesday.

Sweet cherries were left at an open price and no change in regulations affecting marketing schemes was introduced.

Representing the canners in sour cherry negotiations were — W. I. Drynan of Hamilton; Douglas Watson of Winona; and T. M. Bright of Niagara Falls.

Negotiating on sweet cherry prices for the canners was D'Arcy Cropp of Niagara Falls; William Hood of Stoney Creek and W. I. Drynan of Hamilton.

Growers negotiating for sweet cherry prices were Arthur Smith of Winona; W. E. Spera, Stoney Creek; and Murray Bonham, Winona. Representing growers on sour cherry prices were Frank Smith of Bartonville; J. Pengilly of Clarkson; and J. J. Pollock of Niagara-on-the-Lake.

Light Rain Falls As Saskatchewan Goes to Polls

Regina, June 24 (CP)—Light rain fell across Saskatchewan today as voters began to cast their ballots in the Provincial General election.

It was expected that day-long rain would make some roads impassable and possibly the rural vote.

A record vote had been expected on the basis of the heaviest advance poll in the province's history.

Only one party—the C.C.F. which held 47 of the 52 seats in the last legislature—is contesting all 50 seats to be decided today. The Liberals, with five seats in the last legislature and the sole opposition, are contesting 40. The Social Credit is entered in 36. Contests in two seats have been deferred.

The C.C.F. has been in power since it won the 1944 election.

Irgun Suffers Heavy Casualties In Gun-Running

Report Says Jewish Govt. Orders Irgun Disbanded

By JAMES M. LONG

Tel Aviv, Israel, June 24 (AP)—Irgun Zvai Leumi surveyed heavy losses of manpower today in an ill-fated attempt at gun-running and vowed to rise against the Israeli government.

The crisis over the Irgun ship Altalena led to the resignation of two cabinet ministers Wednesday even while government forces made a series of arrests.

Peter H. Bergson of New York, head of the Hebrew committee of National Liberation, and 25-year-old Monroe Fein of Chicago, captain of arms ships, were reported by Jewish sources to have been arrested.

Israeli shock troops were reported to have captured 60 Jews, believed to be among Irgunists who landed from the arms ship, in a series of raids on Revisionist party headquarters and the publishing plant of the Irgun newspaper.

The organization, which came out into the open with the establishment of the new Jewish State of Israel May 15, resumed its position as an illegal, armed political group.

Government Crisis Seen

As a result, a major government crisis appeared in the making. Two ministers quit the Israeli government Wednesday and a party leader blamed the Irgun-army rift squarely on Prime Minister David Ben-Gurion.

In Jerusalem, a local Irgun leader called on Jews in the Holy City to overthrow the Israeli government. In Paris, a statement was issued in the name of Irgun, charging the Israel government with "pursuing a policy of surrender."

A Tel Aviv broadcast heard in Rhodes said the Jewish government has ordered Irgun disbanded and its members immediately inducted into the Israel army.

Disorders shook Tel Aviv again Wednesday during a funeral procession for Irgunists killed in Tuesday's battle with government troops on the Tel Aviv beachhead. Main streets in the city were cordoned off and a military curfew was predicted.

Menachem Beigin, Irgun commander, told reporters 800 European - trained combat soldiers were landed at Nathanya Sunday.

Reliable Jewish sources later said 60 arrests were made early Wednesday and that those in custody included Monroe Fein, the American captain of the Irgun arms ship.

Rabbi Meyer Berlin, leader of the Orthodox Mizrachi party, announced the resignation of his party's two government minister's Wednesday at a special emergency session of the provisional legislature.

The blaze when discovered was so far advanced that St. Clements Fire Department and neighbors failed to salvage anything.

Holding three fives and the knave of spades in his hand, he turned up the ace of spades. When he realized his good fortune, he almost collapsed with excitement.

Mr. Cook has been playing cribbage for 54 years, but this was the first time he had scored a perfect hand or had seen one. As a mark of esteem, his fellow employees are required to touch their caps or bow to the "King of the Pasteboards."

Should weather conditions not permit the concert being played on the lawn, it will be played in the Armouries.

Observers Say Return of C.C.F. Govt. Likely

Regina, June 24. (CP)—Four years of socialism are being evaluated today in Saskatchewan election.

And while observers say return of a C.C.F. government is likely, there is no indication of the margin of victory.

The three main parties all claim victory is possible in the fight for the 52 seats. Two seats will be decided later. The C.C.F. have 50 candidates, the Liberals 38 and the Social Credit 36.

The forecast was for cool weather, but no rain outside scattered showers was indicated.

Any gains beyond five members would serve as a gain for the Liberals, who, with five members the last four years, served as the sole opposition in the legislature.

The Progressive Conservative and Social Credit parties had no representation.

With only nine Tories running —the Liberals and Progressive Conservatives had combined on an anti-Socialist ticket— there appeared little likelihood they would show.

Headed by 43-year-old Premier Douglas, a former Baptist Minister ,the C.C.F. has campaigned on its record.

During the next four years it promises to increase industrial and agricultural development as a basis for expanded Social Services.

Liberal Leader, Walter Tucker former parliamentary assistant to the Minister of Veterans Affairs has said the modern European history shows Socialist Government has paved the way for Communist coups.

Pilot Misses Fire Dad Arrives First

Port Arthur — (CP) — When forestry pilot Jack Donnelly flew to Graham Lake to check a report of a bush fire in the area along the Canadian Pacific Railway's right-of-way, he could find no trace of smoke. He concluded it was a false alarm.

It wasn't until later that he learned the fire had been extinguished by the crew and passengers of a C.P.R. train on which his father, J. J. Donnelly, was conductor.

Donnelly had been flying men and equipment to a stubborn bush fire at Windogokan Lake near the Quetico Park border when he received a radio message advising him to go to Graham Lake to check a report of a fire near the C.P.R.'s line.

The former R.C.A.F. pilot landed his firefighters and equipment at Windogokan Lake and turned northward in search of the reported smoke.

He circled the area for half an hour before returning to base, to report disgustedly that it was a false alarm.

He learned that night it was not a false alarm when Mr. Donnelly senior told him the full story. His train had been running northwest of Port Arthur, through Graham.

There had been a fire at milepost 77. The train crew observed the flaming bushland, stopped the train, rigged hose to the engine pump and, with the aid of passengers who swarmed from the coaches to help, battled the fire with water, old sacks and shovels. They soon had it out.

Thus by the time pilot Donnelly arrived on the scene, there was nothing to see.

London Air Depot Offers Travellers Speed and Service

By MURIEL PENN

London —(Reuters)— A great stride towards the streamlining of air travel and elimination of those ground delays which are the bugbear of air travellers, has been taken in the establishment of the new Kensington air station on the fringe of London's west end.

Equipped with all the latest devices to secure rapid handling of large numbers of passengers, this station, just opened by British European Airways expects to deal with record numbers of passengers in record time this summer.

With the Olympic Games attracting large numbers of visitors to London and the re-institution of holidays abroad and such international events on the Continent as the September meeting of the United Nations Assembly in Paris, the new station has been planned to handle some 800 departing passengers an hour.

On the first day of its operation, 1,400 passengers — 730 inward and 670 outward—passed through it without a hitch.

Divided into separate arrival and departure sections, the new station is reminiscent rather of a modern railroad station than that of the leisurely lounge-type of assembly point which was a feature of the days when air travel was used only by a few.

Large indicator boards direct the passengers on arrival to the appropriate departure bay— a counter in pleasing light oak-grained plastic which is the counterpart of the railroad depot platform.

The old-time scales on which every passenger had to go through the process of being weighed together with coat, handbag and anything else he was carrying, are a thing of the past. With few exceptions, the weight of passengers is now worked out to an average. Only the luggage goes through a much speeded-up weighing process — to ensure that excess weight is duly paid for.

Additional Facilities

But although the average length of time which passengers are expected to spend at the station has been reduced to between 10 and 15 minutes, the premises are equipped with a comfortable lounge, a bar where light refreshments may be obtained, a bookstall, baggage checking accommodation and a cable office from which cables may be sent to all parts of the world.

A new feature of the station for arriving passengers is a counter at which hotel accommodation may be booked on the spot.

All the traveller has to do on leaving the station wagon outside the station, is to ask the clerk at the counter to find him a room, indicating approximately the class of hotel he requires and the district he prefers, if any.

The clerk does the rest.

The new air station is the assembly point for all passengers to Europe (except those flying by K.L.M. Royal Dutch Airlines), Eire and Northern Ireland, the Channel Islands and on Britain's various internal airlines, by whatever air line they may be travelling.

Closely linked with the new air station is a new booking centre opened at Dorland Hall, in lower Regent Street. Here, too, every attempt has been made to cut out all waste of time and make booking an aircraft seat as easy as buying a railroad ticket.

At two long counters in the public booking hall, prospective passengers can book seats, with a minimum loss of time, to any part of the world.

Poultry Farmer Out-Foxes Fox

Winnipeg — (CP) — The fox, traditional enemy and destroyer of chickens, has at last come up against a poultry farmer who has him "out-foxed."

The Manitoba Department of Agriculture reports that foxes around the poultry ranch of Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Strahl, of Minnedosa are short on chicken these days because of a unique discovery of Mrs. Stahl's.

Reasoning that the fox, like all thieves, hates light when he is up to nefarious deeds, Mrs. Strahl attachel a fluorescent lighting tube to her electrically-wired fence.

U.S. Congressman Says Communists Loose in Country

By C. R. BLACKBURN
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Washington — (CP) — Red-hunting congressman John McDowell, (Rep-Penn.) has named an even 50 "Communists" awaiting deportation hearings who, he says, can preach their doctrines through the United States and are likely to be freed for years.

He put the names on the Congressional record and asked the administration to act under 27 separate laws on the statute book which are directed against subversive acts in this country.

McDowell, vice-chairman of the House Un-American Committee, offered "my own name and oath" to assist the attorney-general in a test case against William Z. Foster, leader of the Communist party in the United States, on sedition charges.

The 50 mentioned by McDowell were described as "aliens all of whom are Communists and all of whom are waiting a hearing on deportation from this land which they hate so thoroughly and whose government they have been condemning and cursing and attempting to weaken for many years." The names were not of well-known people.

He dealt specificially with twa whose names were not on his list: Foster and Gerhart Eisler, a German who was described by Director J. Edgar Hoover of the Federal Bureau of Investigation as "No. 1 Communist in the United States." He was convicted of passport fraud and sentenced to jail for from one to three years. An appeal on that case also is pending. He was held in custody in Ellis Island because of subversive speeches, but was released on a technicality.

Free to Preach

There is no indication when his cases will be disposed of and meanwhile he is free to go about at will, McDowell said, "preaching sedition and treason."

Foster appeared recently before the Senate committee hearing opinions on the Mundt Bill for control of Communists and other subversives. He told the committee bluntly that Communists in the United States would not obey the Mundt Bill if it became law.

"Our billions are even now going to Europe and Asia to help other people control Communism," McDowell said.

"If the action of William Foster can go unnoticed by the United States government we had better save those billions for the inevitable trouble we are going to have to face.

"I call upon the attorney-general to immediately begin to prosecute (for sedition) the head of the Communist party of the United States . . . so that 140,000,000 people may have knowledge and sleep easier that the government that costs them so many of their hours of toil and sweat is actually beginning to protect them.

"If a citizen is needed to swear to an information regarding these charges of sedition I offer the attorney-general my own name and oath."

Promotes Welfare Of Three Million In South Pacific

By LESLIE BRODIE
(Canadian Press Correspondent

Sydney, Australia — (CP) — The South Pacific Commission has established an effective administration to promote the welfare and advancement of the 3,000,000 natives of the South Pacific islands.

The commission comprising six nations, Britain, United States, France, Holland, Australia and New Zealand, was formed to improve the lot of the islanders.

First step towards this Pacific "get-together" was taken after the signing of the Anzac Pact, a mutual defence pact between Australia and New Zealand. Prime Minister Peter Fraser of New Zealand enthusiastically supported Dr. H. V. Evatt, Australian external affairs minister.

When the matter was brought up again in January, 1947, all six nations interested in colonial development and administration in the Pacific Islands unanimously supported the proposal for a permanent committee.

Although the Pacific natives speak different dialects and have different racial customs their problems relating to health, native education, transport, agriculture are the same.

Before the Second World War little or nothing was done to coordinate administrative policy of the 17 native territories that form the Couth Pacific group.

Formulated Policy

As soon as the commission was constituted on May 11 this year it set to work behind closed doors to formulate a policy that would make the best technical know-how and scientific research available to the furtherance of the native cause.

In a report issued at the conclusion it was announced that the commission had introduced measures to introduce immediately:

Speeded copra output by the use of more and better machinery; more ships to encourage output and relieve goods shortage; training in skilled trades and modern agricultural practices; fisheries research to improve the present inadequate supplies; improved health of mothers and babies; stimulation of education by radio and films.

It was stated that officers with the best scientific and technical brains would be sought to fill permanen positions on the commission's research council.

A secretary-general, a deputy secretary-general and a deputy chairman would be appointed and total cost of the venture would be shared by the six nations concerned. A working fund of £40,000 ($126,000) has been established.

Headquarters of the permanent commission would be either at Suva or Houmea. A special visit would be made by a committee to make the final choice. The next session would be held at Sydney, on October 25.

Ont. Penny Bank To Cease Operating

Toronto — (CP) — The Penny Bank of Ontario, which once had 208,000 school children depositors, will disappear from the Canadian banking scene Aug. 1.

Final transaction will be the gift of a surplus — estimated at between $80,000 and $85,000 — to the Hospital for Sick Children in Toronto.

Accounts of over one dollar will be transferred to the Post Office Savings Bank, Ottawa. Unclaimed accounts under one dollar will make up the gift to the hospital.

The institution traces its history to penny savings banks in Toronto, operated before 1900 by two church missions. They were patterned on a much older system of school savings in Scotland.

In 1900 the first school bank was opened by the Victor Savings Association in a Toronto school. It was so successful, 12 more schools opened others. In 1905 a Dominion charter authorized the Penny Bank of Toronto to take over the assets of the mission banks. The name was changed to the Penny Bank of Ontario in 1922 with the extension of the bank's facilities to Ontario schools outside Toronto.

Under the act a guarantee fund of at least $10,000 was to be established by donors. Any who contributed $100 became members and from these the unsalaried directors were chosen.

In 1939 about 208,000 children in 531 Ontario schools had $1,600,000 on deposit. In 1943 deposits were limited to $300 so that the children could purchase war savings stamps and certificates.

School teachers' enthusiasm for the bank cooled at the end of the war. They said considerable time was expended recording the small deposits and that classroom interruptions resulted. Another major reason for the bank's closing was the impossibility of paying interest to the child depositors because of reduced interest rates on investments.

"What about my first solid foods?"

When your doctor says it's time for fruits and vegetables, your baby has a brand new problem. For these foods are fibrous. The nutriment is held within cell walls, and baby's inexperienced little tummy sometimes has trouble breaking down the cells which contain the nourishment.

To make the digestion "problem" extra easy for your baby, Libby's alone take an added precaution. After straining the foods, Libby's homogenize them by a special process which breaks up the rough fibres and explodes the food cells.

This makes Libby's Baby Foods so extra easy to digest that clinical tests show that even a six-week-old baby can digest Libby's easily, without upsets. This is not true of foods which are strained, but not homogenized.

Haiti's Food Delicious While Nassau's Poor Says Recent Traveller

[illegible]

Salads and seafood, exotic fruit and strange vegetables make every meal an adventure in the gay holiday-land that stretches from St. Petersburg, Tampa and Tarpon Springs on the west coast of Florida and Crystal Springs, Daytona, the Palm Beaches and Miami on the East, over to the far "Out Islands" of the Bahamas and down the Antilles to Haiti and Cuba.

The seas abound in wealth, and particularly abundant are the Caribbean lobsters, called crawfish by the native fishermen says a writer in the Ottawa Journal. These lack the huge meat-filled nippers of their Nova Scotia relatives, but there is ample compensation in the snowy white meat in the tremendous long tail.

Varied Ways of Cooking

Every resort town every country village—and almost every hotel — seems to have its own favorite method of preparing this far-from-standard dish. In Florida the lobster is usually boiled chilled and the meat shredded in salads. In the islands, lobster is more often served as a hot dish.

In Nassau, after parboiling this jewel of the sea is toasted lightly over a charcoal grill, and served with juice of bitter oranges.

Once you leave the United States mainland lemons are rarely encountered. West Indians seem to prefer the flavor of bitter oranges and limes. In the Bahamas lemons are actually rare, and I noticed a Negro girl paying two shillings (40 cents) for six lemons at a fruit stand near Nassau's famous Sponge Wharf.

In Haiti, where dairy products are more abundant than in the desert Bahams, lobster is grilled saturated with fresh butter, and a dash of lime juice for tang. At "Aux Cosaques" a charming club in Port-au-Prince where meals are served on spacious verandahs overlooking a colorful tropical garden, we were served a delicious lobster ragout.

The ragout was prepared by boiling the lobster then cutting it into small segments leaving the meat in the shell. This was served sauteed in a casserole with a delicious sauce highly seasoned with pimento and herbs. The sauce was quite thick and brown, almost like a meat gravy in consistency.

To begin at the beginning, as Alice said in Wonderland, I found New York and Miami less frightening than they seemed at first sight. Hotel rooms are available from $3 a day, single. Entertainment is reasonably priced, and so are the meals.

At truly lovely Miami Beach I had a stupendous meal in a rather nice hostelry for $2, a casserole of delicious chicken, noodles, dumplings and gravy, with all the extras. In downtown Miami's Greek, Italian, French, German, Syrian and Chinese restaurants dollar meals are the rule rather than exception.

The fine luncheon served on the Pan-American Clipper on the way to Nassau did nothing to prepare me for the shock I experienced in these greatly overrated isles of Paradise.

Meals in Nassau Bad

Meals in Nassau, in general, were worse than bad. The food was poorly prepared and poorly served.

Prices of rooms and meals at Nassau hotels were utterly fantastic—far, far out of proportion to what the hotels had to offer.

Nassau may be qaint. Its landscapes may be beautiful (actually the Bahamas are bleak little knolls of rock, barren and dry, with almost no soil to grow things, even if there were enough moisture to support verdure). But nothing could justify 2£ meals of scrawny, half raw chicken, soggy pastry and ice cream that was more ice than cream.

Guests at these hotels, the rules demand, must be wearing formal dress before they may be admitted to the main dining room. With English friends, we dined coolly in sports clothes in an upstairs dining room reserved for such social outcasts.

It would seem that Nassau might draw some benefit from the experience of the more snobbish Miami Beach hotels; eight went bankrupt this current season. The backbone of the tourist industry is not the eccentric millionaire.

The West Indies Year Book states of Bahamian history that "no regular system of government appears to have been established and the colony became one of the chief haunts of buccaneers and pirates who made the islands the base of their marauding expeditions and the scene of their debaucheries."

To the casual observer, times have not changed a great deal—today "pirates" still charge their "guests" a king's ransom, and feed them as cheaply as possible in the meantime.

Food and fees were more in accord at the less pretentious hotels such as the Lucerne and the Prince George, and at the several "guest homes" Before long, our party began to patronize the small cafes, where eight shillings paid for a tolerable meal, and where we could sample native dishes.

We did have some very nice meals of Bahamian lobster grouper fish ,and delicious green turtle steaks. Green turtles, measuring two feet across the shell, were brought to Nassau alive, turned over on their backs on the decks of small Out-Island sailing craft. In the turtle, we were told, can be found meat of varying textures and flavors, from that of chicken and veal to pork and beef, depending on the cut. The natives greatly esteem turtle eggs, whether found in butchering live turtles or stolen from the nest in the sand.

Turtle soup, made of diced turtle meat with a wide variety of vegetables, was very good, even on a hot day.

Rice and Beans

An obligatory course at every meal was rice with beans, mixed together and tinted a horrible greenish-yellow. Plain rice, simply boiled and seasoned with salt and butter, would have been much more welcome.

Ordinary (white) potatoes do not grow in the tropics, and for starch the natives eat yams, plantains and rice. Plantains are huge green bananas, which may be baked or boiled, and served with the meat course. Yams and sweet potatoes are too well known in Ottawa to require description.

Other fruits found in abundance on the market streets, but seldom at hotels, were tamarinds (with a sharp, clean flavor, looking like bean pods filled with flesh and seeds), olives, oranges, lemons, limes, citrons, pomegranates ,pineapples, figs, sapodillas (unattractive brown globes filled with delicious pulp and huge seeds), several kinds of bananas, and cassavas, a kind of melon. One kind of banana is reddish, with very short fruit, but it is delicious. The apple banana is also very short, with a sweet, apple-like flavor.

In Haiti these fruits were found, but in greater abundance and with finer flavor. In addition there were mangoes, like huge tropical peaches; the strange grenadine, from which a refreshing "lemonade" is made, and others not in season during my visit.

In Haiti, I had almost all my meals at the Hotel Excelsior, where I paid $3 a day for room and meals.

Four-course Luncheon

Luncheon always consisted of at least four courses, and dinner was a grand ceremony from soup, down through course after course to the final demi-tasse of thick, flavor-packed, coffee. The cuisine was a mixture of French, American and Haitian dishes, with nothing too extreme.

As bacon was rare, breakfast eggs were sometimes escorted by tasty European-type sausage meats, sliced thinly and fried, a good idea for variety at home.

The bread was delightful, especially after eating the doughy mixture served in the Bahamas. It was made in the French tradition—long, slim loaves with a crisp crust, but fluffy-soft inside. In addition, Madame Rouzier provided, occasionally, tasty between-meal treats.

Everywhere in Haiti there are fruit trees, in the yards, along the roads, between the buildings, giving a generous harvest to every passerby.

Mango season began in April, and life was accented by the soft "thud" of ripe fruit plummeting to earth. Whoever said that the only place to eat mangoes properly was in a bathtub was quite right, as they are very juicy, and stain clothing badly, but they are well worth it.

Turkeys and guinea fowl are raised in abundance in the hot, dry climate, even in city backyards.

Haiti is fortunate in being able to produce the fruit, vegetables and flowers of the temperate zone in the high mountain regions of La Boule and Kenskoff, 5,000 feet above sea-level, yet within half an hour's drive from the capital.

Market day is Saturday, so Friday is the day to drive to Kenskoff. Early in the afternoon, Negro women from the back country had begun to gather into groups along the roadside, to walk together in safari down to Port-au-Prince.

Each woman carried on her head a huge basket filled with carrots, cabbages, lettuce, green peas, sweet potatoes, and tomatoes, and usually in her hand two or three chickens or turkeys, feet tied with string.

125 Pounds on Their Heads

An American tourist had told me these people were lazy, yet here were women bringing the produce of their tiny mountain farms, carrying perhaps 125 pounds on their heads all day Friday and Friday night, down the long mountain road, to sell it at market Saturday morning. Total profit would not be much more than a dollar, yet thus did they toil willingly to keep together their little families in the mud-and-thatch mountain cabins, and to send their children to school.

The children do go to school—thousands and thousands of them turning homeward along the road in the late afternoon. Even the poorest were neatly dressed, and children and adults alike were scrupulously clean and tidy.

At Kenskoff, we stopped at the Chatelet des Fleurs, a very pretty hotel perched on the very brink of tremendous valleys, with a view of the sea miles beyond.

As the sun set, the clouds drifted by far below us, and the fresh, cool mountain air was like a tonic after the weeks of heat in the sealevel cities of Florida and the Bahamas. It was with regret we finished our thick, creamy, hot chocolate and set out for home.

Chatelet des Fleurs is aptly named, for it is surrounded by acres of flowers, which in the Winter are shipped by air to Boston, New York, Washington, Baltimore and Philadelphia florists. Growing wild along the roadside were eight-foot-high clumps of baby-pink geraniums (pelargoniums), rugged century - plants, yuccas with grey-blue leaves, and flaming scarlet poinsettias.

After two weeks at the Excelsior Hotel in Port-au-Prince, I took the Pan-American plane to Camaguey, an ancient Spanish colonial city in the centre, of Cuba. Instead of waiting for the plane to Havana, a fellow traveller and I decided we would see more of the country if we went by bus. We certainly did—the rich banana, pineapple and sugar-cane plantations, the cattle ranches with huge herds of sleek, massive, humpbacked Zebu cattle from India, and the cities of Ciego de Avila, Sancti Spiritus, Santa Clara, Jovellanos, Matanzas, and finally the Paris of the South—Havana.

Havana Not as Gay

When we cashed in our unused portion of our Pan-American tickets and bought others on a cheaper line, "Aerovias Q," to Key West, Florida, we found we had saved enough precious American dollars to cover two days and nights at Havana, with meals, with sight-seeing and a little bit of shopping and night-clubbing.

Havana did not seem as gay as it was when I saw it in 1945. The lawns and streets seemed poorly kept, and election slogans were smeared in paint on the beautiful old walls. A stiff fine for the candidate whose followers do such things might stop it.

Prices in Havana had gone hay-wire. Meals were more than double what they were in 1945. Service was terrible. Our hotel rooms were very dirty, and the bathroom (there were no private baths) was downright filthy.

In 1945, drinks at the Parisian sidewalk cafes were very reasonably priced, 15 cents for a Cuba Libre. Today the price has jumped to 45 cents. The price in Haiti is still 15 cents, and 10 cents for a straight rum (ron sec), which was so good it tasted like fine French cognac.

We cut short our intended stay in Havana and went straight home.

BEES PROTECTED

To protect their bee colonies from giant sugar toads, Queensland bee farmers were advised to put their hives on stakes at least two feet high.

Expenditures Will Be Pushed Over $2 Billion Mark

Ottawa June 24 (CP) — Expenditures planned by the government for the current fiscal year were pushed over the $2,000,000,000 mark in the Commons Wednesday. Finance Minister Abbott tabled supplementary estimates totalling $197,067-420.

The supplementaries will cover expenditures unforeseen or unprovided for when the main estimates were tabled early in the session.

These bring to $2,182,213,480 the estimated expenses for the 1948-49 fiscal year which ends next March 31. Expenditures in the last fiscal year totalled $2,196,177,192.

Practically all departments listed new expenditures, but the largest amounts are earmarked for the health and veterans affairs department.

The health department figures included $30,000,000 which will be distributed among the provinces to assist in improving health services and in providing for a national health insurance plan.

Prime Minister Mackenzie King forecast the grants last month and said all provinces will be entitled to them whether or not they have signed taxation agreements with the Dominion.

A sum of $41,417,500 tacked on the expenditures of the veterans department will be used mainly to cver recent increases in veterans pensions and allowances.

Additional public works projects, totalling $24,436,600 were provided for.

No special provision was made for the Federal assistance to the relief and rehabilitation of flood victims in British Columbia.

In the Agriculture department was an amount of $13,000,000 to provide for continuation of freight assistance on the movement of feed grains from the prairies to eastern Canada and to British Columbia.

The resources department earmarked $1,340,000 to cover the cost of flying displaced persons from Europe to Canada.

Little Benny's Note Book

I was walking along with Glasses Magee just walking along, and Glasses said, Hay, here comes Lucky Leroy Shooster, let's play a good one on him.

Okay, how? I said, and Glasses said, Let's pertend we're hunting for a dime, and see if he's lucky enough to find something that was never even lost.

Sounding like a swell idea, and we started to give a imitation of 2 fellows looking for something, and Lucky Leroy stopped to watch us, saying, What's you hunting for?

Oh, just a dime, I said, ano Lucky said, I'll find it for you, I'm the famous finder around here.

Never mind, we'll find it, Glasses said.

And we kept on walking around in circles with our heads down, and Lucky Leroy said, Whose dime was it?

Benny's and mine, Glasses said, and I said, We each had 5 pennies and we put them together and had them changed to a dime, and we were suppose to take terns carrying it every other day. Heck where the heck did it roll to, darn it, I said.

You need a expert looker to help you, Lucky said. What's the reward when I find it? he saia, and Glasses said, We'll give you one therd, that's 3 and a therd cents by arifmetic, if my pardner agrees.

Sure, go ahead and hunt, I said.

Which Lucky started to, and all of a sudden he reetched down and picked something up, saying, G. here's something but it's only a cent.

And he showed it to us, saying, Well, there's no use of me keeping on looking, Because I never find more than one thing in one place, So long, he said.

And he kept on going, Glasses saying, Darn that guy, I bet he had that cent all the time.

Which I bet he had, and me and Glasses both started to yell happy like 2 guys finding a lost dime, but Lucky Leroy didn't even look around.

HOME FOR REFUGEES

London (CP)—Figures published by the International Refugee Organization show that Britain has taken in more refugees and displaced persons than all the other countries of the world put together. They are entering Britain at the rate of 1,500 a week. At least 70,000 have been admitted since the end of the war.

Yu'An Hee See Laughs

By Sax Rohmer

"Good," said the Chief. "Lay him on the settee there until he comes to."

His orders were obeyed, and the party continued merrily.

In the restaurant below, Dawson Haig and his Paris confrere exchanged reminiscences. Perhaps a dozen customers came and went during the hour that they dallied there, but no more penetrated beyond the curtain at the head of the little staircase.

Mr. Ballon was growing restless, the stipulated hour having expired.

"Would it be possible," said Haig apologetically, "to arrange for someone to follow any persons.

"Why, certainly," was the reply. "I can go and arrange for this now, if you care to wait."

"I'll wait," said Haig. He settled their account with the Arab waiter, and lighting a cigarette, was turning over the mystery of the whole thing in his mind. Suddenly, the curtains at the head of the stairs were drawn aside....

Two men came down, one supporting the other. The man supported was heavily built and of definitely Teutonic type. From time to time he spat into a bloodstained handkerchief. He walked unsteadily.

His companion, who wore a brightly colored pullover and grey flannel trousers, seemed much concerned about him. "Sure you're all right, mate?" he asked as they reached the foot of the stairs.

"I'm all right. Kid," was the gutteral reply. "You do me well, but you do me decent."

They began to cross the floor, making for the doorway.

"There's no malice, Franz?"

"There is none. Orders is Orders."

Haig realized that the fighting man, with that sublime insular ignorance of his class—took for granted the fact that no one else in the restaurant understood English!

"Anyway, I'll see you to a taxi," he said, "and we'll 'ave a drink together in Cairo."

They had nearly reached the curtain draped in the opening beyond which the stout lady presided over coffee beans. Dawson Haig held his breath.

"For me, not Cairo," the German replied. "I go to Marseilles tomorrow....and..by the Wallaroo...."

Haig stood up and followed. By some unfortunate accident, a taxi passed at the very moment of their exit, and he came out onto the street only in time to see it pulling away, and to meet the glare of vicious, sunken eyes, as the Cockney fighter confronted him.

"Lookin' for anything, mooso?" inquired the latter truculently.

"Yes, said Haig, "do you think you could get me a taxi?"

For a moment the other glared, then his battle-scared face broke into an appreciative grin. "I thought you was a foreign bloke, but I ain't no bloomin' porter, mate. Get your own bloody taxi!"

Dawson Haig walked slowly in the direction of the Place Pigalle.

The R.M.S. Wallaroo lay about fifty miles south-southeast of Barcelona, having experienced a wet, cold, but singularly smooth passage. Eileen was in the writing room completing a long letter which she had commenced the day before, immediately after receipt of a Marconi message which read:

> "Don't forget you promised to write. Signed Billy Haig."

It was destined to be consigned to the post at Marseilles. It largely consisted of complaints about the passengers, who, as represented by those joining the ship in London, were far from interesting. The final paragraph, written on the previous evening, ran:

"I suppose it's hopeless to expect too much for a fare of thirty pounds. My cabin is quite comfy, and the eats are good. The ship's officers are dears, and Jack Rattray looks after me wonderfully. But the passengers are very piggish."

Eileen took writing paper from the rack and continued:

"There's one rather nice man on board, a Mr. Durham, and, oddly enough, he knows you! Isn't that funny? He seems to be a great friend of Charlie Winter, the purser. At least, he's always there whenever there's a cocktail party. I'm told he's some kind of official of the Line. He tells most amusing stories, and I shall be sorry when he leaves. He's going ashore at Marseilles.

"Then there's a Dr. Oestler, whose cabin is next door to mine. He's going to Sydney to take charge of the construction of some big electrical works somewhere in Australia. He knows a terrible lot about electricity. He's an Austrian, I think, ugly with thick-rimmed glasses; but clever and very fascinating. Jimmy Jackson, the senior Marconi man, told me that the doctor is going to revolutionize the radio industry....I don't know what he means. But both times I've been up to send messages Dr. Oestler has been in the wireless room. He sends and receives a great number of messages.

"There's nobody to fall in love with, or nobody I've found so far, I mean. There's a perfectly dreadful woman at the chief's table (old Corcoran is chief engineer. Do you know him?). Some sort of half-caste. A truly terrible pig. I don't know her name and haven't troubled to find out. But old Corky has fallen badly: everybody's laughing about it.

"Charley Winter says she's some sort of vaudeville act going out to an Australian engagement. I hope she gets the bird the first night she opens.

"There are two very unholy-looking Chinamen living somewhere on the deck below — at least, I thought they were Chinamen, but someone told me they're Siamese. They are certainly not twins. One is small and high-brow and wears glasses, and the other is quite tall with a long neck. I think they must have tried to hang him at some time, but he was too tough. He's a poisonous-looking brute...."

A scratching on the glass of the window immediately in front of the table attracted Eileen's attention. She paused, pen in hand, looking up to the chief officer. Jack Rattray stood on the deck outside, jerking his thumb aft and performing an excellent pantomine of a very thirsty man drinking.

Eileen shook her head and pointed with her pen to the writing table. But Jack persisted, and finally Eileen nodded consent.

"The doctor's compliments," said Rattray seriously, "If you will step along to his room, he will make up a prescription."

They went downstairs together, heading for the doctor's cabin. Rattray took a short cut through some of the serving quarters, and, passing an open doorway, Eileen detected over the rattle of a near-by kitchen the strains of a gramophone.

"Is that the chief's gramophone?" she asked, turning to Jack.

"He's entertaining the lady snake charmer," was the reply.

"She's not really a snake charmer, is she?"

"No. I don't think she could charm snakes—as a matter of fact, I believe she trains elephants."

There is a fine old house in the Darb el Ahmar, not far from the Bab es-Zuwela, in the native quarter of Cairo, which, after standing vacant for a number of years, apparently found a tenant. Some time in 1923 it was leased, and ever since had been occupied.

The frontage on the street is not imposing, except for two rather fine windows above a bleached door covered with Arabic inscriptions. But it contains some fine apartments on the first floor, and on the night of the 20th—i.e. two days before the Wallaroo was due at Port Said—one of them was the setting of a scene to witness which Dawson Haig would have paid much.

This lofty, rectangular room, illuminated by two hanging lamps of perforated brass, was otherwise simply furnished in the Arab manner.

Under the light of one of the lamps was set a coffee table, and near to it, buried in cushions, Orange Blossom lay, sheathed in a robe of nearly transparent pink silk, her slender ankles intertwined, her little feet bare, so that the manicured nails on her tiny toes glistened like coral at her slightest movement.

She smoked cigarettes and drank tea from a porcelain cup. A large silver incense burner sent up clouds of perfumed smoke. The three doors of the apartment were closed, so was oppressive to a degree.

The native latch of one of the three doors was depressed. Yu'an Hee See came in, wearing just another plain blue robe as that which he had worn in the office of Jo Lung in Limehouse. He closed the door and looked along the room.

"Little blossom," he said, his strange voice echoing in the nearly empty room. "You love the perfume of Ho Nan. I, too, love it, but you burn too much."

The woman pouted. "I can never do as I like," she exclaimed. "Since you brought me from China, I have never known any happiness. What have you come to tell me? Is it that I must embark upon a ship, stifle in a train, or be sick in an airplane? Something, I see in your eyes."

Yu'an Hee See watched her, smiling.

"There is indeed a further journey which you must take, little one," he said, "but surely you welcome it—or are you so happy in the house of Aswami Pasha that you regret to leave Cairo?"

"I have small love for Aswami," she replied, "and less for Cairo. We are going, then, to Arabia? There, at least, I have my comforts—my servants."

"In the morning, Orange Blossom." He walked slowly towards her. "You have until the dawn of tomorrow in which to talk to me, to bewitch me with your beauty, and make me more completely your slave."

The woman smiled up at him as he bent over her. "You know that I love you, Yu'an," she whispered.

"I begin to believe so, since you have followed me around the world."

"Followed?"

"You were free to leave me at any time."

Dimly the note of a gong sounded in some place below. "Go now to your room," said Yu'an Hee See. This is Aswami who has arrived. I shall be detained, perhaps for an hour."

In a small square room on the ground floor of the house, furnished very simply as an office, Aswami Pasha sat waiting.

To the gang assembled in the Restaurant Suleiman Bey in Paris he was known as the Chief, but here, in scrupulously correct evening dress, he was an Egyptian gentleman of established position. Nevertheless, he watched the door of the room with a certain nervousness not strictly in keeping with Moslem fatalism.

Presently Yu'an Hee See replied in the same language. "You are an hour late. What is the explanation."

"Yu'an Hee See stood framed in the open doorway, looking at the Egyptian, his eyes nearly closed.

"It is simple," was the reply. "The pilot made a forced landing but a good one. We were ten miles from Heliopolis—which I think, explains my delay."

"It explains it," the reedy voice conceded. "I accept this explanation. I would add that if such accidents occur to others of our company disaster lies before us like a gulf which no man can pass."

"I have no fears," the Egyptian assured him. "Here is the roll. I can tell you where every man of the company is at the present moment."

"Or should be."

"Some are out of reach, I admit, but with the others we can get in touch if you desire it."

"I do not desire it. You are responsible." He raised a plump hand, the pointed index finger curled. "I do not wish to see your report. Tell me that there has been no hitch."

"No hitch."

Robin Roberts, Phills' $25,000 Bonus Pitcher, Begins to Pay Dividends on the Investment

By RALPH RODEN
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

Robin Roberts, 21-year-old righthander, is proving Philadelphia Phillies made a smart move when they gave him $25,000 to sign.

The lanky speed ball pitcher gained his first major league victory last night, stopping Cincinnati Reds, 3-2.

Roberts held the Reds to seven hits — two of them homers by Hank Sauer and Danny Litwhiler. He fanned nine.

The Phils signed Roberts while he was at Michigan State College and sent him early this season to Wilmington. There Roberts won nine games, lost one and fanned 121 batters in less than 100 innings including 18 in one game.

The rookie made his first big league start against Pittsburgh June 18 and dropped a 2-0 decision.

Sauer, the major's top home run hitter, socked his 22nd four-bagger in the sixth inning.

The game was the only one played in the National League.

Yanks Beat Indians

In the American League, the second - place New York Yankees beat the league - leading Indians 5-1 in an 11-inning night game at Cleveland. The setback cut the Indians' lead to 2½ games.

Tommy Henrich broke up the game with a grand - slam homer off Don Black who went the route for the Tribe. Ed Lopat of the Yankees went the distance, allowing only six hits. A crowd of 65,797 turned out, largest ever to see a night game in Cleveland.

The third-place Philadelphia Athletics, behind the six - hit pitching of Toronto - born Dick Fowler, swamped St. Louis Brown 12-1. Herman Franks led the A's 14-hit attack, driving in five runs on a homer, triple and double.

At Detroit, in a day game, Washington Senators nosed out the Tigers 2-1. Dizzy Trout held the Senators to four hits while four Washington pitchers allowed six.

OshawaMerchants Move into Third Place in League

(By The Canadian Press)

Waterloo's high - flying Tigers protected their Intercounty Baseball League first - place lead last night with a 4-2 victory over Kitchener Legionnaires as six more Senior Ontario baseball games were played in three leagues.

In the other two intercounty games, veteran righthander Bill Wagner set Stratford Nationals down on four hits to pitch London Majors to a 5-2 decision, and Guelp Maple Leafs defeated Galt Terriers 7-4 in a ragged tilt.

Welland Stokes boosted their leadership in the Niagara district loop to 11 victories against one loss with a 6-4 win over St. Catharines Saints, while Niagara Falls Flores pounded out 16 hits to beat Lewiston 11-6.

The lone Central Ontario League game saw Oshawa Merchants come from behind in the eighth with a three - run rally to edge Peterborough Marines 6-4.

When Oshawa beat Peterborough 6-4. they moved out in front of Kingston, into third place in the Central Ontario circuit. Paul Michael was the big man in the Oshawa win. He not only pitched neat seven-hit ball, but struck out seven, walked two, handled two putouts and earned eight assists. Bill Edger pitched for Peterborough and gave up 12 safeties, while fanning only three.

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, Jr.

New York, June 24 — (AP) — Joe Louis continues to say that his title defence against Jersey Joe Walcott will be his last . . . but in the course of looking through the records to find the last time a Louis fight was rained out, we came across a couple of interesting quotes from the heavyweight champion . . . Back in 1942, Louis, then in the army, said he was "through fighting" because he'd be in his 30s when he got out of uniform and "that's too old." . . . A couple of years later he said he'd defend his title just once after the war—against Billy Conn — and then retire . . . Joe changed his mind about those two decisions and he may change again . . . A personal opinion is that, if Joe beats Walcott, he'll give Gus Lesnevich a whack at the title in the fall and then call it quits.

Central Texas cities, very proud of their spring weather, and loosing a few moans because major league ball clubs don't go there to train . . . after viewing the current standings, this department favors getting them all into one section. That was so the experts could be equally wrong about all of them instead of merely making bad predictions about the teams they see in the spring.

61 Countries Will Compete In Olympic Games

(By The Canadian Press)

Sixty-one countries, with the exception of Russia, will compete in the Olympic games, Lord Burghley, chairman of the organization committee, told a conference at London Wednesday.

"This is the biggest representation in the 48-year history of modern Olympics and we are justly proud," Lord Burghley said. The previous high entry list was when 49 countries participated in the Berlin show of 1936.

The number of individual entries is not known but Lord Burghley estimated there would be 6,000 athletes and officials.

Brooklyn Dodgers have recalled pitcher Hank Behram from their Montreal International League farm club. Right-hander Behram had been recalled early in the month but was shipped back to the Royals because of "legal involvements." Behrman said he preferred staying with Montreal at the time.

Paced by Jack Williams' six-goal performance, Mimico Mounties defeated Hamilton Tigers 16-13 in an Ontario Lacrosse Association fixture at Toronto Wednesday night. The victory vaulted Mounties over St. Catharines Athletics into second place standing.

Heavyweight champion Joe Louis dunned London promoters for $80,000 which he said hadn't been paid him for his month's exhibition in London. Louis said he wants his cash by June 28. The promoters said they lost between $600,000 and $800,000 on their "Health and Holidays" exhibition of which the Brown Bomber's sparring bouts were a part.

Frank Gravino May be Another Stanley Musial

(By The Associated Press)

Another Stan Musial? Maybe, and certainly there's little doubt that St. Louis Cardinals have a promising outfield prospect in Frank Gravino, 24-year-old rookie of Rochester Red Wings of the International League.

Gravino is hitting at a .342 clip and, like Musial, he is a converted pitcher.

He joined the Cardinals' Williamson farm club of the Mountain State League as a pitcher in 1940, the same club that Musial began his organized ball career as a hurler in 1938.

Wednesday, Gravino socked his 12th homer and a single and drove in all three Red Wings' runs in Rochester's 3-2 victory over Syracuse Chiefs in the first game of a doubleheader.

He failed to hit in the nightcap which the Wings also won, 5-1 behind the five-hit pitching of Max Surkont.

Jersey City Giants also swept a doubleheader, beating Toronto Maple Leafs, 7-4 and 7-3. Syl Yvars' three-run homer and a two-run circuit blast by Jack Harshman featured the Giants' first game triumph. Burgess Whitehead poled a three - run four - bagger and Hal Bamberger hit one with the bases empty for the Giants in the second tilt.

Home runs also highlighted the hard-hitting Buffalo Bisons' 10-5 victory over Baltimore Orioles. Chet Laabs belted his 20th with two on in the first inning and Anse Moore hammered his 17th with one aboard in the fourth for the Bisons.

The scheduled game between the first - place Montreal Royals and the runner - up Newark Bears was postponed because of rain.

Edmonton, June 24 (CP) — Wednesday's Joe Louis — Jersey Joe Walcott's battle for the heavyweight boxing championship of the world recalled memories of one of Louis' several wartime visits to Edmonton for Stan (Edmonton Bulletin) Moher.

"At Mayfair Louis proved somewhat of a sensation. He went into action sans golf shoes and if memory serves aright whipped the first nine in something like 39 shots," says Moher.

"Those Mayfair folks were impressed with the champ5s way of going. His modesty and affableness quickly won them to his corner.

"But for all this you won't find his name in the guest book reserved for such occasions. You see this celebrity did not get to write his John Henry in the Mayfair records.

Football Feuding

The hornet's nest stirred up in Canadian football circles when the Big Four announced it would use six United States imports in the coming season, seven for Montreal Alouettes, has drawn comment from Bob (Calgary Herald) Mamini.

Mamini says Kent Phillips, president of the Canadian Rugby Union, has dropped the curtain on the first act of a gridiron play that showed signs of developing a "lively dialogue in a fall football setting."

Mamini says Tom Brook of Calgary Stampeders "asked why certain eastern football teams could add more than the designated five American imports. The solo and sonorous reply from Art Chipman, of Winnipeg Blue Bombers, saw no reason for limitations.

"Both were drawing a deep breath for another volley when Phillips let the curtain go by pointing out the five Americans each team intended using in C. R. U. competition would have to be registered with the parent body before the start of the season."

Two Joes Ready For Title Fight In Yankee Stadium

New York, June 24 (CP)—The suitable time when champion Joe Louis and challenger Jersey Joe Walcott will settle their dispute over the world heavyweight boxing championship today again seemed to be in the hands of the elements.

A heavy downpour shortly afternoon yesterday forced postponement of the 15-round engagement at Yankee Stadium—Louis' 25th title defence and, he says, his last fight.

The contest immediately was rescheduled for 10 p.m. EDT tonight, weather permitting.

The weather bureau, in a rut, promised more showers and thundershowers today and tomorrow. If washed out a second time, the bout will be staged Friday, and so on.

Even the odds seemed to react to the uncertainty of conditions and fluctuated between 5 to 11 and 5 to 13, favoring the champion, in brisk overnight betting activity.

The Twentieth Century Sporting Club still figured the crowd would be around 55,000 with a gate of approximately $900,000, exclusive of television and radio receipts.

The two Joes appeared tight-strung at the weigh-in ceremonies. Although they stood so close tehat at times their muscles almost touched, they didn't speak.

Of the two, Walcott seemed looser and more relaxed despite the champ's reputation for tremendous calm.

Louis lumbered on the scales and weighed 213 3-4, the heaviest ring weight of his career. Walcott registered 194 3-4. They won't have to repeat the act today.

After a tenure of 11 years and two days in which he has defended his title more times than any predecessor and has met all comers, Louis is risking his crown against a challenger who came closest to beating him last December.

Tonight's contest—depending on the weather—is a match of styles, but it also is a test of whether the champion's cat-like reflexes have vanished altogether or whether enough remain to meet this last great challenge.

BBC Takes Over Resort Theatre

London — (CP) — To combat the Musicians' Union on outside broadcasts—result of a disagreement on outside broadcasting fees — the British Broadcasting Corporation has taken over the Jubilee Theatre, Blackpool, for use as an outside studio.

The theatre, opening June 24 for 12 weeks, will be used for dance band and variety broadcasts to which audiences will be invited to create the "vaudeville atmosphere."

"There will be a considerable reservoir of talent in Blackpool this summer," a BBC official said, "and we shall draw on it as much as possible to fill the gap created by the ban on relays from commercial theatres, restaurants, and dance halls."

The dispute with the Musicians' Union arose from the BBC's refusal to treble fees paid to artists and musicians for relay broadcasts. The BBC's argument is that artists and musicians do no extra work for relays and derive considerable advertising from them.

NOW IN TRANSPORT DEPT.

Ottawa, June 23 (CP)—Prime Minister Mackenzie King tabled in the Commons today an Order-in-Council transferring operation of the government telephone and telegraph service from the public works to the transport department.

Transport Minister Chevrier told the House later in reply to a question that he knew of no negotiations to transfer the service to the Bell Telephone Company.

Don Bradman Soon to Retire

London, June 24 — (CP). — It's the end of the line this season for Don (The Bat) Bradman, a small, straw-haired man in a baggy cap who launched one of cricket's living legends with a gum-tree limb for a bat.

At 39 Bradman is playing out the string. When the 153rd test series between England and Australia ends in October, he'll put away his bat and blazer for good, 21 years in cricket's big time behind him.

Neville Cardus, one of Britain's leading cricket authorities, wrote feelingly on the eve of the 1948 test series:

"If I were a bowler and had committed a felony, I should feel some sense of grievous miscarriage of justice if the sentence imposed condemned me to the hard labor of getting Bradman out . . ."

That's how seriously Englishmen take this Australian stockbroker whose 452 runs not outstands as the highest individual score in first-class cricket; whose 334 at Lord's in 1930 was a test record at the time; and who shares with England's C. B. Fry the distinction of scoring six centuries in a row.

Back on English soil now on Australia's first visit since 1938, "The Bat" is up to his old tricks. In the first match at Nottingham, he scored 138 runs first time up. It was his 28th test century and made him the first man to score 1,000 runs this year.

An unorthodox batting style caused critics to jeer when he made his first appearance in big-league cricket in 1927, but the authority of Bradman's booming bat made his detractors chew their words. Soon he was Australia's key man as the "diggers from down under" wrested cricket supremacy from England.

In 1939 Arthur Whitelaw, an Australian business man, sent Bradman a £1,000 ($4,000) cheque "in admiration of your wonderful performance."

Rice, Bananas, Principal Foods In Cote's Diet

St. Hyacinthe, Que., June 24—(CP)—If you want to be a successful marathon runner eat plenty of rice pudding and bananas. And don't forget the steaks.

Those are the principal foods in the diet of Gerard Cote, Canada's ace marathoner, now training faithfully for the Olympic games.

Chatting unreservedly in the police gatehouse of the War Veterans' Hospital in St. Hyacinthe, where he is a Corporal in charge of a special detachment, Cote let it be known that he finds rice and bananas tops for long-distance conditioning.

The idea isn't his own. He lifted it from the Oriental marathoners and more particularly from Yong Bok Sue of Korea.

He hasn't regretted it. He said the foods not only are good for the stomach but keep the intestinal and stomach muscles hard.

With loose or flabby abdominal muscles or with the slightest deviation from diet a marathoner may easily find himself in trouble.

Hard as Nails

Today Cote is as hard as nails. He is five feet, six inches tall and weighs 135 pounds. He will be 35 years old July 28.

His training grind burns up the food he consumes, but the intake, for a little man, is remarkable.

For breakfast Cote starts out with his rice pudding and bananas.

Perhaps he will also have some cornflakes or a bit of porridge. Then comes eggs and toast, jam, buttered peanuts and milk or coffee.

Some times he will take a glass of grapefruit juice, but not within a month before a race. He finds it dissipates the intestinal-muscle hardening he must have.

For mid-day dinner he eats a juicy, medium-cooked steak or roast beef or roast pork; sometimes pork chops. Solid vegetables round out the meal.

Supper follows the dinner pattern, including meat. Before bedtime he downs two or three glasses of milk and again has rice and bananas. Throughout a day he drinks two or three quarts of milk.

Beer? Sure, after every race. That's all, and then only two or three pints. He finds this cuts his thirst. If he started to drink water or milk he would want to swill gallons.

He smokes, too, but sparingly, and never inhales.

Olympic Rowing Trials Will Be Held Saturday

St. Catharines, Ont., June 24. (CP)—Trials for Canada's Olympic rowing team will be held over the Royal Canadian Henley course, Saturday afternoon. More than 80 scullers from across Canada are scheduled to compete with various clubs.

Although Olympic officials said 16 men and a coach may be chosen to go with Canada's 1948 Olympic team, places will only be awarded to those who make a good showing.

Clubs entered are the Ottawa Rowing, Hamilton Leander, St. Catharines, Toronto Dons, Winnipeg Rowing and Toronto Argonauts.

Milkshakes Give Added Incentive For Shot-Putter

By TED SMITS

New York — (AP) — Charles Fonville, the Michigan shot putter who is one of the few athletes in the world just about sure to win an Olympic championship, is the kind of a man who needs a challenge to be at his best — even if it is only a milkshake.

"Come on," he will say during practice to his coach, Ken Doherty, "Let's put a milkshake on it."

"For a malted milk," said Doherty, "he can do 55 feet."

That is as good, if not better, than any other man in training. Fonville's best, however, is a tremendous 58 feet, ¼ inches made this spring at the Kansas relays. The listed world record is 57 feet, 1 inch, made 14 years ago by big Jack Torrace.

The Olympic record is a mere 53 feet, 1¾ inches made by Hans Woellke of Germany in 1936.

Brutus Hamilton, the California track coach and scientific student of the sport, in 1935 drew up a table of what he considered the best performances man could hope to achieve. He called it the "ultimate of human effort." In the 16 pound shot put he set this at 57 feet, 5/32 inches.

How has Fonville managed to exceed this by such a wide margin?

Speed Important

"The emphasis is all on speed, in all phases of the put, plus about perfect co-ordination and excellent form," said Doherty. "He has perfected all phases of form."

For Fonville is small as shot putters go — 6 feet 2 inches and 195 pounds. He is a quiet sort, with ebony dark skin. He is so loose-jointed, and steel-muscled that when he tosses the shot from hand to hand in warming up he acts as if it were no heavier than a baseball. The trajectory of his puts is very low — but the distance is unequalled.

Recently in a charity meet at Randall's Island here, Fonville did 56 feet 11 inches, the second best competitive put of his career.

"He is working hard to get ready for the Olympics," said Doherty. The final tryouts for the American team are at Chicago July 9 and 10. The games start July 29 in London.

As for Fonville, he declined to speculate on records or an Olympic victory.

"I don't think about it too much," he said. "It doesn't do too much good to anticipate things."

Fonville is a pre-dental student at the University of Michigan, 21 years old and unmarried, and was too young for war service.

You must not think opponents mean for defending with overbids. Each pair is out to win. What one pair gains the other side loses. A losing pair aims to lose the least they can.

Suppose one side can make 1,000 points at some bid. It pays the other pair to make a bid that loses anything less than 1,000. After all, if you think they should not, you have recourse to a double.

When west and east made no bids, you have seen how the south and north pair reached six spades in this deal:

NORTH
♥9 7 6 3 2
♦9 8 7 2
♣K 2

WEST
♥Q J 10
♦A Q J 6 5 4
♣Q 10 3

EAST
♠J 9 8
♥A K 8 5 4
♦K 10 3
♣J 4

SOUTH
♠A K 10 7 6 5 4
♥None
♦None
♣A 9 8 7 6 5

At a table where opponents put in their competitive calls, the bidding went like this:

South	West	North	East
2 S	3 D	Pass	3 H
4 C	4 D	Pass	5 D
6 C	6 D	6 S	7 D
7 S	Pass	Pass	Dbl

Bids by defenders need the same number of tricks as do those of opener and his partner. But not so many sure tricks and high cards. In round one, west and east were showing each other their values.

In the second round, west expected to take a sacrifice. This he would rather do than let south reach a game. East was then in a mood to chance a game or make it tougher for south.

In the third round, west and east were eager to sacrifice. It would be better than letting south make a slam. But south would not be denied. He went to seven spades.

East believed that seven spades could be defeated. His double was for the purpose of gaining extra points when the contract lost.

But the contract made. Opening lead from west was heart queen. You can see how the 13 tricks were taken, I theenk.

NEGOTIATE FOR LOAN OF PUMPS FOR B. C.

London, Ont., June 24 (CP) — Vancouver authorities continued today to negotiate with the city water works department for the loan of heavy duty pumps to help British Columbia recover from the recent flood.

Utilities Commission officials said a maximum of three pumps could be provided. Still standing in the way of the loan is the matter of motors. The pumps are provided with 25-cycle electric motors and British Columbia is on 60-cycle current.

Sport Shorts From Britain

By ALAN HARVEY
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London June 24 (CP) —Like the proverbial ill wind, swamp fever in the United States blew millions of good American dollars into Britain's lap.

The swamp fever epidemic, a fatal form of pernicious anaemia struck the New England States last year. Expensive thoroughbreds died in droves and others had to be destroyed to prevent the epidemic from spreading.

American horsemen sought to insure their animals, but most insurance companies demurred because of the high risk. Only Lloyd's of London, always ready to look a gamble in the eye accepted the increasing business in quantity.

The epidemic is over now, but Lloyd's and other British companies have cornered the insurance market on United States horses. An estimated $5,000,000 a year in premiums is crossing the Atlantic to "cover" such animals as 15-year-old Mahmoud, winner of England's Epsom Derby in 1936 and insured for $100,000; and the French breds Goya II and Priam II, insured between them for nearly $800,000.

Hash, sire of Samalgundi (winner of the Santa Anita Derby) is down for $200,000.

Frank Stranahan, the Toledo muscle man who caused a controversy in British golfing circles last year by firing his caddie, won the British Amateur championship at Birkdale last month. Again there was some resentement, this time at what British critics called Stranahan's deliberate slow down tactics.

Henry Longhurst, once a leading British golfer, wrote in the Sporting Life that Stranahan took an average of 47 seconds between inserting the peg tee into the ground and making his stroke. Charles Stowe, Stranahan's British opponent in the final took 17 seconds.

On a short pitch shot, Stranahan took up to one minute and 20 seconds, compared with 35 seconds for Stowe. "One could wish the pace to a little funereal" said Longhurst.

Blackwater Beauty, 33-1 shot for Britain's Greyhound Derby has been withdrawn — for an unusual reason. She is fit enough and runs fast in the daytime, but she can't run at night. An eye complaint has renedered her sight defective under artificial lighting and the Derby will be run at London's White City —at night.

Trophies distributed at a two-day angling festival at Southend Essex, outweighed all the fish caught by the 268 competing anglers. Heaviest fish, a one pound 5 1-4 ounce flounder earned a silver cup twice it lenghth and three times its weight.

Little Benny's Note Book

After supper pop was smoking in back of the paper, and ma said, William, I'd like to ask your advice, if you can spare the time.

Fire away, my dear, I'm just looking at the financial page and I'll be glad to look away, pop said, and ma said, It's about a problem that came up in the bridge game this afternoon.

Oh, I'm sure you were right, pop said, and ma said, Now, William, don't jump at conclusions before you come to the bridge.

I thawt we were at the bridge, pop said. Well, what was the problem? he said, and ma said, It was the proverbial question of whether to take out trumps the very ferst thing like an iron clad rule, or whether to take a risk in case you may need a possible ruffer in dummy.

Well, it's like the problem of whether to spank children or whether to reason gently with them while they stad there not paying attention, pop said. There are 2 opposing schools of thawt, he said, and ma said, Your side suit may break like a pleasant dream, of course, and in that case you wouldn't of needed to take the risk, but on the other hand, if your side suit breaks badly and you've exhawsted dummy's trumps, there you are, just sitting and staring at your cards.

In other werds, there's no percentage in having one remaining chance if your last resource is gone, pop said, and ma said, Well naturelly.

And you want to know whether it's better to assume a risk or take a chance, pop said, and ma said, Not at all, I want you to tell me a refined but conclusive way of shutting your pardner up when she takes the attitude that you should of had a six sense and the gift of 2nd sight after you've guessed wrong and failed to make the contract.

Tell her to go jump in the lake, but tell her in French, pop said.

And he got back at his paper again and stayed there.

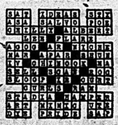
Answer to Yesterday's Puzzle



Study New Evidence In Cancer Research

Leeds, England — (CP) — Cancer research workers at Leeds University are experimenting with particles one-millionth of an inch in diameter which have been found in certain strains of mice and may prove to be the first known organism producing cancer tumors in mammals.

This was disclosed by R. D. Passey, professor of experimental pathology and director of cancer research. He said the work had not yet gone far enough for any "gilt-edged" claim to be made.

The particles, peculiar to breast tumors, have been injected in a fluid into 450 mice. It may be a year or 18 months before a conclusive result is reached.

SOIL CONSERVATION URGED

Bloemfontein, South Africa — (CP) — The National Veld Trust has urged the government to make an aerial survey to enable soil conservation to be put into operation most effectively and as soon as possible.

TO BE U.S.A.'S FIRST FAMILY FOR NEXT FOUR YEARS?

In this hitherto unpublished photograph, released by Dewey headquarters, possible Republican presidential nominee Thomas E. Dewey is pictured with his wife and their sons, Thomas E., Jr., (right), and John M., at the executive mansion in Albany, N.Y. In Philadelphia, he is gaining steadily in the race for the GOP nomination. Only an unexpected chain of events, it seems, can stop him now. The great break in the nomination position came when Senator Edward Martin announced that he would withdraw as candidate and nominate Dewey.

Business Spotlight

By The Canadian Press

Stock markets Wednesday shed some of their recent uncertainty, New York advancing under the leadership of rails and Canadian exchanges tending upward in small volume.

One New York broker had predicted that a small increase in new buying might bring about a good recovery and that this might develop if the railroads assumed constructive leadership.

The rails did that Wednesday and it is possible that the American exchange will resume its May and early-June advance.

Regarding American oil stocks, which have been notable performers, the Wall Street Journal's market column comments:

"It is getting pretty obvious that speculation has become pretty active in some sections of the oils and that an 'emotional' phase of buying is a factor....it would appear that with advances of from 50 per cent to nearly 250 per cent in oil stock prices on the stock exchange in the last 12 months or so, oils have done some important discounting of their prosperity now and in the future."

Canadian markets were stronger but trading was quiet, Toronto having its lowest volume since last August. However, much of the Toronto volume-drop is due to dull trading in low-priced golds.

All groups were up in Montreal averages, except banks which were unchanged.

Wheat closed up and corn and oats lower in Chicago while oats and barley were firm in Winnipeg with rye down the 10-cent limit for July and ahead for October.

Brighteners

New York, June 24 (AP) — William Tilley decided to spend his lunch hour Wednesday visiting the stock exchange, and he quickly picked up $1,205,000.

But it was in cheques he found on a sidewalk.

Tilley, a 47-year-old city clerical employee, delivered the cheques to a bank which had drawn them. One was for $1,200,000 and the other for $5,000.

His visit to Wall Street netted a profit, however. He got a $25 reward.

Chicago (AP)—Albert Goudvis was on a train bound for St. Louis Wednesday when he remembered that he left a vest in a Chicago hotel room.

Goudvis got off the train and went back to the hotel. The vest had been turned in at the desk by a hotel room inspector.

The vest contained $45,000 in diamonds in concealed pockets, Goudvis said.

Goudvis, a diamond importer and cutter, gave the inspector a $5 reward and left again for St. Louis.

Danville, Va., (AP)—The Danville and Western Railway has found one way of making ends meet on the unprofitable passenger run between Leaksville, N.C., and Leaksville Junction.

Thet ravellers ride in a caboose.

Walter P'pry, President of the short line, said it didn't seem economically sound to operate a day coach any longer, considering that on a busy day there were seldom more than five passengers aboard for the eight-mile run. The fare was 10 cents and total passenger revenue between the two points ran to slightly under -10; hardly enough to cover ice for the water cooler.

The passengers still pay a dime for the caboose ride.

Nanking (AP)—The men had the last word Wednesday on a woman's legislator's proposed marriage reform bill.

It was "no."

Chu Ku-Yuen, male legislator, objected particularly to Yu Ju-Chow's suggestion to forbid men from marrying women 10 years younger.

"Love," he said, "will refuse to recognize those bounds."

MEMBERS ATTACK

With the measure temporarily side-tracked, Mr. Abbott tabled supplementary estimates of $197,067,420 to cover expenditures unforeseen earlier in the session. Main amounts will go to the health and veterans departments to cover health grants to the provinces and pension increases to veterans.

Douglass Ross (PC-Toronto St. Paul's) urged that Canada and the United States place a two-year closed season on duck hunting. He said the duck population is dropping quickly.

Transfer Operation

In early proceedings, members adopted a bill authorizing the return of $317,895 raised by College Officer Training Corps.

Prime Minister Mackenzie King tabled an order-in-council transferring operation of the government telephone and telegraph service from the Public Works Department to the Transport Department.

Trade Minister Howe reiterated that coarse-grain marketing will not be placed under the Canadian Wheat Board until Manitoba and Alberta pass bills supplementary to federal legislation adopted earlier this session. Saskatchewan already has taken this action.

In the Senate, some Senators suggested that the Canadian Prime Minister should be paid $50,000 a year, that there should be a pension scheme for cabinet ministers and that Lieutenant-Governors should have official residences and higher pay.

In the tax debate Mr. Abbott said one section would enable the Treasury Board to take action against wealthy taxpayers who sought to evade taxes. There had been attempts to avoid payment of taxes, one case involving $2,000,000 in taxes. This case involved a Canadian establishing company in Nassau.

Stanley Knowles (CCF-Winnipeg North Centre) pleaded for greater income tax exemptions.

Gave Reason in Budget

Mr. Abbott said none would be more pleased than he to raise the exemptions. But he had given in his budget the reason they could not be lifted. At present, the exemptions were better than those provided in the United States and the United Kingdom.

Gordon Graydon (PC-Peel) and several other opposition members urged that income tax forms for farmers be simplified. Mr. Abbott said the Revenue Department now is working on a simplified form.

John A. Charlton (PC-Brant) said it was a "most extraordinary" thing to ask the farmer to pay taxes at the year-end because he never knew at that time of year whether or not he would get a crop.

J. M. Macdonell (PC-Muskoka-Ontario) and A. L. Smith (PC-Calgary West) urged the government to rescind a section which makes farmers pay tax on oil-well royalties. The members contendedthat a Privy Council ruling made it clear that sale of oil is realization of a capital asset and therefore not subject to tax.

Mr. Abbott said this was a question of policy but he would "see what, if anything, can be done."

A. J. Bradshaw (PC-Perth) moved an amendment which would have enabled mutual insurance companies to establish certain reserves in which the funds would be tax-free. Mr. Abbott said similar requests had come from co-operatives, but he had studied the matter and felt that he could not accede.

Committee chairman, W. H. Golding (L-Huron-Perth) said that in any event the amendment was out of order, because it would upset the balance of the government's revenue.

FATHER AND CHILD KILLED AS TRUCK OVERTURNS

Rawdon, Que., June 24 — (CP) — AA father and his daughter were killed Wednesday night when the truck in which they were riding overturned near this resort centre 45 miles north of Montreal. Dead are Leonard Cote 35, of Ville St. Michel and his four-year-old daughter Nicolle.

Airman Became Bullfighter, Had Dream of Fortune

Mexico City, June 24 —(CP)— Twenty-three-year-old Raymond Dube, who traded an R.C.A.F. uniform for the sword and cape of a bullfighter, today is dead of an overdose of sleeping pills.

Dube, who dreamt of fame and fortune through the Mexican bull rings, was discovered Wednesday by his pretty, 20-year-old widow, a great grand-daughter of a French countess. A vial, nearly emptied of sleeping tablets, was found by his side.

Believed to be the first Canadian to have defied the black bulls of Mexico, he was a native of Eastview in suburban Ottawa, where his mother still resides.

Former member of an R.C.A.F. ground crew, Dube came to Mexico in 1945, and was considered one of the greatest book salesmen in the country. He sold the Encyclopedia Britannica for the last two years and some months averaged as much as $1,000 in 30 days.

But Dube loved bullfighting. He confided to friends that while he was prospering in the book trade, he loved "the strangeness, the excitement" of the bull ring. As a matador he would rise to fame and wealth and then he would achieve his dream of returning to Canada and establishing a carpet factory.

An immediate hit, Dube made a tour of the northern centres of Mexico. In a matter of months he came back to Mexico City with nearly $2, 000 but his bride found him aching with tiredness. He became progressively more depressed.

Yesterday as his wife went out to do her daily shopping with her year-old daughter, Mrs. Dube saw her husband throw himself across his bed and cry he wanted "sleep everlasting."

When she returned she found him dead and the sleeping tablets nearby.

CORN HIGH AS ELEPHANT' EYE

Fort Erie, June 24 — (CP) — Those cornstalks as high as an elephant's eye had nothing on the rye stems in Roy Perry's field near here. Average height of the rye is eight feet two inches—and it's still growing.

1,286 Will Attend Liberal Convention

Ottawa — (CP) — The 1,286 delegates to the August national convention of the Liberal party will represent 10 fewer ridings than actually exist.

Convention officials decided to stick with the old parliamentary divisions — 241 single-member constituencies and two double constituencies — which elected 245 members of parliament in 1945. Since then redistribution has increased the number of single-member ridings to 251, with Halifax and Queens (P.E.I.) still electing two members each.

Selection of delegates will require a party convention in each constituency, and some have already been held. The same machinery will be used to select delegates as is used in selecting party candidates for an election.

Each single-member riding will name three delegates and Halifax and Queens six each. That will provide 735 of the 1,286 persons entitled to vote at the national convention. The others will be:

Liberal senators	64
Liberal members of parliament	126
Liberal candidates defeated in 1945	119
Leaders of provincial Liberal parties	9
Presidents of national Liberal bodies	3
Presidents of provincial associations	9
Three officers each from:
Provincial Young Liberal Associations	27
Provincial Women's Liberal Associations	27
University Liberal Clubs	45
Members of Provincial Legislatures and candidates	122

The successful and defeated Liberal candidates in the last general provincial election in each province, select their own delegates to the convention one for every four provincial constituencies.

Fire Situation Under Control In North Quebec

Val d'Or, Que., June 24. (CP) —Rain which started at 5 a.m., today brought the fire situation under control in North Western Quebec.

Blazes which started in three townships had assumed nastly but not serious proportions by Tuesday, J. A. Tremblay, Quebec Land and Forest Fire Inspection in the Val d'Or area, said today.

"But," he added, "the fires are under control and should be out pretty soon."

The most threatening fire was near the Mont Laurier Highway which links Val d'Or with Montreal, about 25 miles east of Val d'Or. Here the fire was burning in area two miles long by a quarter mile deep. One section was along the highway. The rest was about a half mile in from the highway.

In Senneville Township, where fires and dense smoke could be seen from Val d'Or, 12 miles distant, 100 settlers were fighting the fires yesterday. These also are now under control.

Simple Contours, Lively Colors In Hats for Fall

New York, June 24 — (CP) — It may be June to the average citizen but it's fall to the fashion designers.

The first of the fall fashion previews was held Wednesday at a fashionable hotel by 15 leading New York milliners. Each of the "name" designers displayed one or two hats. Far from being exclusive, each hat was offered to manufacturers for copying. Each was in the popular-price bracket —from $2 to $15.

Basically, simple contours and lively color combinations were the highlight. Crowns were head-hugging and brims moderate.

John Frederics came out with a Robin Hood hat in moss-green beaver with a double brim and a traditional feather. Another of his designs was a small, black felt in matador silhouette, with a tall, curled quill in front.

Laddie Northridge's peacock blue felt roller with a cocoa-brown double brim and a blue bird trim drew sighs of admiration.

Chanda's contribution to the show was two trapunto-stitched wool fezzes, "pigtail" draped under the chin and across one shoulder.

Berets were much in evidence. One by Mme. Reine was a cleverly-manipulated cocoa felt, with a cord running across the top and tied under the chin. It sported pompoms and a quill.

SEVEN-LEAF CLOVERS

Prince George, B.C. — (CP) — Four leaf clovers are fairly common here and Mrs. C. Gierhartz discovered some with five, six and seven leaves on the banks of the Nechako River.

Prices Committee Hammering Out Report for House

Ottawa, June 24 — (CP)—The prices committee today will spend hours behind the closed doors of an oval - shaped room in the Commons hammering out its report to parliament.

Their present schedule calls for completion of the report by tonight and its presentation to parliament Friday.

As a basis for discussion, the committee will use a lengthy draft report largely written by Vice-Chairman Ralph Maybank (L — Winnipeg South Centre). As chairman of a small drafting committee, Mr. Maybank took over a resume and analysis of the group's public hearings which have lasted since last Feb. 10.

Government members say they expect lively debate when the draft is placed before the full committee, with a strong fight by C. C. F. members to have included at least some of their ideas.

The C. C. F. members — W. R. Thatcher (CCF — Moose Jaw) and William Irvine (CCF—Cariboo) — would like to recommend subsidies on food, reimposition of the excess profits tax on a less severe scale than during the war and redrafting of the Combines Act "to give it teeth."

Mr. Maybank's draft is known to contain, among other things, a recommendation that prices should be kept under "continuing scrutiny."

The committee not only consists of a majority of Liberals but includes two cabinet ministers—Fisheries Minister Mayhew and Health Minister Martin. The health minister, as chairman must sign the report.

Four Former Champions Out Of Golf Tourney

Toronto, June 24 (CP)— Four former champions today are out of the Ontario Amateur Golf Tournament following the 18-hole medal play opening round.

Defending champion Rudy Horvath of Windsor Beach Grove shot a one-under-par 69 Wednesday to lead the 32 players into today's two match-play rounds. The field will be cut to eight on today's matches on the Rosedale Golf Club layout with quarter and semi-final tilts scheduled for tomorrow. The two finalists battle over a 36-hole distance Saturday.

Dr. M. J. (Mac) Gibson fired a par 70 over the course that once had him as an assistant professional. In third place with a 71 was the several-time club champion, Rod Phelan.

Canada's junior champion, Gerry Kesselring of Kitchener Rockway, shot a 72 for fourth. Paul Paletti and Phil Farley, both of Toronto Scarboro, were tied for fifth with 73s.

Horvath and Farley are the only former champions to succeed on the tricky,rolling course. The four who failed to qualify are Jack Nash, London Hunt, J. G. Adams, Toronto Scarboro, Bruce Bradley, Oshawa, and Jim Boeckh Toronto Lambton.

More fortunate were two pairs of brothers: Al and Mike Cassidy of Toronto and Bill and Dave Morland of North Bay.

Al, who had the best pre-tournament practice round of 66, shot a 76. Mike went one better with a 75. The third member of the golfing Cassidy brothers, Elmer, landed in the consolation flight with a 79.

Bill Morland put together scores of 39 and 37 for a 76. Brother Dave went well on the outgoing nine with a one-over-par 36 but came back in 41 for a score of 77.

In today's first round matches, Horvath meets Peter Heenan of Toronto St. George's, who had a 76 yesterday. Gibson tackles G. Tarasick of Windsor Roseland, whose round yesterday was a 75. Phelan meets Al Cassidy.

Egyptian Army Broke Truce, Charged by Israel

U.N. Plane Hit 15 Times But U.S. Pilot Escapes

Tel Aviv, Israel, June 25 (AP) — Israel today charged the Egyptian army with breaking the United Nations truce by bombing two Jewish settlements and halting a food convoy to the Southern Negeb.

The Rhodes headquarters of Count Folke Bernadotte, U. N. mediator, said Egyptian fighter aircraft had attacked a United Nations plane in Palestine. Fifteen hits were registered but the American pilot escaped injury, the announcement added.

The Israeli government said the Egyptian planes bombed Beer Tuvya and Kefar Warburg near the coast midway between Tel Aviv and Gaza. No details were given.

Irgun Zvai Leumi, dissident underground group, disappeared from the mid-city building in Tel Aviv which has been its headquarters. Blue and white armbands which publicly denoted Irgun members disappeared as the organization returned to its underground status. Three Irgun fighters were reported killed in clashes with Israeli troops.

Irgun broadcast an announcement Thursday that the group has ceased to exist as an armed force within Israel and will continue only as an unarmed political group. Irgun commander Menachem Beigin announced Wednesday that the group was withdrawing its "recognition" of the government.

Classed as Treason

A new law forbids any armed force outside the army and classes disobediency to civil law as treason.

Under this law Israeli troops have been rounding up scores of Irgunists who had remained in their frontline positions with the army.

The government won a 24 to 7 vote of confidence over the Irgun crisis from Israel's provisional parliament. There were six abstentions.

Two cabinet ministers resigned Wednesday, in protest against a Hagana Army attack on an Irgun munitions ship in Tel Aviv harbor Tuesday.

Count Folke Bernadotte's headquarters in Rhodes announced Thursday night that the United Nations mediator and his staff were "actively engaged" in outlining proposals for Arab-Jewish peace in Palestine. The third week of a four-week U. N. armistice started today.

Utmost Decorum In Beauty Contest Director Declares

Atlantic City, N.J., June 25 — (CP)—Leonare Slaughter, Director of the Miss America pageant, said Thursday the beauty contest "is conducted with the utmost decorum and is neither immoral nor indecent."

Miss Slaughter said Catholic Bishop John J. Swint of Wheeling, W. Va., is in error if he believes beauty contests sponsored throughout the country by the pageant are "based any longer on a girl's figure." Bishop Swint said Wednesday night he would excommunicate any Roman Catholic girl of the Wheeling diocese who took part in a beauty contest.

Several Clergy Brand Beauty Contests as Pagan

Hamilton, June 25 (CP)—Several local clergymen joined an American bishop today in branding beauty contests "totally pagan," "absolutely immoral," "immodest", or "the means of prostituting beauty to base purposes." S. R. Weaver, executive director of the Miss Canada pageant, to be held here in August, took the negative side in the warm debate and said "near nudity can never win a Miss Canada title. Talent and personality have their places in the judging."

His Excellency the Most Rev. J. F. Ryan, D.D., J.C.D., Bishop of Hamilton, made the following comment:

"What today are known as beauty contests, contribute little to uphold in the public mind the Christian ideal of true womanhood. In fact, in many cases, because of abuses, the opposite effect is true. Immodesty, which is not absent from many of these contests, is a vice, and can never be associated with true beauty."

Rev. P. P. W. Ziemann "deplored" the operation of such contests "because there is something cheap and immodest about them, and because they break down the finer things we associate with woman."

Recommends Govt. Consider Removal 25 P.C. Excise Tax On Common Commodities

Ottawa, June 25 (CP)—The prices committee's report to parliament recommends that the government consider removing the special 25-per-cent excise tax on "commodities in common use," The Canadian Press learned today.

It also recommends that the government consider lifting the import restrictions on certain fruits and vegetables.

(Finance Minister Abbott said in the Commons that import restrictions on fresh fruits and vegetables from the United States will be relaxed by the year-end.)

These, an informed source said, are the most important of 14 recommendations contained in the report.

Other recommendations:

1. That a commission under the public inquiries act be established to continue the work of the prices committee.

2. That the government consider amending the companies act to provide for more complete disclosure of information of inventory reserves maintained by firms.

3. That consideration be given to restricting price rises by taking "unreasonable profits."

4. That the present funds at the disposal of the combines investigation commissioner are insufficient, although his activities tend to restrict price rises.

5. That the government consider special legislation which would permit specific action to be taken against firms where evidence discloses "flagrant cases of profiteering."

6. That the government give consideration to a review of rent controls.

7. That in considering the removal of embargoes on the export of foods from Canada the government should also consider the supply position in this country and seek to balance the interests of producers and consumers.

8. That the government instruct the Dominion Bureau of Statistics to prepare and publish an analysis showing the division of the consumers dollar between the various factors making up the selling price of an article.

C.C.F. RETURNS TO POWER IN SASK. BUT MAJORITY CUT

Liberals Make Strong Comeback, Heavy Vote

Regina, June 25 (CP) — The C.C.F. government of Premier T. C. Douglas was returned to office in Saskatchewan Thursday with its majority slashed by a strong Liberal comeback.

The heaviest vote in the province's history poured into polling booths despite cloudy skies and an intermittent drizzle that mired many back country roads.

In 30 of the 50 seats, C.C.F. candidates were re-elected. The Liberals took 13 seats from the government to elect 18 members while one of the four Liberal-Progressive Conservative Candidates was elected.

This was the standing early today, compared to the result of the 1944 general election.

C.C.F.	30	47
Liberals	18	5
Doubtful	1	—
Total	52	52

On the basis of its trend-analysis of early returns, the Canadian Press indicated the return of the government with a reduced majority two hours after the polls closed.

There were an estimated 520,000 eligible voters in the election—10 per cent of them people between 18 and 21 voting for the first time in a Canadian election.

Leaders Suffer Defeat

With 2,925 of 3,206 polls reported, a Canadian Press compilation showed 459,618 people voted and the final total might hit 500,000.

No Social Credit or Progressive-Conservative candidate was elected and the leaders of both parties suffered personal defeat.

In the one doubtful seat — Hanley — C.C.F. candidate Robert Walker, a University of Saskatchewan law student, led Liberal Clayton Pascoe by two votes with one poll to report.

Both 43-year-old Premier Douglas and Liberal leader Walter Tucker won handily. But two cabinet ministers — Resources Minister J. L. Phelps and Welfare Minister O. W. Valleau — lost to Liberal candidates.

Women Prisoners Riot at Mercer, Two Officers Hurt

Toronto June 25 (CP) — Fire hoses, chair legs, cups and saucers were used by prisoners of the Mercer Reformatory for women today in a riot in which two policemen were injured.

Seventy six police were called to the King Street Institution when about half of the 159 prisoners went on a combined hunger-sit-down strike in the dining hall.

In the fracas Detective-Sgt. Samuel Welsford suffered a broken wrist when struck with a table leg. A flying saucer cut a gash in the head of Det.-Sgt. Arthur Keay which required 7 stitches.

Miss Jean Milne, superintendent of the reformatory, was bitten on the arm.

Police say the women struck in protest against solitary confinement of another prisoner Thursday.

The trouble started in the dining hall at breakfast time, the women refused to eat, and would not leave when urged by guards.

The situation got out of hand shortly after nine o'clock when the prisoners began breaking cups and saucers and beating pots and pans as a mark of their displeasure.

City and Provincial Police were summonded and responded in 11 patrol cars.

Six detectives were the first to enter the dining hall. They were met with a barrage of plates cups and saucers.

One detective described the ensuing fight as "worse than any staged by men in my experience."

"The women came at us like wildcats," another detective said.

"They turned fire hoses on us and screamed at the top of their voices. Their language was none too clean. Several of them charged us and came to grips.

"Meanwhile three or four of them were beating down a rear door with table legs. They almost had it open before we gained control. The door led to the street."

WAR ASSETS SALES

Ottawa, June 25 — (CP)—Canada's obsolete war equipment, sold through War Assets Corporation on the open market, has netted the country $434,100,000 so far, it was authoritatively learned Thursday. Second World War ships were the biggest money makers.

Berlin in Jitters, Flooded With Rumors, Speculations; Situation Delicate--Bevin

By NORMAN CRIBBENS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Berlin (CP)—Berlin today is a city of jitters. No one knows what the score is.

The question uppermost in German minds is: How long can the three western Allies stay in Berlin.

Since it was conquered and carved into four slices by the occupying forces, this tattered, bomb-torn city has been fought over by east and west as an old shoe is fought over by puppies.

Creaking under the weight of the cumbersome and quadripartite administration, it is flooded from morning till night with the wildest rumors and speculations.

Typical of the way in which rumors flourish was the general acceptance of a report, later denied, that the Russians had blocked the 10-mile-wide air corridor which now is the only travel link between the western occupation zones and Berlin. One London-bound plane was delayed for five hours while airline officials checked a false report that there were Russian barrage balloons in the corridor.

The period of tension which started when Marshal Vassily Sokolovsky, Russian commander, walked out of the Allied Control Council last March reached a climax with the Gatow air disaster in April. In this incident a Russian fighter collided with a British transport plane and 14 persons were killed.

Berliners, receiving different orders from two quarrelling masters, have been left in a state of bewilderment. The Russians told them: "You must use nothing but our Soviet marks." The western Allies said: "Only our new marks will be recognized in the British, American and French sectors of Berlin."

To the average Berliner it now is inconceivable that the western Allies can stay here much longer. Knowing that the lifelines of Berlin run across the Russian zone, Berliners ask: "What can you do if they are closed altogether?"

Russian Orders on Food

Berlin (AP)—The Russians today ordered that no more food from their zone be sent into the western-occupied sectors of Berlin.

They stopped traffic Thursday on the single railroad line supplying those sectors with food from the western occupation zones.

The blockade left air the only way to get food in to the 2,000,000 inhabitants of the British, American, and French sectors.

British and American authorities said a month's food stocks are on hand in the western sectors and nobody will starve.

The people remained outwardly calm in the face of efforts of the Soviet-controlled press to spread fear of hunger and unemployment and a Russian threat to keep the rail freight tieup on indefinitely.

By their action the Russians withdrew from the four-power food pool which for nearly three years has been feeding Berlin.

Each occupying power has been contirbuting to this pool, administered by the Allied Kommandatura and the city government.

The western supplies have to come in from the western occupation zones. They can't come in so long as the rail line is blocked.

In the British, American and French sectors, Germans began

WOULD DESTROY ANY INVASION SAYS CLAXTON

Claims Canada Must Keep Defences Alert

Ottawa, June 25 (CP)—Defence Minister Claxton told the Commons Thursday that Canada must keep her defences alert because of Russia's aggressiveness. He predicted, however, that should the Soviet attempt a large scale attack on this country the invasion would be destroyed "within a short time".

"The probability. . . of any such attack is so slight at present that it is something that hardly needs being considered in the realm of active possibility," said Mr. Claxton.

He bluntly told members that Canada considers Russia the only possible aggressor at the moment.

"The only way the Soviet Union can attack Canada is by sea or by air," he said.

Since the Soviet had no large fleet, air seemed the more likely method of attack. A sea offensive against Alaska could be dealt with by the Americans.

The number of Russian four-engine planes is not known, but he doubted if the Soviet has more than 1,000, enough to carry a division of about 15,000 men one way.

Would Lose All

"I suggest that you have to consider the possible strategic benefits that might result from an attack of that kind," he said. "I suggest that the only strategic results would be that the Soviet Union would lose the 1,000 planes they had sent over. . .and they would lose the men they had landed."

The planes which were not forced down could possibly be intercepted and destroyed by the R.C.A.F.

Despite the unlikelihood of any such Russian attack, Canadian defence authorities are studying "possibilities, probabilities and plans" on the "assumption that war might take place at dates ranging from the present time on into the indefinite future."

He said Canada's three regular forces will be recruited beyond the current target of 42,000.

The Minister's statement brought immediate opposition reaction and among participants in the debate were Maj.-Gen. G. R. Pearkes V.C., (PC-Naaimo), Angus MacInnis (CCF-Vancouver East), John Blackmore ((SC-Lethbridge), Wing Cmdr. Lawrence Skey (PC-Toronto Trinity), Maj. E. D. Fulton (PC-Kamloops) and Clarie Gillis (CCF-Cape Breton South).

Gen. Pearkes, a veteran of the two world wars, said Canada's forces would be "impotent" if they were called to defend the country against a "sudden" attack. He stressed the need for training of civilians and for an up-to-date air force.

Leslie Davidson Will be Hanged Five Days Hence

Toronto, June 25 (CP)—Leslie Davidson, sentenced to be hanged five days hence for the murder of Margaret (Mickey) Meredith, was reported today to be "cheerful and bright" in his death cell here.

Working on a hymn he is composing, his request for a violin was refused when it was believed he might try to hang himself.

Davidson has changed his spiritual adviser from Rev. R. Gunter of Kinburn to Major A. B. McMillan of the Salvation Army because Mr. Gunter could not be with him as often as he wished.

Mrs. Meredith was shot in a downtown restaurant here before horrified patrons after Davidson accused her of sharing her affections with another man. He was arrested later in a Toronto club as he played "Pretty Mickey", on the piano.

Davidson's father and sister paid their last visits to him earlier this week. His wife visits him regularly.

N.Y. Governor Selects Californian As Running Mate

Dewey Unanimous Choice Of Delegates on Third Ballot

Philadelphia, June 25. (CP) —Thomas E. Dewey and Earl Warren were teamed today to contest the United States presidency and vice-presidency election this year for the Republican Party.

Governor Dewey of New York, was nominated unanimously last night by the Party's 24th National Convention. His nomination came on the third ballot.

The New York Governor today selected Warren, Governor of California, his choice to run as vice president and the convention gave Warren that post by acclamation. No other name was presented for the job.

Arizona gave notice of nominating Harold Stassen but a few minutes later withdrew it.

Chairman Joseph Martin put Warren's name before the convention and declared him nominated by acclamation.

Thursday night the 46-year-old Dewey was given the unanimous nomination of the Republican National convention on a third ballot which was merely an opportunity for 1,094 delegates from 48 States and three territories to make it unanimous.

Meantime, the word was out that rampant Deweyites—happy over wrecking a 90-year-old tradition of never having renominated a loser—were toying with the idea of making it double or nothing.

The double—if this came to pass—would be Senator John W. Bricker of Ohio as the vice-presidential nominee. Bricker ran with Dewey in the 1944 Republican debacle in which Franklin D. Roosevelt won his fourth term.

The nothing would be a defeat in the November National elections by the Democrats.

It was up to Dewey to decide whether he wished to duplicate that ticket. The Dewey strategists huddled Thursday night and early today without any clear indications of their intentions beyond the belief they want everything settled on one ballot when the convention meets for its final session at 10:30 a.m. EDT today.

Representatives Charles A. Halleck of Indiana, one of those mentioned as a Dewey running mate, arrived at Dewey headquarters shortly after 4 a.m. EDT today.

But his name was only one of several. Others included Governor Dwight Green of Illinois and Harold E. Stassen.

Indiana Goes to Dewey

There was some talk also of Senators Homer Ferguson of Michigan and William Knowland of California.

Halleck tossed Indiana's 29 votes into the Dewey pot Thursday when a lot of delegates weren't quite sure that the New York Governor could make the 548 vote grade for the nomination.

The final clinching break for Dewey apparently came after the kleig-lighted, sweating convention had recessed after a second ballot which showed these important results:

Dewey 515, only 33 short of the nomination.

Senator Taft, the nearest contender, 274.

Stassen, 149.

(First ballot results were: Dewey 434, Taft 224, Stassen 157, Vandenberg 62 and others).

Almost everybody in the closely packed hall knew it was all over.

In a dramatic surrender by his six opponents the Dewey nomination was made unanimous after the second ballot.

The climax — or anti climax— came close on the heels of a series of confident reports that opponents were engineering a coup to keep him out of the running.

In 1944, at the Chicago convention, Dewey was nominated on the first ballot. He went out to meet "The Champ" — Franklin Roosevelt and lost.

This time, his jubilant supporters rejoice, he is not meeting "The Champ" but likely his opponent will be President Harry Truman who succeeded to the office when Roosevelt died in April 1945 and whose logical supporters are badly divided and uncertain as to their choice.

Philadelphia, June 25 (AP)— Comebacks are nothing new for Thomas Edmund Dewey, first unsuccessful Republican candidate for President ever to be renominated.

The career of the 46-year-old New York Governor has been marked by "try, try, again" victories.

Ten years ago, after Dewey had risen to fame as Manhattan's racket-busting district attorney, the Republican party nominated him for Governor. He lost the election to Democratic Governor Herbert Lehman on that first try.

Two years later, in 1940, Dewey went after the Republican presidential nomination. Darkhorse Wendell W. Willkie beat him.

Republicans gave Dewey another crack at the governship in 1942. This time he made it, defeating State Attorney-General John Bennett, the Democratic nominee.

Although Dewey never announced he was a presidential candidate, he was nominated virtually by acclamation at Chicago in 1944.

Failed to Stop Roosevelt

He failed to stop President Roosevelt's wartime re-election for a fourth term, but he polled the second largest number of popular votes of any Republican presidential candidate in United States history—22,006,285 against Willkie's 22,304,755 in 1940.

His party renominated him for Governor in 1946, and he was reelected by a record majority of 687,000 over Senator James M. Mead, Democrat.

Dewey's roots, personal and political, are in the middle west. He was born in Owosso, Mich., March 24, 1902.

His father, the late George Dewey, edited the Owosso weekly newspaper.

On Sundays, Dewey sang in the Episcopal Church choir. His baritone gained him state-wide notice while he was attending the University of Michigan and led to his marriage in 1928 to Francis Eileen Hutt of Sapulpa, Okla.

The Deweys have two children, Tom Jr., 15, and John, 12.

"Y" To Operate City Playgrounds

The Y.M.C.A. is co-operating with the Board of Education in the operation of the playgrounds on the East Hill at Bridge and Bleecker Streets and on the West Hill on Octavia Street during the summer months commencing July 1. Drummond C. McDonald, Boys' and Young Adult program secretary will be the supervisor and he will have assisting him a staff of college trained men and women experienced in recreational leadership and having a knowledge of the needs and interests of children and older boys and girls not only for physical growth but for social and character development. The General Secretary, Alfred J. Davis, has spent considerable time in the selection of the leadership, seeking out those possessing emotional maturity as well as a variety of skills. According to the comment of John W. Deacon, president of the Y.M.C.A. no source for personnel has been overlooked so that persons could be secured who had initiative, were versatile and had an understanding of children and how to work with them, as well as possessing skills in such areas as games, music, nature lore, dramatic and crafts.

The playgrounds will be supervised between the hours of 9 a.m. and 5 p.m. daily except Sunday and will be primarily for the use of children between the ages of 8 and 16 years. It is expected that younger children will be accompanied by a guardian.

Playgrounds will be used by leagues in the evening, permits for which will be issued direct to responsible parties.

A meeting of the East Hill parents, members of Home and School Clubs and other interested persons will be held at the Y.M.C.A. Monday June 28 at 8 p.m. A similar meeting for West Hill persons will be held on Tuesday June 29th at 8 p.m. It is expected that advisory committees in each of the areas will be formed. The general public will be welcome at these meetings.

Desranleau Admits Guilt On Three Charges

Pleading guilty to three separate charges of being in possession of a stolen auto; to a charge of careless driving and to leaving the scene of an accident, 20-year-old Bernard Desranleau, formerly of Stanbridge, Que., was remanded until Tuesday for sentence when he appeared in city police court today.

On June 16th, Desranleau was involved in an accident at the corner of Front and Bridge Street while driving a car bearing a Vermont licence number. He left the scene of the accident and drove to Prince Edward County where he hid out during the night and was apprehended the following noon as he was about to leave the county at the Carrying Place bridge.

Inspector's Evidence

Summary evidence was given by Inspector C. Hayes who investigated the matter, while Provincial Constable J. Ernest Keays acted as interpreter for the accused.

Frankly admitting to the court that he did not believe the story told by the accused as to how he got possession of the auto, Inspector Hayes stated the youth had told him that he had worked in Ameliasburg township for several weeks and had gone to St. Johns, Que., where he had met a man named MacDonald with whom he had served a prison term.

The two men had driven back to Belleville with the Vermont car which, according to the accused, MacDonald had admitted, was stolen. The car had been left with Desranleau while MacDonald had visited Toronto.

Owner of the car, Wilfred Rainsville of Franklin, Vermont, whose farm borders the Vermont-Quebec border, was present in court and stated he had left the key in the ignition when he had left the car at his farm home on June 13th. In the morning it was missing. E. A. Alexander of the Vermont State Police told of the car being reported stolen.

Crown Attorney B. C. Donnan read the accused's fingerprint record which showed conviction on two charges of attempted theft of autos. Request of the Crown for remand until Tuesday for sentence was granted by Magistrate T. Y. Wills.

It is understood that a special meeting of the Consolidated Board will be held on Saturday night to discuss the question.

Harry Harrison, chairman of the County High School Area and Reeve S. A. McCarey both spoke. The area plan was then discussed by all ratepayers present.

Hundreds Pay Visit at Official Opening of Modernistic Garage Of J. J. Trudeau Motor Sales

Belleville and district residents numbering into the hundreds, Thursday evening were privileged to get their first close-up view of the modernistic garage and automotive service equipment when they attended the official opening of Trudeau Motors Ltd. new garage on Station St.

Members of City Council together with ranking officials of Trudeau Motors Ltd. suppliers were on hand to congratulate J. J. Trudeau on the construction of his two modern garages, while the visitors roamed at will admiring sparkling new automobiles and marvelling at the spaciousness of garage appointments and inspecting service equipment and farm machinery.

For one half hour opening ceremonies were broadcast over station CJBQ with the president of the firm "Jack" Trudeau, officially opening the Belleville garage, as well as the firm's new establishment at Napanee.

Mr. Trudeau expressed his appreciation to the various members of his staff who had made the opening possible and stated that the construction of the new garage had resulted from the firm's policy of providing the finest type of auto service possible. "This policy of fine service will be strictly adhered to in the future," he said.

Represents Mayor

Alderman Mark Vanner, representing Mayor D. L. Storey, expressed congratulations to Mr. Trudeau on the erection of his fine garage and wished the firm many years of successful operation.

Officials of Chrysler Corporation, including J. C. McGuire, general sales manager, and regional sales managers P. J. Conley and Gordon Lee, were on hand to offer congratulations, as was A.S. Dodd, representing Allis Chalmers, and E. Hatton of Dunlop Tire and Rubber company.

Others offering congratulations to Mr. Trudeau included A.D. MacLean, local manager of Imperial Oil; and Howard D. Moore and Don Switzer of the Automobile Dealers' Association of Ontario.

Several Films Shown

Included in the official opening program was the showing of several moving pictures by Trudeau Motors Ltd., supplier, while soft drinks and sandwiches were served to the visitors.

As for the building itself the visitors saw modernistically appointed showroom, adequately lighted with fluorescent lighting throughout. They saw a service department which can accommodate the largest vehicles on the highway. Front and side entrances permit vehicles to drive completely through the building.

The lubrication department also has facilities for servicing the largest transports. Autos and light trucks are hoisted by hydraulic hoists, while the greasing pit will accommodate the largest trucks, buses or transports.

Council Requests P.U.C. to Submit Construction Plans

Members of city council at their regular committee meeting Thursday evening recommended that the Public Utilities Commission in future submit plans to the city for all proposed construction and ruled there be no digging of placement poles unless under the supervision of the city engineer.

Monday evening will be the last council meeting before the summer recess which will extend to September 2nd. The Mayor was authorized, however, to call special meetings should an emergency arise.

Henry Street from Coleman to Octavia Streets was designated as a through thoroughfare with Everett, Cedar and Murney Street to be designated as "stop" streets at the Henry Street intersection. Appropriate stop signs will be erected. Several near accidents have been narrowly averted at the above intersections and residents of the area asked that something be done.

Tender Accepted

The Foley Foundry and Machine Company tender was accepted for the supply of catch basin and manhole covers, their tender being the lowest received. Hotels and restaurants will be charged $1 per week for additional garbage collection service to commence on July 1st. Harry Smith was given the contract to supply 100 tons of stoker coal to the city buildings at $14.50 and 30 tons to the fire station at $19.30. This was the lowest tender.

Council recommended that the Public Utilities be informed on the city's intention to remove the boulevard on Dundas East, between Front and Pinnacle Street, and also that on the south side of Victoria Avenue between Front and Pinnacle.

Several city owned lots were recommended sold, among them lots 29-30 E/S Wallbridge Road and north of Harriett Street to Belleville Builders Agencies for the erection of a carpentry shop. A new Underwood typewriter was authorized purchased for the city.

Freedom for Men Everywhere Dewey's Slogan

Philadelphia, June 25 (AP) — Thomas E. Dewey solemnly set a goal of freedom for men everywhere in accepting the Republican presidential nomination Thursday night.

"As long as the world is half free, we must peacefully labor to help men everywhere achieve liberty," he told cheering Rpublican National convention delegates who had just nominated him unanimously.

"Aabove all other purposes," he said, "we must labor by every peaceful means to build a world order founded upon justice and righteousness. That kind of a world will have peace. That kind of peace will be worth having."

World freedom and an appeal for unity to help achieve it were the two central themes of the New York Governor's 15-minute acceptance speech.

"We have found the means to blow our world, physically, apart. Spiritually we have yet to find the means to put together the world's broken pieces, to bind up its wounds, to make a good society, a community of men of good will that fits our dreams."

Later, addressing a crowd from the balcony of his hotel, Dewey promised:

Try to Pick Out Kiwanian Hats

Kiwanians will on Monday and continue until Wednesday night celebrating the 25th anniversary of the founding of the club in this city. A committee, headed by Frank Domenico, has been busy for weeks preparing an appropriate program for the occasion and the members of the club and their wives are going to have a swell time. Everything has been arranged for the staging of a sports day, "A Stag," "A Ladies' Night" and other events.

A number of ten gallon hats from the sunny south have appeared on heads of Kiwanians in this city and these hats have been donated by clubs in the United States as a gesture of goodwill and friendship. The committee thought it would be a good idea to have a little competition with respect to these hats and here is the scheme.

Four Kiwanians will be wearing a hat with the name of the donor on it Saturday and the first person to identify that hat and approach the wearer will get himself a case of coca-cola, donated by Kiwanian Aubrey Coe of the Coca-Cola Ltd. The wearer of the special hat will have with him a form and the identifier's name will be taken and given a voucher to proceed to the plant to pick up his case.

The particular hats being used on Saturday are from Nampa Idaho, Fort Worth Texas, Buffalo Wyoming and Sheridan Texas. When you spot one of these hats just step up to the wearer and if you are the first one to spot it everything will be taken care of by the wearer. This feature will be carried out during the four days of the celebration and four hats being used each day. Of course the Kiwanians, their families and members of the press are excluded in the competition.

Widespread Praise Reflected In Press Comment

(By The Associated Press)

Widespread praise for Governor Thomas E. Dewey as the Republican party's presidential nominee is reflected today in a cross-section of editorial comment by the press of the United States, but a number of newspapers are critical of the candidate and of the make-up of his party.

The New York Times praises Dewey as twice-elected Governor of New York and terms him "highly successful in this great office."

The Los Angeles Times says of Dewey: "They selected an exceedingly well-favored applicant for the office from a field that was rich in suitable presidential material." . . .

Other comment:

The Chicago Tribune: "The international bankers have taken the Republican party for the 3rd time . . . Truman (is) to be opposed by one of the Roosevelt set-ups who carried only twelve states four years ago."

The Cleveland Plain Dealer:—"This newspaper will support the Dewey candidacy in November... We are, however, not unmindful of the unsatisfactory campaign Dewey made in 1944 and of his disposition to fudge on matters of domestic policy."

The New York Herald Tribune: "The Republicans have chosen... an administrator whose reputation for the clean, honest and efficient conduct of public affairs has been earned and tested through two terms as Governor of the nation's largest state . . . the Republican party has a presidential candidate who can win in November."

The Chicago Sun-Times, referring to Col. Robert R.McCormick, publisher of the Chicago Tribune:

"Taking platform and nominee together, it is clear that the forces of McCormick isolationism have suffered a disastrous defeat . . . the main lines of this country's course in world affairs may be regarded as ratified by the Republican convention. Yet it cannot be said that in this historic departure from the pattern of 1920 the Republican party has lifted to leadership new men and new ideas."

Tweed

Miniature Tornado Visits District, Barn Destroyed

Tweed — On Wednesday evening evening and again on Thursday afternoon Tweed was visited by a miniature tornado when a driving rain was accompanied by thunder and lightning. The rain fell in torrents and the streets were full of water when the catch basins became plugged following the deluge. The power was off for more than an hour Wednesday evening.

A barn on the farm of Ross Robinson east of Thomasburg was destroyed at 5.30 p.m. Wednesday when it was struck by lightning. The flames spread so rapidly that it was impossible to remove a quantity of farm implements and machinery.

Fortunately, there was no livestock in the barn at the time. It is undedstood that the loss is partly covered by insurance.

Tweed — Rev. F. F. Downing of Redditt, Ont., who succeeds Rev. W.J. Robinson as rector of St. James Anglican Church, arrived in Tweed last week with Mrs. Downing and their young daughter and had charge of the services last Sunday. Mr. Downing will also have charge of the churches at Hungerford and Flinton. He served in the air force during the war and was ordained about two years ago.

Popular S. A. Captain Receives Transfer To Picton

Tweed — Capt. and Mrs. John Morrison who have been in charge of the Tweed Corps of the Salvation Army for the past year, have received notice of their transfer to Picton. Capt. Morrison will succeed Major and Mrs. Ritchie who go to the Rowntree Corps in Toronto. Captain Irene Jones of the Bain Avenue Corps in Toronto, comes to Tweed and will take up residence here next week. One of the Lieutenants to graduate from the Salvation Army Staff College in Toronto next Monday, will probably be appointed to assist Captain Jones in Tweed. Capt. Morrison and his wife have been popular residents of Tweed during their stay and the best wishes of all citizens go with them to their new post.

Philadelphia Spotlight

By CLYDE BLACKBURN
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Philadelphia, June 25 — (CP) — Republicans have promised the people everything good that human hearts could desire, apparently unconcerned over the fact that come next Nov. 2 they may be called upon to deliver the goods.

These promises are contained in the platform adopted without a murmer at the national convention this week and in the oratory that has echoed through Convention Hall all week.

Nobody got up in the Convention Hall to remind the Republican orators and platform authors that they have held control over Congress since January, 1947.

In that period the party could have enacted every measure they now are promising the people for their welfare, security and social and economic betterment.

But the Democrats, who come here next July 12 to put on the same kind of a show — and probably nominate President Harry Truman as their candidate — will have that kind of criticism.

Then the Democrats will adopt the same kind of a platform — sweetness and honesty, fair dealing with all classes and colors, security from the cradle to the grave — and the Republican criticism will start.

Democrats were in power, in full control of Congress and administration, for about 14 years. Why didn't they deliver the goods in that period? the Republicans will ask.

Probably President Truman would be willing to say that he would approve legislative enactment of every plank in the Republican platform as adopted this week.

But Congress has adjourned until the end of the year, leaving a great mass of legislative proposals, much of it approved in the platform, until the 81st Congress convenes in January.

The rest of the year, until Nov. 2, will be for campaigning, not legislating. And after the elections the winning party will run the country the best way it can with an eye to the next elections and satisfying the most while disappointing the fewest.

That is politics as it operates in this country, pretty much as it operates in Canada and, perhaps, the best syste min the world.

Bancroft

Many New Buildings Erected And Renovations Carried Out

Bancroft — The building trade in Bancroft village has soared to high pitch during the early spring and many changes have already taken place in the town and still work is being carried on in other renovations. The Bancroft dairy which has erected a new building on Front Street is nearing completion as the equipment from the former premises is being moved in to the new location as fast as possible.

The food storage plant being erected adjacent to the new dairy is coming along fast and a month's time should see its completion.

McCaw brothers butcher shop and grocery has taken on a new interior look. Recently the store was closed for alterations in which a new concrete floor was laid and the store equipment enlarged to include an electric counter as well as an electric storage refrigerator. The store has also changed into a selfservice plan.

Mr. Wilfred Maxwell who operates the Ford garage at Bancroft has been making extensive changes to his garage by extending his present building at the rear some twenty feet longer. He is also installing rest rooms in his garage proper and is contemplating changing his heating system from wood and fuel oil to steam heating system.

Extensive Alterations

Mr. Ellis Mather who has operated a restaurant business in Bancroft for several years is now making extensive alterations both exterior and interior to the George Brethour building adjacent his present place of business and contemplates opening up an up-to-date restaurant in this new location which he now owns.

Mr. Alex Berger owner and operator of the Bancroft bakery has recently made a vast outward change in his business block by covering the whole building with insul-brick siding which has changed the look of his store and also the store of Mr. Don Wilson vastly. Mr. Berger is also erecting a two-car storage at the rear of his premises which matches up with his store block.

Many New Homes

Mr. Andrews formerly of Maynooth is erecting bungalow home on Highway 28 just at the westerly extremity of the village.

Mr. Jack Milne has already started excavation and form work for a new home on Alice Street.

The business block always known as the Detlor Block and which houses Towle's undertaking parlor and Mitchell's general store has had its outward appearance greatly changed by receiving an overall coat of aluminum on its metal front and the whole trimmed with green.

Mr. Balfour Vader is erecting sleeping cabins on his property at the north end of the village in a picturesque site bordering the York River.

Work is still progressing fast at the new North Hastings High School, much of the finishing work is now being carried out. Most of the plumbing and heating work is completed and the carpenters are now taking over finishing up the class rooms, kitchens, cafeterias and large assembly hall. The school when finished will be a wonderful asset to Bancroft and the surrounding district it will serve.

Hospital Work Progresses

The new hospital is coming along also but work at present is not showing up to a large degree as the heating and electrical work is being done and thus sheeting and finishing work cannot be carried out until that is completed.

Mr. C. W. Bierworth who recently purchased the garage and property of the late Howard Maxwell has made some extensive changes to this property. The old barn which lay at the back of the garage has been torn down and a new modern home has been erected on its foundation.

Mr. George Barker who has erected several homes on the property at the easterly limits of the village has now started another home on highway 62 at the north end of the village.

Mr. Mervin Mitchell is erecting a new home on highway 28 adjacent to the home of Mr. Leslie Mitchell.

RECOMMENDS

9. That the interests of the consumers would not be safeguarded by a return to an overall system of price and other controls but that consideration should be given to the reimposition of certain control measures and "some measure of temporary subsidy" where hardship would otherwise result.

10. That provision be made in the incorporation of companies for a uniform system of business accounting.

11. That increased production is the only permanent answer to the countries price problems.

12. Since constitutional difficulties might arise in a permanent federal interest in prices the cooperation of the provinces should be sought.

Wants Some Knowledge

Mr. MacInnis said that if Canadians were to prepare for an emergency they should be given some knowledge of the extent of the emergency and the direction from which it might come. Meanwhile, Canada must work with other nations for world co-operation.

Mr. Blackmore said he thought Canada's military affairs were in good hands.

On resources estimates, several opposition members urged better treatment of Indians and a relaxation of the health standards of persons coming to this country from displaced persons camps.

On the labor expenditures, Labor Minister Mitchell said that 700,000 persons passed through National Employment Service offices last year.

In the defence debate, Mr. Claxton said the government adheres to a "flexible" defence policy.

He pictured Canada's defence aims as threefold — to be ready to defend herself against sudden direct attack, to have a force schooled and equipped to act as a nucleus for expansion, and to "work out with other free nations plans for joint defence."

85 P. C. Recruited

The forces now are 35,748 or 85 per cent of the authorized recruiting strengths of 42,150.

The stress this year would be on development of the air force.

Work will be accelerated on a jet engine two-seater airplane frame being designed specifically for Canadian needs.

Wing Cmdr. Skey suggested that Canada should urge British and American manufacturers to come here to produce planes for use by all three countries. This would be a move toward standardization of equipment.

Mr. Claxton said he did not think such a move would be economical. What Canada needed was a plane which would meet Canadian needs and work now was being done on such a craft.

Gen. Pearkes said no Canadian should feel he is paying an undue amount towards national defence this year. Defence expenditures were less than the amount the government would pay out in family allowances.

Mr. MacInnis said Canadians could be thankful that the threat to peace was not of their own making. But it was difficult for Canada to prepare for the emergency without adding to the emergency.

Maj. Fulton, a veteran of the Second World War, said Canada cannot afford to keep a strong permanent army and urged that the stress be placed on the training of reserves.

If adequately trained, said Maj. Fulton, Canada could deter an aggressive Russia.

Mr. Claxton said "it is only common sense" that a nation of 12,000,000 people could not stand up against the manpower and other resources of the U.S.S.R.

trading their money for the new Deutsche mark, which was put in competition here with the eastern German money the Russians introduced Thursday.

Germans Not Intimidated

London (AP)—Foreign Secretary Bevin told the Commons today that a "delicate state of affairs" exists in Russian-blockaded Berlin.

He said the Russian embargo on road and rail shipments from the west, and interrupted power service in the city, have resulted in a serious situation.

But, he added, Berlin inhabitants are displaying great calmness and are showing no sign of being intimidated. He said the British commander in Berlin reported sufficient food stocks on hand to "render any immediate anxiety unnecessary."

To a question whether Britain intends to stay permanently in Berlin, he said he would add nothing to a speech made some days ago when he said British occupation forces will remain in Berlin "whatever provocation there may be."

Sullivan, C.S.U. Organizer, Given Two Months, Fine

Toronto June 25 (CP) —Joseph Sullivan the Canadian Seamen's Union organizer was sentenced today to two months and eight other C.S.U. members were charged with hindering crew members as a result of the Union's fight for recognition by four major lake shipping companies.

Another C.S.U. member was charged with vagrancy at Welland Thursday when Seamen stoned crew members of C.S.L. freight Maple Heath and tossed eggs at members of the rival Canadian Lake Seamen's Union who manned the Grainmotor, also operated by C.S.L.

In the Commons at Ottawa opposition members described the Great Lakes shipping strike as a national emergency and demanded Federal action against "piracy."

Labor Minister Mitchell, commenting on the breakdown of government sponsored attempts to reopen negotiations said his efforts were made "doubly difficult" when the C.S.U. and the shipping companies "try to negotiate through the newspapers."

Sullivan was arrested last June 10 when Police said he led a group of C.S.U. pickets who tried to board the John Irwin, Canadian Oil Company tanker, after a crew from the C.L.S.U. had gone aboard under police escort.

Body of Male Infant Found In Tyendinaga

Provincial Police from Belleville are investigating the finding of the dead body of an unidentified male infant found Thursday in Tyendinaga township east of Corbyville. With officers still out on the investigation no information as to the place where the body was found was immediately available while other details are also lacking. Crown Attorney B. C. Donnan stated he was awaiting the results of a post mortem conducted last evening.

From information obtained it was suggested the body had lain for some days before being discovered. Parts of the body were eaten away, it was stated.

Britain's Overseas Trade

The volume of United Kingdom exports is now about one-third greater than before the war. Official returns for May show that last month close on $520,000,000 worth of goods were shipped overseas — about 34 per cent above the 1938 level.

May was a good month for overseas trade in many ways. While several records were set up for individual exports, a decline in imports to $70,4000,000 — together with an increase in exports — reduced the trade deficit by close on $52,000,000. The export total was itself a postwar record at $519,600,000. This does not include re-exports worth $22,400,000.

With the single exception of 28 years ago it was the highest value in Britain's trading history. At the same time May was a short working month of only 25 days owing to the Whitsun holidays. Reckoned on the standard basis of 26 working days, the May figure was $540,000,000 — only ten millions short of the record 1920 figure and nearly 140% of the prewar export volume which is the target set United Kingdom industry for the end of June.

Machinery — again Britain's largest export — hit new records in May both in value and quantity. 84,000,000 dollars worth of equipment sent overseas represented a tonnage very nearly double the amount exported month by month in 1938. The quantity of coal exported in the month rose to nearly one-third of the 1938 average, while the total value of textile exports — $107,200,000 — exceeded that in April by nearly $8,000,000. The increase in cotton shipments was due to a considerable increase in the quantity of printed piece goods, which raised the total to 58% of the 1938 average. This is the first month since 1941 in which exports of piece goods have been more than one-half of the average of the prewar years. In the wool group exports of tops were with one exception the highest on record, while shipments of artificial silk tissues exceeded the high April figure, itself a record for any peacetime month.

But while the volume of Britain's exports is now ahead of the schedule laid down in the Government's Economic Survey produced earlier this year, the cost of her imports is still rising. Whereas in the first four months of this year Britain's export prices rose by 33%, import prices rose by over 7%. As a result, the deficit in the country's overseas trade and payments continues to be heavy. Nevertheless considerable improvements have been achieved. The deficit in Britain's balance of payments is now running at a rate which is something under one-half of last year's deficit.

In 1947 Britain's balance of payments problem was essentially a problem of trade with the Western Hemisphere. It remains her most difficult problem. But by increasing exports to that area and by making big cuts in imports she has reduced her trade deficit with the Western Hemisphere. It remains her most difficult problem. But by increasing exports to that area and by making big cuts in imports she has reduced her trade deficit with the Western Hemisphere almost exactly in accordance with the Economic Survey forecast.

Plans for Olympics

After nearly two years of concentrated effort by experts, plans have been practically finalized for staging the athletic events of the XVI Olympiad at Wembley Stadium, near London. The curtain will rise on Friday, July 30th, on the biggest athletic meeting ever held in Britain, and every individual taking part in its presentation is working hard to ensure that it will be not only the biggest but the best. The equipment to be provided will in many instances be novel and the increased use of metal may well revolutionize the manufacture of standard athletic gear. For example, both pole vault and high jump equipment will be constructed of aluminum as will the hurdles. It is easy to see the advantages over the old-fashioned wooden standards; non-sag cross bars, accurately calibrated scales, and the entire absence of the ill effect of weather on wood. No longer need the judges perform balancing feats to replace the pole vault bar; a patent pulley and hoist will solve that problem. The long jump and hop, step and jump measuring apparatus will also be in metal, hairline measurements ensuring accurate recording, while the old bogey of bumpy sandpits will be taken care of by a special automatic sand leveller which quickly and accurately prepares a level pit surface for the next jumper, says United Kingdom Information News.

Problems of accurate measurements in the athletic events which comprise one of the outstanding features of the Olympic Games, have been solved by the ingenuity of two Englishmen. Scientific, precision engineering apparatus of United Kingdom design and manufacture will be used for the jumping and throwing events. Distances up to 260 feet must be measured quickly and accurately to the nearest ½ inch. For the hammer, discus and putting the shot, measurements have to be made over a wide area of ground from the perimeter of the small throwing circle. The two men, whose combined practical knowledge of athletics extends over about 75 years, are Mr. Donald Pain and Mr. H. Rottenburg. The former has been organizing amateur athletic meetings for 25 years and, as secretary of the olympic committee of the B.A.A.B., will be responsible for the control of the athletic events at Wembley Stadium. He will have 150 officials, all British, working under his instructions. Mr. Rottenburg is an inventor and scientific engineer who, for nearly 50 years, has been making athletic equipment as a "sideline" apart from his own business of making scientific instruments. Most of his models have been tested at Fenner's, the athletic ground of Cambridge University. The apparatus for the Games, made mainly of aluminum, will set a new standard in athletic measuring equipment. Extreme accuracy, simplicity and lightness are the main features.

Temporary Freedom

Although breaks from the Ontario Reformatory are not frequent, there are certain periods in the year that prisoners get the urge for the wide open spaces and make a dash for liberty.

Sometimes one man decides to leave alone and on occasions the number taking French leave is two, three or four, seldom higher.

There are those who raise the question as to just why these inmates will take the risk of incurring a penitentiary sentence when they such a slim chance to get away scot free. Invariably they are retaken and again in the hands of the law within a few days or weeks. It seems hard to understand just why these men, many of them with only a few weeks or months left of their reformatory terms, will make the break that means an additional term in penitentiary when they are apprehended.

Such a mental quirk is difficult to comprehend.—Chatham News.

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST

URGENT PHONE CALL

For various curious reasons I've been called upon the 'phone.
Friends have wakened me at midnight,
when I'd thought they'd better known.
I've been called away from dinner;
I've been summoned from my bath.
Though I'm sorry to confess it, I've had calls arousing wrath.
But a call the other morning set me
laughing through the day:
"Did you take my toothbrush, grandpa?" I heard little Janie say.

Only three years old last April, and as smart as she is small,
Insisting to her mother that her grandpa she must call.
"Hi!" she shouted when I answered.
Since they'd hunted here and there,
And that necessary article had vanished into air,
"Did you take my toothbrush, grandpa?" Oh, it almost floored me flat!
Was ever any grandpa asked a question such as that?

I chuckled through the morning, and
I chuckle as I write;
And I'm sure that I shall chuckle if
I wake throughout the night.
"Did you take my toothbrush grandpa?" It's still ringing in my ears.
I shall certainly repeat it 'till my time to go appears.
"Did you take my toothbrush grandpa?" Now when all is said and done, That's one reason being grandpa is an endless round of fun.

Traffic Expert Gives Pertinent Facts to Mayors

Halifax, June 25 — (CP) — A Montreal traffic expert Thursday discussed accidents and congestion before closing sessions of the Canadian Federation of Mayors and Municipalities.

Howard M. Baker of Montreal's traffic study department left the following facts for study by the Federation:

Five people are killed in Canada every day in traffic accidents.

Someone is injured every 17 minutes.

Property damage accidents cost us $140. every minute.

Our total economic loss from traffic accidents is more than $70,000,000 a year.

Mechanical defects in vehicles are responsible for only 10 per cent of all our accidents.

Traffic violation causes the majority of our accidents.

Traffic congestion costs us millions of dollars each year.

Recruits in most police departments are seldom trained in traffic work.

Eighty to 90 per cent of the personnel in most police headquarters are apathetic towards traffic violations.

Majority of drivers favor stricter traffic law enforcement.

A good one-way street system reduces accidents up to 50 per cent.

One-way streets can increase street capacity by about 30 per cent.

STRENGTH FOR THE DAY

By
EARL L. DOUGLASS, D.D.

STRENGTH for the Day Asset— GET AT THE SOURCE

We read in the third chapter of Acts that as Peter and John were going up into the temple to pray, a beggar asked them for alms. Instead of giving the beggar silver or gold, of which they had none, they gave him healing so that the man stood up; and now being healed of his infirmity he needed no longer to be a beggar. He asked for a little gift and got a big one.

Charity has its place in life and probably will have until the end of time, but it is not a cure for anything. The cure is brought about when the men and women are put in a position where they no longer need charity. This is no excuse for uncharitableness so long as the need for charity exists, but a perfect world would be a world without the necessity for charity. It would be a world in which economic systems were so just, governments so free, and business dealing so fair that everybody would have the chance he needs to make good in life.

But a perfect world presupposes perfect people, which means that even a tolerably good world presupposes tolerably good people. Systems are never better than the people who create them. The way to cure poverty is to cure the conditions which cause poverty.

Three-Man Court Completes First Phase of Probe

Camp Ipperwash, Ont., June 25 —(CP)— First phase of the probe of a grenade explosion at this army camp Monday which severely injured three collegiate cadets from Windsor, Ont., was completed here late Thursday by a military court of enquiry.

The three-man court headed by Col. N. P. Bogert of Kingston, officer commanding the Eastern Ontario military area, will move to London Friday. If their conditions permit evidence will be taken from the cadets who are patients in Westminster Hospital.

A spokesman said that Maj.-Gen. Chris Vokes of Toronto commanding Central Command, was expected in the Western Ontario military area overnight to visit the camp and possibly to conduct his own investigation into the accident.

The trio of youths, accompanied by a fourth cadet identified as John Cookson, are said to have wandered into a restricted section of the camp and to have found three or more grenades on the ground.

They were returning to their quarters when, in some manner, the grenades exploded. Cookson was the only one to escape injury.

Most severely hurt was Nicholas Timoshenko, 15, who lost part of one foot, three fingers of one hand and suffered an eye injury which may destroy the sight of the member. His condition still is serious.

James Vaughan, 17, son of W. H. Vaughan, executive editor of the Windsor Star, and Ernest Ebbinghaus, 16, escaped major injuries though they have multiple shrapnel wounds. They are believed out of danger.

ANOXIA AND THE EFFICIENCY OF THE HEART

A man 32 years old with aortic regurgitation and mitral stenosis (valvular disease which would presumably make one incapable of exertion) won the South African Marathon elimination race in the British Game in 1934. The man had competed successfully in 14 Marathon races always running the full distance, 26 to 54 miles.

There have been numerous reports of similar athletic activity on the part of persons with valvular disease or with a history of one or more bouts of coronary occlusion or thrombosis.

I mention these facts here not to imply that one with heart trouble should engage in any kind of activity without the advice of his or her regular physician; but just to apprise doctors or folks of the fact that exercise is at least as important as rest or medicine in the treatment of any and every kind of heart trouble. Wisely graduated exercise, mind you, not the fathead kind. The patient's physician must prescribe the type and amount of exercise as carefully as he or she prescribes the kind of rest or the medicine that the patient's condition requires —at the moment.

The fundamental cause of C V D (heart or artery degeneration) in the opinion of many good doctors and the charlatan who conducts this column is Anoxia; oxygen deficiency, insufficient supply of oxygen to tissues and cells through the circulation).

The old timers, not so well informed about physiology, reasoned that exercise, physical activity of any kind demands increased work by the heart and rest lightens the work of the heart and therefore one with any kind of heart disease must avoid all exercise of exertion, period.

At one stage of heart disease rest is the best remedy — it is for the physician to prescribe the kind and amount of rest the patient's present condition requires.

In virtually every case of heart disease, sooner or later, exercise becomes the essential remedy, exercise carefully graduated by the physician, from turning the head just so many times from side to side to lifting the hand or arm or leg so many times to walking from bed to chair or from bedroom to living room etc., etc., from day to day.

A fair amount of daily exercise (and a daily walk is the best of all exercises) is probably the best phophylactic or preventive as well as the best corrective or curative remedy we have against any and every form or manifestation of C V D.

Please don't let the C V D thing mislead you. I didn't invent it but I use it as the title of a booklet heart and artery troubles—for the booklet C V D send twenty-five cents and stamped self addressed envelope. Cardiovascular degeneration means simply a change in which some of the functioning cells in heart and arteries wear out and are replaced, not by new cells which will carry on the functions of the old, but by inert fibrous, scar-like tissue—the elastic muscle coat of the smallest arterial branches (arterioles) changes to the inelastic fibrous coat which makes the arteries feel hard — arteriosclerosis, hardening of the arteries. This insidous process we doctors, always fond of language that keeps you laymen intimidated, call-cardio (heart) vascular (blood vessel) degeneration (change from higher to lower type of tissue). And remember, we all begin to degenerate the day we attain the pinnacle of development and growth, just as all creation does.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Going Swimming?

I feel the children should go swimming as often as they like, but my husband says the public plunges are contaminated and disease distributors. Would you let children use the public swimming pools when no others are available?

(Mrs. B. M.)

Answer—Yes. After all, the children have got to live—can't keep them forever away from people. Every one using a swimming pool or swimming hole, public or private, should invariably wear nose stoppers while in the water, breathe entirely through the mouth, if possible take no water into mouth, but if water accidently gets into mouth never eject it into the pool. Any one who breaks this rule should be excluded from use of the pool.

Lambert Method

I'll be grateful for the abstract of the Lambert treatment for alcoholism, mentioned in your No. 19 Little Lesson "Dipsomania".

(H. S.———, M.D.)

Answer—As I stated in the booklet, Doctor, I am glad to send the abstract to any physician (M.D.) who asks for it and provides stamped self addressed envelope. The booklet Dipsomania" is no longer available.

C.C.F. RETURNS

Making a clean sweep of the three major cities, C.C.F. candidates piled up 47 per cent of the popular vote, compared to 31 per cent for the Liberals. Conservative and Social Credit candidates each polled eight per cent.

It was the third time in history that traditionally-Liberal Saskatchewan rejected the Liberal party. The first time was in 1929, when a coalition of Conservatives and Progressives formed the government, the second was in 1944 when the C.C.F. landslide swept the province.

The previous legislature had an actual membership of 55, three members representing the armed services. The seats were discontinued at dissolution of the legislature May 19.

Several Recounts Possible

With close battles in many seats, there remained the possibility of several recounts. They seemed almost certain in Hanley and in Melfort where Mr. Valleau lost by 23 votes to John Egnatoff, a Liberal with official Conservative support.

In Humboldt and Redberry where Liberals won by narrow margins, recounts also were possible.

Informal coalitions of Liberals and Conservatives in ten seats paid off in only three. Hamilton McDonald was the sole Liberal-Progressive Conservative elected but two Liberals with official Conservative backing—Mr. Egnatoff in Melfort and J. E. McCormack in Souris-Estevan—were successful.

The coalitions were aimed at defeating seven C.C.F. Cabinet Ministers, but Mr. Valleau was the only one defeated in a coalition riding.

Both women candidates lost out. Mrs. Beatrice J. Trew, former C.C.F. member for Maple Creek lost to a Liberal and Mrs. Isobel Paxman, Social Credit, was defeated by Premier Douglas.

Mr. Tucker, 49-year-old former parliamentary assistant to the minister of Veterans Affairs, was the first member to be elected, Premier Douglas was the second.

Premier Douglas, a former Baptist minister, defeated Dr. F. C. Eaglesham, the son of the man who defeated him in the 1934 provincial election—Mr. Douglas' first bid for office.

Two Votes Deferred

Votes in the northern ridings of Athabaska and Cumberland will be held July 22. The vote was deferred because of the late Spring thaw in the north.

Premier Douglas said he interpreted the vote, not as an endorsation of everything the government had done, but "rather as a vote of confidence that we are on the right track."

It showed that the people believed "the C.C.F. is genuinely concerned for the welfare of the average citizen and will do everything within its power to further their best interest."

At Rosthern, Mr. Tucker said the vote showed that the Social Credit candidates might have succeeded in "breaking up the anti-socialist vote to save the government by the skin of its teeth."

Mr. Ramsay said his party was satisfied with the vote of the majority, but the vote showed "our electoral machinery is out of date and does not provide for the voice of the majority."

Only one Labor-Progressive Party candidate was running and he was defeated in Pelly, where John Banks, Liberal, won the seat from the C.C.F. In other ridings, the L.P.P. supported the C.C.F. despite C.C.F. repudiation of Communist support.

ONE MINUTE NEWS ABOUT JOHNS-MANVILLE

SKYSCRAPER HAS TELESCOPE PIPES

The Chrysler Building — New York's famous skyscraper — has huge inner-wall pipes that carry heat to all floors. Heat expands pipes, you know. So to take up slack, sections of the pipes are free to move like the sections of a telescope.

These expansion joints would be a source of heat leaks were it not for a material called packing. In cases like this, and in almost every kind of machinery used today, Johns-Manville Packing prevents leakage of steam, gas, oil, water and other liquids.

To meet industry's varied needs, Johns-Manville makes hundreds of styles of asbestos packings .. and in addition specializes in "tailor-made" packings and gaskets for special jobs. For complete information on J-M Packings and Gaskets, write, Canadian Johns-Manville, 199 Bay St., Toronto.

Chas. P. McTague Resigns Post With Commission

Toronto, June 25 (CP)—Charles P. McTague has resigned as chairman and member of the Ontario Securities Commission, Attorney-General Blackwell announced Thursday.

The 57-day-old former Ontario Court of Appeal Justice will be succeeded by Walter S. Lennox, vice-chairman of the Commission and recent Master of the Supreme Court of Ontario.

A. S. Marriott, one of the assistant Masters of the Supreme Court, will succeed Mr. Lennox as a Supreme Court Master as well as a member of the Securities Commission and its vice-chairman.

Mr. McTague's plans are not known but it is believed he intends returning to private law practice.

Mr. Blackwell's statement said Mr. McTague undertook the commission chairmanship "on the definite understanding he would be unable to continue in this post beyond a limited period."

Appointed in 1945, Mr. McTague brought the Securities Act of 1945 under administration and reorganized the commission's staff.

"During his period in office," Mr. Blackwell's statement said, "Mr. McTague was able to settle with the (Toronto) Stock Exchange additional safeguards in relation to short-selling on the market and as a result of his recommendations it is indicated that amendments will be obtained to the criminal code covering stock market manipulations."

Born at Guelph, Mr. McTague was called to the Bar in 1920. He was promoted to Ontario Court of Appeal in 1938.

Batawa Player, Manager Suspension Upheld by O.B.A.

The Ontario Baseball Association sub-committee yesterday upheld the suspension placed on Manager Bill Easton of the Batawa baseball team. Also that of pitcher Gordon Muffitt. Easton's suspension will remain in force until July 10, while that of Muffitt will continue until July 3rd.

The committee ruled that the waiver on player Muffitt given the Trenton Monarchs baseball club of the Belleville Baseball League was null and void because Muffitt was not signed to a Trenton certificate and has played five games for the Batawa team. The committee felt that the Batawa team should be disciplined for this breach of agreement.

The suspension placed on players Bridgman, Watson, Bowman and Cook by President Thomas of the Central Ontario Baseball League was lifted by the sub-committee but they will be officially reprimanded for their action in regard to the agreement with the Trenton club.

Picton

Severe Storm

Picton (Special) — A severe electrical storm swept over most of Prince Edward County early yesterday morning. The lightning was particularly brilliant. The rain was of benefit to canning crops and berries. Despite the severity of the storm, damage was light. A horse on the farm of Herbert Kerr at Waupoos was killed. A bolt of lightning tore shingles from the roof of the home of Harry Burley at Cressy. Two trees in that vicinity were also struck.

The storm followed a very hot and humid day.

J. Follis Worthy Matron, and Mr. F. J. Follis, Worthy Patron, were in charge of the whole arrangement and under them the other committees worked to arrange the evening which included singing, dancing and a few comedy acts. Around sixty-five were in attendance for the dinner and evening's entertainment and a good time was had by all.

Plenty Needed Rain

Bancroft and district having suffered during the past weeks for the want of rain certainly weren't cheated since early Wednesday morning for up until Thursday morning the district received some two inches of rainfall which came down at three separate times. The worst deluge was Wednesday afternoon when rain fell so heavily in the village that visibility was reduced to a minimum; many of the gravel roads throughout the district were badly washed out and will need extensive repairs. The electrical storm which accompanied the afternoon rain was quite severe.

WEDDINGS

BOUTET—CAREY

The Church of St. Michael the Archangel was the scene of a very pretty wedding, June 21st., at nine o'clock, a.m., when Rt. Rev. Monsignor J. F. Nicholson officiated at the marriage ceremony of Phyllis Marie Carey, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Carey of this city, to Joseph Lucien Boutet, son of Mr. A. Boutet and the late Mrs. Boutet, Quebec City. The altar was prettily decorated with colored peonies, Sweet Williams and ferns. Miss M. Flurey provided the wedding music and the soloist was Miss Genevieve Tracey, who sang Gounod's "Ave Marie" and "On This Day".

The bride, given in marriage by her father, made a charming picture in a floor length model of slipper satin with sweetheart neckline, a peplum edged with lace falling over the full skirt of net. Her fingertip veil fell from a cap styled after Mary Queen of Scots, trimmed with orange blossoms, and she carried a bouquet of American Beauty roses. Her only attendant was Miss Rita Boyd, Belleville, who wore a mauve brocaded satin gown with double net skirt, matching flowered cap and carrying pink carnations. Mr. J. P. Gaulin, Montreal, was groomsman, and the ushers were Mr. Robert J. Carey, Jr., brother of the bride and Mr. S. Fox, of London, Ont.

The wedding breakfast was served at the Old Tavern, Bar-B-Q, where the bride's mother received in a powder blue silk jersey dress with black accessories. For travelling to Quebec City and Gaspe the bride wore gray figured dress with navy blue accessories and brown squirrel scarf.

Out-of-town guests were present from London, Centralia and Trenton. On their return the couple will take up residence in Belleville.

Prior to the bride's marriage, a linen shower was given her by Misses Jean Matthews, Mary Pigeon and Rita Boyd, at the latter's home. A presentation of a silver tea service was made by the bride's office associates.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride made a charming picture in a floor length bridal gown of creamy white satin designed with a full skirt and a bodice featuring a sweetheart neckline with applique studded with brilliants, and long sleeves. A three-quarter length embroidered veil fell from a halo of orange blossoms, and she carried Premier roses and fern.

In Planning to Redecorate Home Decide What Purpose it Will Serve And Then Plan to Suit Yourself

By DOROTHY ROE

New York (AP)—The trouble with most women who set out to redecorate the family home is they try too hard, says an expert.

Dan Copper, well-known designer of home furnishings, explains that, bedazzled by pictures, confused by conflicting advice, the average woman starts out to select new furnishings in a happy daze.

She is torn between admiration for Louis XIV and Swedish modern, French provincial and American colonial and usually winds up in a heap in between.

Or, says Cooper, the lady may decide to reproduce a room pictured in her favorite publication, down to the last tie-back, without stopping to consider how it fits the needs of her own family.

The designer, just returned from a lecture tour in which he was besieged with questions from confused amateur decorators, feels strongly on the subject. He has aired some of his views in a book, "Inside Your Home", is responsible for such divergent productions as the "House of Ideas" shown in Rockefeller Centre in 1936 and demountable furniture used by the U.S. Army Air Corps during the war. He has acted as color consultant for a federal housing project, designed the library and.. the museum at Dumbarton Oaks, and decorated homes in both North and South America. He says:

"People don't buy a house or furniture often enough to know how to go about it. They get so much advice they're dizzy."

Pointed Questions

To rid your mind of clutter when planning a home, Cooper advises that you start by answering these questions:

Why do you need a house? What purpose do you want it to fulfil? Do you want it as a background for big parties? What pursuits do you expect to enjoy most in your home? Reading? Music? Games? Cooking? Or just resting?

When you have answered these things, says the designer, you are ready to start planning. If you expect to give lots of big parties, you will want a living room that encourages sociability, with furniture arranged to accommodate groups of people; plenty of coffee tables, serving tables and such. Your dining room will be important.

If you're the hermit type, who enjoys reading and music, your plan will be entirely different. The most comfortable chairs and lights will be beside the book shelves. Windows and artificial lighting will be arranged to give the best light for the piano. The dining room may be non-existent, with meals served informally in the living room or kitchen, and the extra space used for a library or music room.

If you like to play cards, that hobby should be taken care of in your planning, with a game room or a corner of the living room equipped with card table and chairs or built-in fixtures.

Cooper added a home should hold nothing that is not used. He doesn't believe in fads or doodads and advises people to free their minds of all the current decorators' patter and trust their own common sense in planning their own homes. Says he:

"After all, you're the one who has to live in it, so it ought to suit you—not the man next door."

Dance Recital by Pupils Of Miss Barbara Diment At B.C.I. Much Enjoyed

The pupils of Miss Barbara Diment's dancing class staged a recital before a capacity audience at the Collegiate Auditorium on Thursday evening. An enjoyable program was presented by the pupils who ranged in size from "no bigger than a minute" to about the age of 12 or 13. The piano accompaniment was played by Miss Diment throughout the program. The make-up for the cast was done by the clerks of Lattimer's Drug Store.

The curtain opened to reveal a full stage of gayly costumed children. Some representing Irish colleens, Scotch lassies, ballet dancers, and a host of other characters. The full chorus sang a song of welcome to the audience.

The next portion of the program was executed by a group of girls costumed as soldiers in a song and tap routine. Solo honors go to Bobby Gibbs and Jane Slavin for their parts.

A group of song and dance numbers followed, neatly and comically done considering the very young age of some of the stars. To the accompaniment of the bagpipes, played by Norman Meldrum, lassies garbed in traditional plaid and tartan neatly danced the Highland Fling. Solo honors in this part go to Marilyn Miller and Kay McGowan, two little girls whose perfect timing belied their junior years.

The program ran smoothly through a number of very good dances and vocals, each artist performing his or her part in true form. Decked with frills and ribbons the chorus of little maids sang and tapped the familiar "Mickey Mouse's Birthday Party" to charm the audience. "Sailors on Parade" was another very good number, with the little sailorettes singing and dancing around the good ship "Lollypop."

With expert timing and grace, Sandra Ann Randle performed an acrobatic dance solo, doing cartwheels and somersaults to the piano accompaniment. Coming in for a good deal of applause was the "Bit of Irish Pep" number with the artists gaily attired in the green and shamrocks of old Ireland. Solo honors in this section went to Gary Tremaine, who with his sister Gail participated in a number of excellent song and dance numbers throughout the program, and Joanne Atkinson.

Gypsy Scene Final Number

Following a group of vocal and tap numbers, the program concluded with the vivid and dashing "Gypsy Scene". A full chorus of brilliantly costumed girls executed an oriental dance to the accompaniment of their tambourines and the piano. Donna Turner as the baby Gypsy charmed the audience in this number as she had in numerous other ones during the program. The Queen of the Gypsies was gracefully done by Carole Mitchell.

At the conclusion of the program the pupils lined the stage for the curtain call and to receive the applause of the audience. Miss Diment was showered with floral bouquets by the members of her class.

No 'yellow hue' thanks to Blue!

Oh what joy it is to hang clothes all snowy white on the line! No faded, yellow look! White sheets, towels, table linen and clothes are white when rinsed in Blue! So easy . . . just a swish or two of Blue in the final rinsing water—and out they come . . . sparkling, snowy-white!

P.S.—Seven colours combine to make white, one of these is blue. Blue must be added to make true white.

WIVES ARE ON HAND FOR GOP CONVENTION

The wives of aspirants to the Republican nomination for U.S. president attended a luncheon with their husbands in the Union League club, Philadelphia, Pa., and several of them posed for this photograph. In picture, left to right, are: Mrs. Thomas E. Dewey, Mrs. Robert A. Taft, Mrs. Harold Stassen and Mrs. Earl Warren.

Material for Shirts Expensive But Prices Not Likely to Go Higher Is View of Local Manufacturer

Those wives who have been cutting off the tails of their husbands' shirts to patch them will be keeping it up for some time to come. Prices will not be lowered. Don't blame the local shirt manufacturer—blame the Egyptians.

All the thread that is used to sew the shirts is made from Egyptian cotton. This cotton is finer than any we have in the North American continent and at the present time is at a premium. All the European countries are biding for it and the result of this? The price of thread has risen 15 per cent.

The plastic to make the buttons comes from the United States and this is also scarce. The price of buttons has risen 25 per cent.

Most of the material for the shirts comes from Canadian Mills and through lack of experienced labor the quota sent to each shirt manufacturer has been cut down.

Some raw cotton is imported from the United States and the price is now 38 cents a pound on today's market as against the old price of 9 cents.

More Flannel Shirts

One encouraging note however for those men who love to hunt and wear red flannel shirts. There is more flannel being released than any other material. Black and white checkered plaids, plain green and of course fiery red are in abundance.

The Bell Shirt Company of this city manufactures mostly sport and work shirts. The work shirts are made from chambray which has also been hard to obtain.

Mr. W. J. Finkle, one of the partners of this firm, stated that although the prices would not be lowered on any of the shirts, they wouldn't go any higher. This he explained is because people just won't pay any more. Everything possible is being done to reduce prices, he said.

The plant situated on the corner of Coleman and Front streets faces the Moira River and even in the height of the afternoon's heat the top floor where the seamstresses work is cool and breezy. All the windows are open and the plant has been insulated, Mr. Finkle explained.

Types of Sewing Machines

The different types of sewing machines used would delight housewives. One machine has 4 needles instead of two and is used to put the plackets on the shirts, a wonderful thing to put the band on a skirt. Other machines finish raw edges and one other highly ingenious device for sewing in the arms is made in such a way that the arm slips away from the worker as she sews and doesn't get snarled around the leg of the needle as is usually the case. Steam irons are used for all pressing and scorching is non-existent. The girls work on a piecework system and their fingers seem to fly.

In the material room, the fabric is laid out in stacks of about 300 layers and the top piece is chalked out into the required pattern. Then an electric cutting knife cuts around this pattern and enough pieces for 300 shirts are cut out at one time.

BEAUTIFUL bridal lingerie is a big temptation even for those of us who are not honey-moon bound. A white satin nightgown, high waisted, with ecru Alencon lace used for wide straps and bustline detail, is teamed with a negligee of white chiffon. This has a wide, shaped midriff of the ecru lace with self-button detail, a full skirt, and cape-like sleeves that are worked into a deep triangle panel of lace in the bodice back.

Titles Not Crossed off on Cards Enclosed with Graduation Invitations

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

This month our son is being graduated from college, and our daughter is being graduated from a girl's boarding school. We ordered personal cards for them to enclose in their invitations, hers with "Miss" before her name, and his with "Mr.". Now we and they would like to know if, before enclosing these cards they should cross off the title by drawing a line through it.

Mother and Father

No; the cards should be enclosed with all their formality intact. It is only when a message is written on a card that the title is crossed off. . . for with a message written on it, the card becomes a note, and the name must be changed from the formal name appropriate on a visiting-card to the informal name (without title) appropriate as a signature.

Wedding Invitations — and Gifts — and Responsibilities

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

So many questions keep cropping up in the plans I am making for my wedding. . .will you please answer several more of them? (1) How long before the wedding should the invitations be sent out? (2) Are the organist and soloist invited to the wedding reception? (3) Are the organist and soloist given gifts, and, if so, by whom? (4) When are the gifts given to the bride, groom, bridesmaids, best man, and ushers? (5) Whose responsibility is it to buy the bride's trousseau, the bride or her parents? (6) What should the bride do with her engagement ring during the ceremony? (7) Whose responsibility is it to buy the flowers for the church and for the hall where the reception is to take place?

M. J.

(1) Formal wedding invitations should be mailed about four weeks before the wedding . . . never less than three weeks before. Informal invitations are often mailed three weeks before the wedding . . . sometimes two weeks before. The guests invited to such an important event as a wedding should be given sufficient notification so that they may save the date and make their plans; and time must be given too to make sure of receiving all replies. (2) Usually, if the reception is large, or even rather large. (3) If the organist and soloist are professionals, they should be paid their usual professional fee. If they are friends of the bride or groom or of the family of either and if they ask for the privilege of giving their services, each should be given a gift by either the bride or her family. (4) If the bride and groom are to give each other wedding gifts, they are given at any time convenient before the wedding. The bridal attendants are given their gifts either at the luncheon or other party the bride gives for them, or at any other convenient time. The groom gives his best man and ushers their gifts either at his bachelor dinner or a day or so before the wedding. (5) Either . . .if the bride's family are paying for the wedding, they buy the bride's trousseau, both personal and household. (6) During the ceremony the bride usually wears her engagement ring on her right hand. . .then, after the ceremony, usually on the way to the reception, she puts her engagement ring on "the" finger, above the wedding ring. (7) The bride's family.

Attention, Graduates . . . Write Thank-you Note for Every Graduation Gift Received

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Most of the members of our High School Senior class read your column, and when you answer a question one of us has sent to you or a problem we've discussed either in class or outside, we cut out your column and put it on our bulletin board. Now we'd like to put on our "Bulletin" your answer to this question on which we've had much discussion: must all graduation gifts be thanked for by notes? Isn't it proper sometimes to telephone one's thanks, or go to see the giver and thank her then?

Seniors

It is a must of courtesy that a graduate should write a prompt and warmly appreciative thank-you note for every graduation gift he or she receives. If the impulse to write a thank-you note for a gift isn't a 'natural" to a girl or boy of High School age, graduation-time is a perfect time to cultivate this endearing and so-important habit! For certainly it is true that one of the most significant things that your diploma is going to mean to your relatives and friends is that now you will be expected to write a good letter. Good handwriting . . . good letter-form . . . good letter-personality. Else why, they will wonder, did you deserve that diploma?

When relatives and firends spend kind thought and time and money to give you something to make you happy, certainly they have the right to expect you to give them the pleasure of receiving a thank-you note from you. You should show your manners by writing these notes promptly —(1) thank for the kind thought, (2) thank for the gift, mentioning it by name (not, vaguely, "your gift"), and (3) comment enthusiastically about special features of the gift. And although this may sound like a large order, you can write these notes—with charm and gusto! — in two or three sentences.

The Brief, Simple, and Correct Form for Acceptance of Formal Invitations

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My husband and I are invited to our niece's church wedding and reception. How should I word our acceptance?

Louella

This is the correct form of acceptance to a formal wedding invitation:

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Robinson accept with pleasure
Mr. and Mrs. John Lee Clark's kind invitation for Tuesday, the twenty-second of
June

Write your reply on the first page of your letter-paper . . . centre it on the page, and leave even margins on all sides . . . and address your reply to the bride's parents. This brief, simple, and correct form of reply gives just the needed information to the hosts of the wedding.

Hint to the Hostess

The hostess must take care—but not obviously—not to finish eating before her guest does. She eats slowly, dawdles over the last few mouthfuls if necessary, so she won't finish too soon and thereby embarrass her guest.

MIRACLE OF BIRTH

Did you know that a woman has nothing to do with the sex of her baby . . . that each male cell has only one chance in 225 million of fertilizing the female egg . . . that after a month, the forming child has its own circulatory system distinct from that of the mother? Look Quaint and be in Style

Dorothy Hart, of the movies, is in the height of style with this quaint-looking ensemble

By HELEN FOLLETT

LET us look quaint. That will make the dress designers happy, those enthusiastic stylists who kept yelling at us to draw in our waist lines, who are promoting the idea of wearing petticoats to give bounce and rustle to skirts. Maybe quaint, romantic clothes will make us forget a crazy world, and that is all for the good. You see cute, pretty clothes on the silver screen. They make the stars look younger and prettier than ever.

Formals have long full, flowing skirts. Bodices have full bosoms and doll waists; if you are going to cram yourself into them you may have to do a little figure molding. If your shape is satisfactory, do them anyway. If you have a chic silhouette you have to work to hang onto it. If a few pounds have been added, better watch out. More may be on the way.

Stretching exercises are easy, just the thing for the lazy girl, and they do something. Stand facing the wall, lift your hands as high as ever you can. Up on your toes. Keep on stretching, touching the wall with your fingertips. Down on your heels, take five deep breaths, then at it again. Try to pull yourself apart at the waistline. Arms and legs get plenty of exercise; it is the mid section that needs it most.

When you are in bed at night, waiting for the sandman to come, do a little stretching and relaxing. You will find sleep more restful because you will stir up sluggish blood streams and quiet your nervous system, if it needs quieting, and whose doesn't?

Go limp. Stretch your legs, stretch every toe. Push forth your arms extend your fingers. Lift your arms above your head, stretch your body.

Follow along with five minutes deep regular breathing to utes of slow, deep breathing, inhaling through the nostrils, exhaling through the lips. Nothing make one feel delightfully relaxed and drowsy.

Advice to the Lovelorn

Teen-Agers with Mid-Victorian Parents

It is amazing, in these so-called modern days, to find how many parents, there still are who live in the Victorian era so far as informing their children on sex matters is concerned.

Letters are constantly coming in from both boys and girls in their teens—some of them very close to the 20's—who are apparently ignorant of even the most elementary facts about the physical relationship between men and women.

Says one recent letter from an 18-year-old girl:

"I love my mother very much, but she gives me no help about sex problems."

This girl is so completely uninformed on these matters that she was frightened because a boy merely wanted to give her a casual good-night kiss when he took her home after a date . She was frightened because she thought a mere kiss might have the most dire consequences.

"I don't have any knowledge of sex and am in constant fear of it," she wrote me. "I don't have the slightest idea of the truth about such things. If you know any books that would tell the story simply, I would be ever so grateful. Please help me. I have no one to turn to. I am counting on you more than I can say."

How many mother who read this, I wonder, have daughters in the same dilemma as this one? My guess is that there are a great many whose children are in the same state of confusion and distress as another teen-ager who wrote:

"Can you tell me a book that would take the place of a confiding mother?"

There is, of course, no substitute for a "confiding mother," but so many parents have failed in this responsibility toward their children.

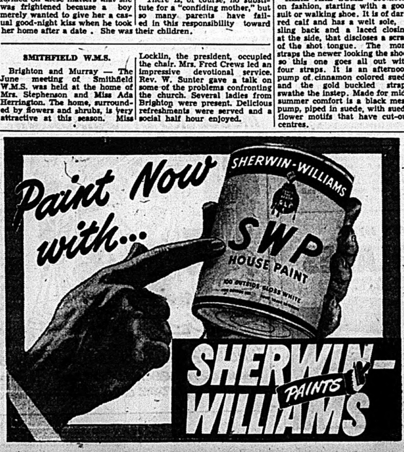
The home, surrounded by flowers and shrubs, is very attractive at this season. Miss Locklin, the president, occupied the chair. Mrs. Fred Crews led an impressive devotional service. Rev. W. Sunter gave a talk on some of the problems confronting the church. Several ladies from Brighton were present. Delicious refreshments were served and a social half hour enjoyed.



BEAUTY

By HELEN JAMESON

Play Fair With Your Eyes

In old-fashioned novels, the beautiful heroine had eyes that were deep pools of mystery. They had a die-away, dreamy expression that knocked the hero flat, so he took her in his arms and they beat it to the marriage license bureau.

Guys of 1948 wouldn't be trapped by any such trick as that. They may be sentimental upon occasion, but they're likely to admire feminine eyes that are frank, honest anod twinkling. They're wise to flirtatious monkey-shines. Affectations don't seem to get over. Naturalness of manner, good sportsmanship, jolly companionship are what keep the telephones clanging, pile up the dates.

Eyes of any color or shape can be beautiful; it is what you put into them, or maybe let out of them, that counts for charm. They have a language that can be understood by any observing person. Let yours be expressive —expressive of friendliness and interest in the other fellow. If they wander off into the distance when the other fellow is talking to you, they are not behaving as well-mannered eyes should behave.

Take good care of them. They are wonderful little machines. They have their own washing and oiling devices. Except for bathing them twice a day—first with hot water, then with cold—they will get along fairly well by themselves. It is their abuse that brings troubles.

Every moment that you are awake, your eyes are working. If they are under strain, they will carry a dull, listless, weary look. The tissues surrounding them may become darkened, seamed with myriads of tiny lines. Frowns, when not caused by giving way to irritations, are due to strain. The entire face may take on an expression of fatigue and discomfort.

If you are confronted with these conditiosn, you can know that it is time for you to make a pilgrimage to the office of an eye specialist who, no doubt, will prescribe glasses. When the eyes have the comforting aid of lenses, the unpleasant effects will disappear .It is senseless to postpone the day of providing them with relief. Added to eyestrain is the serious matter of headaches and the deplorable effect upon the nervous system.

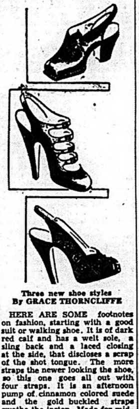
Eyes of any color or shape can be beautiful

Far-sightedness, and near-sightedness, may cause faulty positions of the body—sending the head too far forward, causing the spinal column to take on unnatural lines. Do not consider that statement far-fetched; it has happened.

The eyes should never be rubbed or pressed harshly. If there is discomfort, there is a reason. Inflamed lids or the slightest infection calls for medical attention.

Tired eyes soon become old-looking eyes. Don't forget that your orbs should be shielded from strong sunlight and glaring lights in the home. If you are going to be a beach-sitter this summer get dark glasses.

Footnotes On Fashion



Three new shoe styles

By GRACE THORNCLIFFE

HERE ARE SOME footnotes on fashion, starting with a good suit or walking shoe. It is of dark red calf and has a welt sole, a sling back and a laced closing at the side, that discloses a scrap of the shot tongue. The more straps the newer looking the shoe, so this one goes all out with four straps. It is an afternoon pump of cinnamon colored suede and the gold buckled straps swathe the instep. Made for midsummer comfort is a black mesh pump, piped in suede, with suede flower motifs that have cut-out centres.

Wife Preservers

The easiest way to cut up raisins is to use a pair of kitchen scissors dipped in hot water.

Fashion Flashes

NEW HANDLING of yardage brings interest to the skirt. Navy and white polka dot silk is used for a nice Summer dress that subscribes to the barrel silhouette. The skirt is given the illusion of fullness without much yardage, by turning it in at the hem, in modified harem style. The bodice is draped to a deep handkerchief point in back. Wide navy calfskin belt.

FOR A GOOD BACKGROUND choose gray. Medium gray silk crepe makes a pretty suit, the skirt just long enough and full enough to be right. The jacket has a petal collar and nips in at the waist to break out in a small, stiff outstanding peplum, Beautiful with rose, yellow or green accessories.

THAT SHINING SUCCESS, satin, is back again nicer than ever, used in beautiful dresses, suits and ensembles. Most wearable is a slim frock of navy blue silk satin that wraps to the side, where the sash ties in a long-end bow. Deep squared neckline and push-up sleeves. It's been quite a time since we've noted the wrap-around, side-draped skirt in a smart frock.

A GOOD BUY is the really fine casual coat, the sort of thing that one likes to live in for all but dress-up times. Pale pink woollen of very fine quality makes a grand coat that has nice deep, almost dolman sleeves, a big jutting, face-framing collar and huge pockets.

VARIATIONS of the tricorne mark some of the new hats. Black novelty straw is used for a softly manipulated tricorne that is worn off the face. It is edged with a looped border of pink horsehair and pink veiling, wide enough to cast becoming shadows. The three corners are quite sharply defined with one corner in the centre above the hairline.

THE SQUARE DANCE is responsible for the tremendous vogue for full skirts of cotton, some of them quilted, and off-shoulder, frilly blouses. City slickers who go in for the square dance, though, like the black faille skirt for wear with the peasant type blouse. Popular in the country is the shoulder strap blouse with a very frilly ruffled bertha.

WHAT IS CERTO?

Why does Certo give you so much more jam and jelly? And why do Certo jams and jellies look better . . . taste better?

It's all quite simple. Certo is nothing but "fruit pectin" — the natural substance in fruit that makes jams "jam" and jellies "jell". It's extracted and refined to help you make better jams and jellies more easily and quickly.

THE CERTO SHORT BOIL

With Certo you don't have to boil and boil and boil your fruit to make it set. A one-to-two-minute full, rolling boil is enough for jams . . . a half-minute-to-a-minute for jellies.

CERTO DOES THIS

1 Gives you 50% more jam or jelly because you save all the precious fruit juice that wastes away in steam in long boiling.

2 Cuts to a fraction the time spent over the stove.

3 Retains the lovely, natural fresh-fruit taste and colour. That's still more important because with Certo you use fruit at its peak of flavor and colour — not the under-ripe fruit used in long-boil recipes.

SUCCESS SURE — EVEN FOR BEGINNERS

However inexperienced you may be, you'll have no failures if you follow exactly the recipes provided with Certo. Different fruits need different handling. There's a separate kitchen-tested recipe for each one.

Predicted Showers Threaten Third Postponement of Fight Between Two Joes in N.Y.

New York June 25 (CP)—Predicted late afternoon and evening showers today threatened a third postponement of the world heavyweight boxing championship match between champion Joe Louis and challenger Jersey Joe Walcott.

The two veteran fighting men are scheduled to try again in Yankee Stadium tonight at 10 p.m. EDT.

The forecast for Saturday is fair and cool. The 15-round title bout will be shifted to then if conditions don't permit it tonight.

The sponsoring Twentieth Century Sporting Club has through Monday to get the business out of the way. New York's Yankees come home Tuesday. Prize-fighting is against the law in New York State on Sunday.

Both fighters were in their dressing rooms last night when the area was struck by the full force of a thunderstorm.

The storm hit shortly before 8 p.m. EDT and the fight was called off at 8.25 p.m. At the time there were some 4,400 paid customers, thoroughly soaked, inside the stadium.

Louis returned to Pompton Lakes, N.J. He said he would get up at 7 a.m., today, take a hike and then motor into New York in the afternoon.

Remains in City

Walcott remained in the city. He planned some limbering up exercises at his mid-town hotel.

The promoters said they expected the gate to be boosted rather than hurt by the interruptions. They reported $850,000 already in the till with receipts certain to go over $900,000.

The champion appeared glum but he took the postponement philosophically. "I don't think it will bother me any more than it does him," he said.

Felix Bocchicchio,, Walcott's sponsor, said the challenger felt fine and was unaffected by the delay.

In some corners of the Louis camp they whisper tales from the record book: About that first Louis-Max Schmeling fight and about the Louis-Tommy Farr go.

On a mid-June night in 1936, the Louis-Schmeling bout was delayed one day by rain. The next day, the champion-to-be was not only knocked out for the first and only time in his career, but he was brutally beaten up.

The champion had better luck in his first defence of the title a year later against the Welsh coal miner. But even then, the delay of four days didn't help the 23-year-old Bomber of the day. He went the whole 15 rounds against Farr and managed a slim decision that was a great disappointment to his millions of fans.

The New York State Athletic Commission waived its ruling about a second weigh-in following the 48-hour delay. Since there is no weight limit, it was felt that the procedure would be meaningless.

Are Cleveland Indians Ready To be Scalped?

Are Cleveland Indians ready to be scalped?

Manager Lou Boudreau's American League pace-setters have lost their crucial series of the year and Bob Feller shows no signs of returning to form.

These two factors have cast a cloud over a once rosy outlook. Not only 1 1-2 games separates the Indians from the pursuing world champion New York Yankees who thrashed Feller 4-0 yesterday.

Cleveland now has lost eight out of its last 12 starts while the Yanks have done the reverse.

Feller allowed the Yanks only five hits yesterday but three of them were home runs. The loss was Rapid Robert's 8th. against six victories.

George McQuinn, Johnny Lindell and Joe Dimaggio rifled Feller pitches out of the park. Dimaggio's blow was his 17th to tie him with Cleveland's Ken Keltner for the circuit lead.

Vic Raschi gave up six hits to post his ninth straight triumph and fourth shutout.

Philadelphia's third-place Athletics pulled to within two games of the Indians by nosing out St. Louis Browns 6-5 in a night game at St. Louis.

Starter Phil Marchildon of Penetanguishene, Ont., allowed only one hit in 4 2-3 innings he worked but he experienced terrific spells of wildness walking 10 and throwing two wild pitches Reliefer Bob Savage received credit for the victory.

Red Sox Divide

The up-and-coming Boston Red Sox divided a doubleheader with Chicago White Sox, winning the second game 8-5 after Bill Wight pitched the White Sox to a 3-1 victory in the opener.

Ted Williams smashed his 14th and 15th homers of the year and drove in four runs to spark the Red Sox's nightcap triumph.

St. Louis Cardinals stormed to within a half game of the first place Boston Braves in the National League pennant race by trouncing them 11-2.

Brooklyn Dodgers dumped Pittsburgh Pirates twice 6-2 and 8-6. Jackie Robinson enjoyed one of his finest days of his career with seven hits including a grand slam homer which broke up the first game. He belted two doubles and two singles in the second. The twin setbacks dropped the Pirates from second to third place and moved the Dodgers from sixth to fifth.

At New York, Chicago Cubs and Giants divided a twin bill, the Giants winning the first game 3-2 and the Cubs the second 11-2.

Greco Offered $5,000 to Defend His Boxing Title

(By The Canadian Press)

Vancouver fight promoter Phil Martin has offered Johnny Greco of Montreal, Canadian welterweight boxing champion, $5,000 to defend his crown against Joey Pyle, New Waterford, N. S., Negro, in Vancouver this summer. Greco has the alternative of taking 30 per cent of the gate, Rogers said. Pyle recently decisioned Phil Palmer twice in Vancouver to become leading contender to the title. In Greco's last defence of his crown, he defeated Harry Hurst of Montreal.

A special delegate will be appointed to meet Niagara district football men in an effort to form a grouping there.

Louis Hurt More By Postponement Than Joe Walcott

By J. L. MORENO, M.D.
(Copyright, 1948, By The Associated Press)

New York, June 25 — (AP) — Last night's raindrops dealt a harder psychological tattoo on Joe Louis' chin than Joe Walcott's.

For Louis is the type who would suffer more from the enforced postponement. Walcott's greater sense of humor would help him survive it.

Louis is a more sensitive person, and more vain. He's more inclined to be annoyed and irritated than Walcott. Jersey Joe has had to develop a lot of patience in his lifetime, or else he would not still be trying at his age to become the champion.

Fighters and fans alike are undergoing a feeling of anti-climax. It's like a hangover feeling without having had the alcohol. Physical and mental fatigue are the outcome.

The last - minute postponement was the worst feature. With the prediction of showers in the evening, they might better have announced early in the afternoon that the fight probably couldn't be held.

The early announcement would have saved everyone the anxiety of waiting.

Fighting men like this require training to a maximum degree of readiness. A postponement which goes on for a few days is bound to affect their readiness. It may reduce their savageness and pitched fervor, producing a feeling of wanting to get it over with.

One more thing — the enforced dieting is harder on Louis. He had to lose more pounds to get back to his fighting weight.

Gerard Cote Runs MarathonDistance 3 Times Weekly

St. Hyacinthe, Que., June 25 — (CP) — Over an asphalt-surface highway out of St. Hyacinthe, Gerard Cote trots purposefully — 22, 24 or 26 miles, three times a week.

That's the fundamental training regime of the little 135-lb. runner who stands a good chance of bringing to Canada the Olympic marathon title.

It's nothing new to Cote. For 14 years or so he has jogged along the same winding highway, preparing for the big marathon events of this continent. He has won his share against the toughest kind of competition.

Coming back from a hot day's grind — 11 miles out and 11 back — under a broiling sun, Cote did not appear in the least tired. He was breathing easily as he walked to a shower room on the war veterans' hospital grounds where he is a corporal in charge of a special police detachment.

Watching his diet, with solid foods such as rice pudding, bananas, steak and milk predominating, Cote will not vary his training the slightest before flying to England the first week in July. He will be two weeks or so ahead of the full Canadian representation at the Olympic games.

In England he will study and try out the marathon course.

He may step up his tri - weekly running regime to four runs, depending on how he feels, at the marathon distance of 26 miles, 385 yards, or a couple of miles less.

In the last week before the marathon Cote will take what he calls a rest. He will quit running but will walk 10 miles daily, two-five- mile hikes with a few hours' interval.

His diet won't be neglected. He is taking five pounds of rice along and has an order in for bananas — the foods he considers essential for a marathoner. He hopes there will be no difficulty about getting fresh milk; he drinks two or three quarts a day.

Getting Equipment For Olympic Games Ponderous Task

London, June 25 (CP) —Tepee fencing judging machines from France ... index cards from Sweden ... diving springboards from the United States ... javelins from Finland and Sweden ...bamboo poles for the vaulting from Japan ... white paint for field hockey balls ... telephones and pencils ... sandbags for guarding gates on the bicycle-racing course ... teleprinters and whistles...

Multiply this list by 50 and you will get a hint of the equipment needed to stage this year's Olympic games. It is the province of a technical committee headed by E.A. Barker.

Edward Barker is the buffer between every Olympic athlete coming from abroad and various government departments, the limited purse of the organizing committee and even world-famous Scotland Yard.

A short (five-foot-six) man who two years ago could hardly tell the difference between a weight lifter and wrestler, he now knows exactly what track and field, equestrian, fencing and rowing athletes need. He has supplied equipment—on advice of the various international sports federations — for each of the 17 sports and 136 events of the 17 day program..

Many Headaches

There was no trouble getting sports goods — "manufacturers came to us, apparently with the idea it would be good advertising but there were many headaches.

The boxing and wrestling federations were satisfied with British weighing machines but the weight-lifter turned thumbs down on them. The reason: They didn't show weights in kilos.

He has arranged that competitors may bring equipment into the country without paying customs providing they return to their countries with dutiable goods.

Among items overseas competitors will bring are 200 horses, 100 rowing boats, 50 yachts, hundreds of fending foils and 400 bicycles. Each competitor is allowed 25 pounds of food.

Another ticklish job was to persuade Britain's home office and governments of competing nations to issue special Olympic identity cards for all competitors instead of passports.

"These cards will be used also for customs regulations and will be valid for a limited period."

CANADIAN SPORT SNAPSHOTS

By JACK GRAY
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Toronto, June 25 (CP)—Mayors of Ontario cities, who brandished axes and challenges last winter prior to later onslaughts on unoffending logs, unwittingly may have initiated a sport now booming in Australia.

No Aussie agricultural show is complete without the wildly - swinging axes of the wood-chopping contest, say Emil (Sault Ste. Marie Star) Rajnovich. Reading a press release of how one Aussie sliced his way through an 18-inch hardwood log is 52½ seconds, Raj immediately bethought himself of the Michigan - Ontario - Wisconsin Hockey League.

The Australians plan a tour "to introduce" the sport in North America.

"It struck me that the boys from down under might find some stiff competition in the upper peninsula among some of the so-called hockey players I've seen in action last winter," said Raj.

Olympic Coverage

A compact corps of experienced Canadian sports writers will report the Olympic Games for Canadian readers.

Providing basic coverage with special attention to Canadian athletes, The Canadian Press will have at Wembley Stadium and other arenas from July 29 to Aug. 14 a flexible staff headed by Jack Sullivan, London news editor, who reported the winter Olympics at St. Moritz. CP writers will include Alan Harvey of Toronto and H. L. Jones of Vancouver, both now attached to London Bureau.

Special writers for Canadian newspapers are expected to include Myrtle Cook McGowan of the Montreal Star, herself a one-time Olympic athlete; Basil Dean of the Southam newspapers; Leslie Bishop, Winnipeg Free Press; and A. W. O'Brien, Montreal Standard.

Royals Playing Best Brand Of Ball in League

(By The Associated Press)

Despite the loss of two of their best pitchers, Montreal Royals are continuing to play the best brand of ball in the International League.

The Royals lost lefthander Paul Minner and righthander Hank Behrman via recall by the parent Brooklyn Dodgers this week leaving the brunt of the mound work up to Jack Banta and rookies Don Newcombe and Clarence Podbielan.

Newcombe gained his fifth victory of the season last night, pitching the Royals to a seven-hit 7-1 conquest over Baltimore Orioles.

The Royals combed Lyman Linde and Mike Mellis for 17 safeties including Al Gionfriddo's 13th homer of the season.

The triumph increased the Royals' first-place lead over the runner-up Newark Bears to two games. The Bears dropped a 7-5 decision to Rochester Red Wings.

Tied 4-4 going into the seventh the Wings hammered relief pitcher Johnny Maldovan for three hits and as many runs to win the game.

Toronto Maple Leafs crushed the third-place Syracuse Chiefs 9-6. Catcher Stan Lopata highlighted the Toronto victory by clouting a triple and three singles and driving in two runs. He also scored four runs and stole home.

Buffalo's home run - hitting Bisons divided a doubleheader with Jersey City Giants, winning the nightcap 12-6 after dropping the opener, 6-5.

Buddy Blattner slammed two homers including a two-run poke in the seventh inning that broke up the first game in favor of the Giants.

Coaker Triplett belted two round - trippers and drove in five runs for the Bisons in the second game. Johnny Bero and Anse Moore also hit circuit drives for the Bisons. Moore's clout was his 18th of the year.

Two Dark Horses Emerge in Amateur Golf Title Hunt

Toronto, June 25 (CP)—Two dark horses emerged from yesterday's first two rounds of match play for the Ontario Amateur Golf Championship, which will be decided today and Saturday over the Rosedale Club's tricky par 70 layout.

Bruce Dorman of Hamilton Ancaster confounded the experts with a convincing 5 and 4 victory over Rod Phelan, who was third in the medal play Wednesday.

Phil Golding of Toronto Sarboro then came in with a 2 and 1 score over the veteran John Koval of Sarnia. The 19-year-old Golding had never before played in tournament match play.

Defending champion Rudy Horvath of Windsor made the locker-room boys feel better when he won his two matches yesterday to enter the quarter-finals with Dorman and Golding.

Phil Farley of Toronto Scarboro also plays today and is the only other former champion to remain in the tournament with Horvath.

Other quarter-finalists are Don Varey, Brantford; Emerson Creed, Barrie, Bud Donovan, Toronto Scarboro and D. McKellar, Oakville.

Quarter-Finals on

The eight quarter-finalists teed off this morning for 18-hole tests on the 6,300-yard course. The semi-finals are scheduled for the afternoon with the two finalists decided by night. The finalists play 36 holes Saturday.

In the second round yesterday Carey defeated S. B. Bissell, London; Creed topped Bud Rothschild of Toronto Oakdale; Donovan won from Mike Cassidy, Toronto St. Andrews; McKellar topped Dave Morland of North Bay; Farley took Dr. M. J. (Mac) Gibson of Toronto Scarboro; and Horvath edged Paul Paletti of Toronto Scarboro.

One-half of a brother act, Dave Morland of North Bay triumphed in the first round but lost to McKellar in the second. Brother Bill lost his first round match.

Gerry Kesselring of Kitchener Rockway, junior Canadian champion, lost a surprising 2 and 1 decision to Bud Rothschild of Toronto Oakdale in the first round.

Another surprise was Jim Boeckh's loss in the first round of the consolation flight. Boeckh is a former holder of the championship and was last year's medallist.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

The player of a grand slam must sometimes live dangerously. If his situation is desperate he may have to resort to desperate measures. As in the case of this deal:

NORTH

SOUTH

♥None
♦None
♣A 9 8 7 6 5

South was shoved into a final contract of seven spades. East doubled for penalty. His partner had bid diamonds and might take a trick or two. He felt he should take a couple in hearts.

Opening lead from west was heart queen, the suit bid by his own partner. You can see what declarer was up against. Safety of the contract depends on losing no tricks in the black suits.

With five outstanding clubs, what could you expect? The third round must be ruffed in dummy or it will lose. To safely ruff, dummy must use up the trump queen. What then?

Opponents are known to have four trumps. Their usual split is three and one. If so, south ace and king will not pick them up and a trick in trumps will be lost.

Therefore, the hope is that east holds the three trumps one of the opponents may have. If so, a trump lead from dummy should come back for a finesse by south.

South ruffed trick one. Trick two was a round of clubs with the dummy king. Trick three was a club round with south ace. A small south club is ruffed with dummy queen and opponents are out of clubs.

Dummy returns the small trump. When east does not put on the jack, south finesses the ten. It was a desperate act. But it worked. Two south top trumps are cashed and the rest is laydown.

This play would look silly if west had the lone spade jack or the jack with only one more spade. It shows on how little may depend success or failure.

A champ may be chump by no more than a bump.

Hollywood, June 25 (AP)—Movie stars are hitting the road.

Filmsters are touring the country to get back in touch with the public and—oh, yes—to make some money. Dan Dailey, latest to tour, wants to build a traveling unit of an orchestra and some vaudeville acts and he makes no bones about his idea behind it.

"I'll tour the big cities where the money is," he said on the "Chicken every Sunday" set. I figure 10 weeks on the road will earn me about $100,000."

Calamity Janes

Yvonne Decarlo of Vancouver, is the latest to join the calamity Jane Sweepstakes. She is supposed to play the famed frontier gun gal in "The Story of Sam Bass" for which James Stewart is being courted.

Shirley Temple's mother, who did a wonderful job of rearing her famous tot, claims she has retired. But she often brings Shirley's lunch on the "Baltimore Escapade" and stays to renew memories.

Nina Foch found it pays to be stubborn. Returning from her Broadway triumph, she found Columbia wanted to put her back in its b hive. She risked a suspension by refusing to do the cheap films. So she was given leads in pictures with Glenn Ford and William Holden.

Houstons; Corbys Defeat Bankers, Stewart-Warner

Playing before a good - sized crowd at the Alemite Field Thursday evening the Houston Lumber Company's "Knotholers" downed the Bankers 8-5 in the opener and Corbys whipped the Stewart Warner squad 8-5 in the finals.

In an extremely well played game, marked by tight fielding and good base running the Houston Knotholers squeezed out the Bankers 8-5, in the opener. Bankers opened the scoring in the top of the first as lead-off man Button walked. Brown went down and Edwards drew a pass advancing Button. Button scored on a passed ball and a fielder's choice.

Houstons counted twice in their half of the first on three singles. Three walks, a wild pitch and a passed ball gave the Bankers two more tallies in the third. Houstons knotted the count is their half of the third as Woods singled and stole second. Woods stole third and scored as the pitcher overthrew the base.

Houstons went one up in the fourth as Taylor singled in Locke who had doubled. The Lumber crew pushed two more across in the fifth on two walks. With one down Woods and Adams walked. Woods stole second and third and scored on a fielder's choice. Adams came in with the other counter on a passed ball.

Bankers Rally

Bankers rallied in the sixth, counting twice on doubles by Bertrim and Button. With two down Brisban got on on a fielder's choice and scored as Bertrim doubled to right. Button drove in Bertrim as he pounded one to left centre.

Houstons sewed up the ball game in their end of the sixth with two runs on the second Banker error, a single and a double. Culkin opened the inning with a blistering liner to third which was taken by a thoroughly surprised Davis. Taylor went all the way to third as the left fielder bobbled, and scored as Burshaw went down pitcher to first. Spafford singled and scored as Wardaugh doubled.

Bankers went scoreless in the seventh.

Tummon, on the mound for the Bankers, went the route walking two, striking out four, and giving up nine hits for eight runs. Burshaw, went the distance for Houstons to rack up his fourth straight win. He walked seven, struck out 11, and gave up five hits for five runs.

The line ups:

Bankers: Button c; H. Brown 1b; G. Edwards 2b; T. Tummon p; B. Shaw cf; R. Bateman, replaced by Milligan in 4th, rf; B. Davis 3b; J. Brisban lf; K. Bertrim ss and rf.

Errors proved the undoing of the Stewart Warner nine as they fell victims to Corby's 8-5 in the night game.

Stewart Warner opened the scoring in the bottom of the first as Leforte singled and came all the way home on passed balls.

Corby's scored three times in the fourth on two hits, two errors and a passed ball. Downing reached first as the second baseman bobbled and went to second on the overthrow. Miller singled to score Downing and J. Adams got a life as the third baseman miscued. Sword got on on a fielder's choice as Miller scored. Doug Sword singled to drive in Adams.

Stewart Warner evened the count in their half of the fourth on five singles. Poor base running ruined their chances for a great rally. Breadman, Harris, Martin, Gray and Bendon, singled in succession but Harris was thrown out first to home as he waltzed along the third base line, and Gray went down third to home as he was trapped leading off third base.

Doug Sword's home run smash to deep centrefield with the bases loaded in the fifth gave Corby's the ball game. Two walks and an error loaded the bases. Hunter counted first as he singled and came home on a fielder's choice.

Alemites counted two more in their half of the fifth on two walks and two singles.

Schrieder went the route for Stewart Warner walking four, striking out six, and giving up six hits for eight runs. B. Sword went all the way for Corby's walking four, striking out six, and giving up nine hits for five runs. Two Corby double plays cut off any threatening rallies by the Alemite nine. Lineps:

Corby's: D. Sword 3b; W. Mills 2b; K. Baldwin cf; Hunter ss; Downing 1b; Storms c; Miller replaced by Wagar in 5th, rf, J. Adams lf; B. Sword p.

NOTHING TO INTERFERE WITH EXPORT TO U. S.

Ottawa, June 25 — (CP) — Trade Minister Howe said in the Commons Thurs. there is nothing to interfere with the export of Ontario wheat to the United States at present.

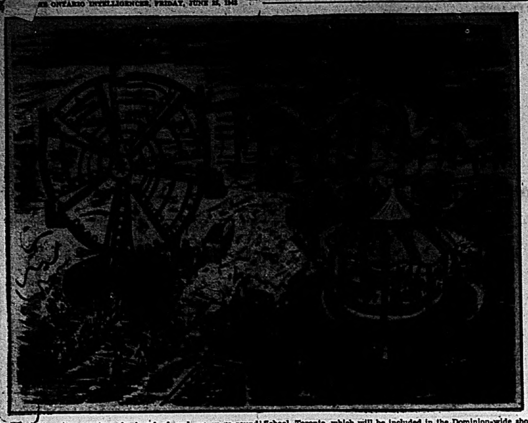
However, he told W. Earl Rowe (PC — Dufferin - Simcoe) that the question of exports to the U. S. in the coming crop year will depend on whether the international wheat agreement is implemented.

The agreement, a marketing arrangement among 36 countries including Canada, may not be made effective if the U. S. Congress does not ratify it before July 1.

Later, Mr. Howe told C. E. Stephenson (PC — Durham) that buckwheat, like other coarse grains, is under export control.

B. C. DRY SPOT

Burnaby, B.C. — (CP) —While many residents of British Columbia were suffering from the effects of recent floods, this town was without water for over 24 hours. Water supply from the chief source was cut off for a changeover to a new 90-inch main.



Sunnyside's roller coasters, ferris wheel and merry-go-round ade a fine subject for painting by Janice Mason of Davisville School, Toronto, which will be included in the Dominion-wide show of school art at this year's CNE.

hiladelphians ore Intersted n Fistic Battle

Philadelphia, June 25 (CP) — is dignified old Pennsylvania y—surprisingly like a larger ronto — took Tom Dewey's mination for the presidency lmly. It was more interested in e postponement of the Louis-alcott fight.

Up and down market and Broad reets—roughly comparable to y and Queen Streets in Toronto—Philadelphians appeared thargic and uninterested. Only ter Dewey's nomination was ere any public demonstration. Conversations a visitor heard the streets and restaurants, the rs and railway stations, did t concern the convention.

I watched the nomination on television. When I went into one downtown bar for the evening session half a dozen bobby-soxers were playing the juke box. I asked a waitress if the television machine would be turned on.

"Sure," she said. "Don't worry, we'll have the fight."

Customers drifted in until there were 22 by actual count. While waiting for the fight—scheduled to take place in New York's Yankee Stadium at 10 p.m.—the bartender grudingly turned on the convention telecast. During the early stages, the jute box blared and a couple of men steadily and monotonously played pin-ball machines.

More Interest in Fight

Then the scene quieted and the customers really listened to the political manoeuvres which gave Dewey the nomination. But there was much more interest when news of the fight was given at intervals. There was a collective groan when it was announced the fight had been rained out.

Judging by the telecasts, the activities in convention hall didn't seem to have much more drive. When Dewey appeared to make his acceptance speech, he received an ovation lasting less than two minutes.

Although candidate Harold E. Stassen ran third—far behind Dewey and Senator Robert A. Taft of Ohio—he seemed to receive more applause from the convention hall galleries and delegates.

AT ANTIQUE FAIR

A wonderful example of an Elizabethan glass goblet made in London in 1587, ten years before the Spanish Armada set sail for England, is being shown at the Eighth Antique Dealers' Fair at Grosvenor House, Park Lane, London, from June 10 to June 25. The goblet made by Giacomo Verzelini and engraved by Anthony de Lysle is 8 3-4 inches high and the diameter of the bowl 3 3-4 inches. It is the earliest known perfect example of a Verzelini glass goblet and only seven others are known to exist, five of them badly damaged.

Landlord Claims Victim Threatened To Kill Woman

Toronto, June 25 — (CP) — Fredrick Farrell, who was beaten to death with an ax June 12, was quoted Thursday by his landlord as saying he was going to kill the woman charged with his murder because "she drank up all my hard-earned money."

At the preliminary hearing of Yvonne Brouillette, 34, charged with murdering Farrell, the landlord, Nicholas Tennyson, told how Mrs. Brouillette was beaten by Farrell.

"I'm going to beat her up tonight because she drank up all my hard-earned money; I'm going to kill her." Farrell was quoted by Tennyson as saying the night of the slaying.

Mrs. Brouillette stuck her head inside my door and said 'good night.' She went to her room at the rear of the ground floor. Then Farrell came around a few minutes later, stopped in and said 'Hello.'

"He went to the room and I heard a thumping. I heard her cry 'What's the matter Jack?'

"I went to the room and saw Mrs. Brouillette bleeding profusely from her nose at the sink. She was pleading with him not to beat her."

When Farrell began beating her with his open hands on the base of her neck, Tennyson said he went for the police. They both promised to be quiet and there was no trouble for a while after the police left.

Later, Mrs. Brouillette, with a bump on her nose and marks near her right eye, came into his bedroom and told the landlord that Farrell had broken her nose.

"Come down and see him, I killed him," she said.

DEATH TO MOTHS

London — (CP) — A new scientific discovery, that of moth-proofing woollens so that they are indigestible to moths, was recently announced here by the International Wool Secretariat. The moth grub's favorite food is soaked in a solution instead of the usual spraying with chemicals that eventually wash off.

MONKEY TRICKS

Great Yarmouth, England — (CP) — Three monkeys, escaped from a beach show, played hide-and-seek for seven hours on house roofs as firemen tried to net them. Minnie, female of the trio, was caught first. The second "surrendered" when he was playing in a bathroom, turning the water on and off. The third was cornered in another house.

Last Witness Appears Before Prices Committee

Ottawa, June 25 — (CP) — Examination of the last witness to be heard by the price committee, a trade union representative, Thursday led to one of the most tempestuous sessions in the group's hearings.

The witness was Sam Baron of Montreal, Canadian director of the Textile Workers' Union of America (C.C.L.) He was heard despite the protests of Roch Pinard (L-Chambly Rouville) and Jean LeSage (L-Montmagy-L'Islet), who argued that there was not enough time for his evidence, and that his brief should be filed unread. They were overruled by chairman Paul Martin and other members of the committee.

Mr. Baron said that textile workers' wages, on the basis of Dominion Bureau of Statistics figures, were the lowest factory rates except in the leather and tobacco industries.

Mr. Pinard sought to prevent Mr. Baron from reading this portion of his brief, arguing that it was irrelevant. He was supported by Donald Fleming (PC-Toronto Eglinton). Mr. Martin ruled that it was a proper submission.

JUVENILE "HYPNOTIST"

Sydney, Australia — (CP) — After an experiment in mass hypnotism by broadcast here, a station was swamped by calls asking how to restore people who had listened. One woman said her husband was unconscious but she didn't know whether it was from the experiment or from a toy engine her little boy had dropped on his head.

Business Spotlight

(By The Canadian Press)

Signature by President Truman of two appropriation measures which give more than $10,000,000,000 for expansion of the United States Army, Navy and Air Force, is a further reminder of the demands which are being made upon the productive power of North America.

It adds to and is nearly double the European recovery program, and like the latter will affect Canada, because of the raw materials which will be required.

Such demands explains the apparent strength underlying the industrial and base metal sections of the stock markets, and it is difficult to see the economy at other than a high peak for some time to come.

The economic scene, however, has some contradictions. People are earning a lot of money, but for large sections of the population, including "white - collar" workers, high prices are limiting purchasing power.

On the whole there continues a strong contest between factors of activity which forces prices up, and factors of strained purchasing power which act to some degree as a brake. The early months of the year gave encouragement that prices might level-off; later this process was reversed.

Markets Thursday

New York Stock Exchange Thursday decided Wednesday's advance was enough for the moment, and after some attempt at further gains ended about even except for oils, which took a beating.

In Toronto industrials gained almost a point in the exchange index and base metals a half-point. Western oils were slightly off and golds about even. In Montreal industrials and papers were up in the averages, with banks, utilities and golds off.

In Chicago wheat gained but corn and oats were off, while oats and barley tended lower in Winnipeg.

Schoharie

Schoharie — Mr. and Mrs. Ormel Leavitt, son and daughter, of Frankford were Sunday dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Norman Leavitt and family.

Miss Shirley Foster is spending holidays with her brother and his wife, Mr. and Mrs. Blaine Foster, Bethel.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Foster, Margaret and Ross, attended the Foster - Collier wedding at Bloomfield parsonage, and the reception later at Maple Inn, Picton.

Mr. and Mrs. Norman Leavitt and family were Sunday supper guests of Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Reed, Mount Pleasant.

Members of the Live Women's Circle were delightfully entertained by Mount Pleasant Ladies Aid on Wednesday last at the home of Mrs. Elmer Morris when several other "Aids" were also guests.

Congratulations are extended to Shirley Foster, Henry Leavitt, and George Hanna on receiving their "entrance" standing without writing exams.

Mr. and Mrs. James Hanna entertained Miss Phyllis Hughes, Mr. John Howard, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Bigg and Douglas on Monday evening, the occasion being Miss Hughes' birthday.

Mr. and Mrs. Morley Grosse of Greenbush were Sunday visitors of the former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. M. Grosse.

Mr. and Mrs. John McGee accompanied Mr. and Mrs. Stewart Wood of Hillier to Bancroft on Wednesday to attend the funeral of Mr. Pete Munroe.

Yu'An Hee See Laughs

By Sax Rohmer

"Very good. I am perhaps foolish, but in London everything went wrong. Since this is our biggest venture, I thought that the auguries were unfavorable."

Across the coarse but handsome features of the Egyptian a momentary cloud passed, its passage instantly detected by those nearly closed eyes of Yu'an Hee See.

"You also have been disturbed?" The voice was very soft but incredibly high.

"No, no, Excellency!" Aswami forced a smile. "One of the men rather alarmed me on the night we met in Paris."

"It was the Scotsman? He must be watched."

"No, not Maclles. I distrust him only when he is sober. Also, I have arranged to replace him if necessary. But Kid Brown exchanged words with a stranger downstairs in the restaurant."

"Tell me about this."

"He went down with Franz Hartog, our second engineer, whom he had thrashed for a breach of Orders. And this stranger, except for some Russian idiots, was the only person in the restaurant. Too late, he reported the matter to me, admitting that he may have been indisreet."

There was a momentary silence; then:

"Repeat to me," said Yu'an Hee See, "in the man's own words, exactly what he reported to you, including his description of this stranger."

Those desperately drab streets which lead from the docks at Marseilles to the more habitable quarters of the city were several inches deep in an unpleasant kind of light yellow mud. The buildings were yellowish grey; the sky was of this muddy complexion also.

"Simply too unbelievably pigsty," Eileen declared, as the taxi floundered and thumped through the morass. "And I'm real sorry I started."

"That's rather mean of you, Eileen," said Jack Rattray, the first officer, smiling his slow smile. "Don't you think so, doctor?"

Dr. Oestler, who sat upon the girl's left—the three were paiked in like sardines—patted Eileen's arm soothingly.

"At least, Miss Kearney," he said, "it makes a small change. We shall not be ashore again until we reach Port Said. Yes? And what does it matter, this mud and the grey sky? Ha? Presently we shall be convivial with a little cocktail—ha? And it makes a small change."

Eileen turned to him and laughed. The outstanding characteristics of the Austrian doctor, as she had discovered during their short acquaintance, was his astonishing ability of soothing.

They presently reached a hotel, turned into the little lounge on the right of the door, and sat down at a table.

"Good Lord!" said Eileen. "There's that ghastly woman —with the chief!"

Near a pillar leaning very close together across a small table, were the chief engineer of the Wallaroo and a big, dark woman, apparently half-caste, handsome in her way, but of a generously curving figure not strictly fashionable.

"Good old Corky," said Jack Rattray. "He's a fast worker. He's well away with the lion tamer."

"Look who's here!" Eileen exclaimed.

Dr. Oestler and Jack Rattray stared across the lounge. Their popular fellow traveller, Mr. Durham, was coming to them.

"Ha!" cried Dr. Oestler. "It is our Mr. Durham. He is leaving us—yes?"

"Yes," Rattray confirmed. "I should like to have a final with him before I go back to the ship." now.

"Doctor and Mr. Rattray," he said, "I hope you will take a stirrup cup presently. Miss Kearney —if your friends can spare you for a moment—I have a private message for you. But I shan't detain you more than two minutes."

They left the lounge and walked upstairs, to where, upon a seat in an alcove outside the dining room, a man was waiting. A soft brown hat and a white raincoat lay beside him.

"Oh!" Eileen gasped, and clutched Durham's arm. Her face grew suddenly pale. Then this pallor was swept by a swift color.

Dawson Haig stood up. "I haven't frightened you, Eileen? I couldn't think of any other way."

When Mr. Franz Hartog came on board the Wallaroo at Marseilles to take possession of his cabin on D deck (both berths in which had been reserved in London), through a partly open door across the narrow alleyway Dawson Haig was watching. He saw the tall, blond German whom, with bloody mouth, he had seen coming down the stairs of the Restaurant Suleiman Bey!

Unseen, Dawson Haig left his hiding place and went up to the captain's room. Captain Peterson was seated at his desk, which was littered with papers. He was badly worried about this voyage. The gold was a big responsibility, in the first place, and now, to his other troubles had been added this sudden appearance of an official from Scotland Yard.

"I was right, captain," said Dawson Haig. "It's my man!"

The captain smiled resignedly. "It's a complete muddle to me, inspector," he confessed. "Whatever is it all about? If this fellow is a criminal, why don't you arrest him? I shall be glad to be rid of him."

"Thank you," said Haig. "It isn't so simple as that. But here's the position, roughly: You have five passengers on board the Wallaroo, whom I suspect with good reason of being members of a dangerous international gang."

"Five!" said the skipper, staring under tufted eyebrows. "Have they all come aboard here?"

"No. Four joined you in London."

"Holy smoke! What's afoot, inspector?"

"If I knew that, sir, I should know what I'm here to find out," was Haig's reply. "Certain evidence came into our possession in London which seemed to point to the fact that members of a gang of dope dealers, receivers of stolen property, and other undesirable trades, were sailing in your ship. The exact number of the rooms occupied by them were discovered—"

"Got those numbers?"

"I am almost certain I have. My list, however, was made from memory. But in a certain Paris cafe, which we believe to be a meeting place of these people, I recently had a sight of a certain man. Today he has joined the Wallaroo, as a passenger. His room, booked in London, is one of those which I have on the list! I think it's safe to presume, captain, that the other four suspects should be watched?"

"I entirely agree with you, inspector."

"The French authorities have just notified me," Haig went on, "that three other men—all they could trace—who were present at the restaurant I have mentioned, have all set out by different routes for the Near East... looks like a general assembly at some spot unknown. It's my job to find that spot, captain: because, if I do find it, I expect to meet there the man who murdered Detective Sergeant Norwich in Limehouse the night before the Wallaroo sailed...."

As the result of this conversation, a new passenger joined the ship—only a few minutes before she left Marseilles: a certain Mr. Smith, who wore tinted spectacles. He was allotted a seat at the doctor's table next to the distinguished Austrian scientist, Dr. Oestler.

On the following morning, one of the Chinese passengers, Mr. Len Chow, of New York went to the purser's office. He had a serious complaint to lodge. While he had been absent in the bathroom, someone rifled his cabin. He rather thought that his return had interrupted the intruder, as all sorts of papers were left strewn upon the floor, indicating a hurried retreat.

"Can you give me a list of the missing articles?" asked Winter, the purser.

Mr. Len Chow, his spectacled face unemotional, replied that none were missing.

"Then what's the row about?"

"The thief must be apprehended. He has rifled my papers. They are of great personal value."

"But no value to anyone else?"

"No."

"Are any missing?"

"No."

There was silence for some moments. "I'll make inquiries, Mr. Len Chow, naturally," said Winter; "but as you say he has stolen nothing, I really don't know how we are going to identify this person. Do you?"

"I cannot say. But I must be protected from such visits."

"I'll see what can be done....."

At about which time, Dawson Haig, with his cabin door locked, was rapidly making pencil notes, while his memory served him. He had been unable to complete his investigation, owing to the unexpected movements in the cabin which immediately faced that of Mr. Len Chow. He much regretted the disorder in which he had been compelled to leave the latter's apartment. It had been this or discovery, however.

Briefly, he had learned that Mr. Chow, according to his passport, was an American citizen, and that he could have been in England only a week, or possibly less, at the time that the Wallaroo sailed. He found a receipted bill from the Grand Hotel, Birmingham. It was sufficient to convince Haig that Mr. Chow had been engaged upon the frustrated dope smuggling enterprise; had probably been responsible for safe delivery in Sydney, to which port, apparently, he was booked.

A puzzling feature of his passport, which spoke of extensive travelling mostly in the Near East was a visa, bearing yesterday's date, by the Egyptian Consul in Marseilles, which strongly suggested that Mr. Chow's plans had been changed and that he was going ashore at Port Said.

Haig presently presented himself in the captain's cabin. There, he remained for a whole hour, busily transcribing from the borrowed Marconi books a number of incoming messages and outgoing messages, received or dispatched by the suspected five. While some of the messages seemed innocent enough, others, notably those sent by Dr. Oestler, quite obviously were compiled in some sort of code.

Haig went to his cabin and settled down before the little table to see what he could make of this new material.

The half-caste woman known as Miss Ednam, and supposed to be a vaudeville artist, Mr. Len Chow and Dr. Oestler were the suspects whose names appeared in the Marconi books.

Studying a list of telegraphic addresses, which the captain had borrowed from the wireless room, Haig discovered that Mr. Chow's first two messages had been addressed to "Lilung Causeway London."

"Excellent," he murmured. "Lilung Causeway London" was the telegraphic address of Jo Lung's establishment in Limehouse!

The messages themselves were simple enough. They were these:

One: "Arranged to transfer or signed Chow."

Two: "Your friend is on board signed Chow".

"That's clear enough," Haig mused. "He is informing friend Polodos that he has arranged to cancel from Port Said to Sydney and is leaving at the former. He later sends the information that there is a 'friend' on board, meaning Durham, of course. Durham thought he was spotted. He was quite right."

Then, in order of date was an incoming message which read:

"Meurice Paris sixteen to eighteen signed Pascal."

Mr. Len Chow's third message, addressed to "Pascal Hotel Meurice Paris" read:

"our friend leaving us at Marseilles signed Chow."

At which moment came the sound of a loud rap on the cabin door. Dawson Haig hastily adjusted his tinted glasses.

Eileen Kearney stood outside. In a green jumper suit and beret, her cheeks freshened and her eyes brightened by sea breezes, she looked absurdly young and disturbingly beautiful.

"You positively startled me, Eileen, Haig cut in quickly. Did anybody see you?"

"No!" she said breathlessly. "But I heard someone coming along the main alleyway and had to run!" She stepped inside and closed the door.

"It's good to see you," Haig declared. "But, according to our arrangements at Marseilles, I'm not supposed to know you yet! What's happened?"

"This," Eileen replied, speaking very rapidly: "Last night I was awakened by someone banging at a near-cabin door. I distinctly heard him say, 'Marconi message.'"

"That would be Dr. Oestler's cabin," said Haig. He stooped over his notes, scanning them rapidly until he came to the last of several messages received by Dr. Oestler. "That must have been about half-past three this morning?" he suggested.

"It was. Do you mean that you have the message there?"

Dawson Haig smiled wryly. "I certainly have it here," he replied. "Shall I read it to you?"

"Yes, please do. Then I can tell you if—"

"Tell me what?"

"If it's the same."

Haig stared at her in a certain bewilderment, then: "This is it," he said:

"Cestler passenger RMS Wallaroo IBJH keeper searchlight near home stop know tell."

He looked up smiling. "Does that convey anything to you, Eileen?"

Mason Foundation To Operate Paper, Radio Enterprises

Sudbury, June 25 (CP) — The W.E. Mason Foundation established for charity several years before Mr. Mason's death last Tuesday, will operate his newspaper and radio enterprises, it was announced Thursday by executors of the estate. Provision will be made for the publisher's brother, sisters, nephews and nieces by way of annuities for their lifetime.

The executors said William Edge Mason had declared confidence in the managers of his enterprises which would continue under present management. The Sudbury Daily Star and Sudbury Realty and Holding Company will be headed by J. R. Meakes and radio station CKSO, Sudbury by W. J. Woodill. In North Bay the Nugget remains under management of J.F. Grainger and the St. Regis Hotel under management of W.G. Cornish.

Funeral services for the 66-year-old publisher who started in the newspaper business as a printer's devil, will be held at four o'clock E.D.T. today. The service was originally slated for Knox Presbyterian Church but has been transferred to the larger United Church to accommodate a larger crowd.

From the funds of the Foundation will be taken sufficient to construct a wading pool for children in Memorial Park. After this deduction 40 per cent of the residue will go for construction and maintenance of the proposed Sudbury General Hospital.

Executors and trustees of the Mason estate are George M. Miller, Sudbury solicitor; George Mason of Galt, a brother, and the Canada Permanent Trust Company.

Speaking for the executors Mr. Miller said: "We felt that the people of Sudbury and district who were familiar with many of the fine works to which Mr. Mason gave his whole-hearted support should know now that his kindliness and good work did not cease with his death, but will carry on."

Relatives for whom provision in form of annuities is made in Mr. Mason's will are his brother George; his sisters, Mrs. A. McLellan and Mrs. S. Rutherford, both of Galt; three nieces, Mrs. William Cornish of North Bay, Jean and Mary Rutherford of Galt; and three nephews, Robert Mason, Allan McLellan and Jack Rutherford, all of Galt.

THE DEWEYS FEEL WONDERFUL

Governor and Mrs. Thomas E. Dewey look mighty happy in this picture and with good reason. It was just announced that U. S. Senator Edward Martin of Pennsylvania had withdrawn as a favorite son candidate for the Republican presidential nomination and switched his allegiance to the New York contender. Gov. Dewey accepted the Republican Convention nomination for the presidental race in the United States next November. He declared himself "unfettered by any partisan obligation.

"Suitable" Action Will Be Taken to Push Food Convoy Under Authority of U.N.

By JAMES M. LONG

Cairo, June 26 — (AP) — The Israeli government, given the United Nations green light to push a convoy through Egyptian resistance, says it has told its general staff to take "suitable" action.

Its announcement was made in Tel Aviv Friday night after a U. N. spokesman and Jewish leaders said the Egyptians early Friday stopped a Jewish convoy bound for Negeb desert settlements in southern Palestine and shot at a U. N. truce-mission plane.

Egyptian Prime Minister Mahmour Fahmy Nokrashy Pasha told correspondents in Cairo an Egyptian pilot fired on the U. N. aircraft because "he suspected it was an enemy plane."

Of the convoy stoppage, the premier declared, "the Egyptian government never thought this would be construed as a violation of the truce."

The Israeli government said its earlier reports that Egyptian Spitfires had bombed the Jewish settlements of Beer Tuvya and Kefar Warburg Friday were erroneous.

Jewish army headquarters in Haifa said about the same time Jews had clashed with Arab units at El Birwa, inflicting 100 casualties. Fighting has been going on for two days in the village, seven miles east of Haifa. U. N. truce observers are investigating.

U. N. Headquarters at Lake Success, N.Y., announced that nine countries had reported steps to stop the flow of men and materials to Palestine. The countries are: Canada, the United States, China, India, Italy, Hungary, Greece, New Zealand and Switzerland.

Three American destroyers acting for the U. N. arrived off Haifa.

The Israeli government said Mrs. Golda Myerson has been appointed Israel's representative to the Soviet Union and Pavel Ivanovitch Yershov, now charge d' affaires in Turkey, will be Russian minister to Israel.

Four Romanians Given Life Terms For War Crimes

Bucharest, June 26 (AP) — A Bucharest criminal court today sentenced four former Romanian army officers to life terms on charges of killing 10,000 or more Romanian Jews in 1941.

The officers were among 32 defendants. Four were acquitted and others received terms varying from life to 15 years.

The army men sentenced to life were Gen. George Stavrescu 58; Col. Constantin Lupu, 51; Col. Cumitru Captaru, 54; Col. Ermil Maties, 58. Aurel Triandas, 29 also got life.

The indictment charged that the Jews were killed in four days after Romania and Germany attacked Russia. Wartime Premier Marshal Ion Antonescu was said to have ordered 500 Jews killed in Jassy for signalling Russian parachutists and firing on German troops. Antonesu was executed two years ago as a war criminal.

RUNS INTO POISON IVY

Toronto, June 26 — (CP)—Two youths who said they walked most of the way from Ottawa reached journey's end here Friday night. They were Jerry Paquette, 15, and John Gibson, 14. They said they set out to find berry picking jobs in central Ontario but the Paquette boy ran into poison ivy while walking across a field. He will be in hospital four days.

Says She Feels Like Cinderella

Los Angeles, June 26 — (AP)—"Miss Secretary of 1948" felt just like Cinderella today.

A movie screen test, a week's singing on a Hollywood stage, and about $3,000 worth of prizes showered down on petite, 19-year-old June Hill Dry, of Reading, Pa.

She quitting her job in an insurance office there, she said, to try for a singing and acting career in the movies.

The pretty, personable winner is five feet, two inches tall, with green eyes and dark blonde hair in an upswept coiffure.

"I feel just like Cinderella," she beamed. "My ambition ever since I saw my first Shirley Temple picture has been to be in the movies."

Cinderella's Slippers Not of Glass But of Rabbit Fur Says Educationist

By GEORGE BRIMMELL
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Winnipeg, June 26 — (CP) — Striking close to what most of us hold near and dear, a prominent educationist, has taken a whack at the foundation of our culture and heritage.

He said Cinderella did not have glass slippers!

Dr. A. W. Trueman, retiring president of the University of Manitoba, Friday said all the slippers on Cinderella's dainty feet were made not of glass, but of common, ordinary rabbit fur.

Dr. Trueman dropped this bombshell during his last speaking engagement in Winnipeg before returning to his native New Brunswick to take the presidency of the University of New Brunswick.

In the original French story Cinderella clad her feet in comfortable fur-linedw slippers. The French word for rabbit fur was vair, a word quite close to ver, meaning glass.

And, said Dr. Trueman, in the translation the inevitable confusion resulted, and Cinderella wound up wearing glass slippers.

And there's some disillusionment in store for citizens of London who live within the sound of the Bow Bells and proudly call themselves Cockneys. Contrary to what most of them think, a cockney, the president said, means a strange egg.

PRICES STILL BIG ISSUE AS HOUSE HURRIES TO CLOSE

Committee's Report Will be Debated

Ottawa June 26 (CP) —Prices are still the big issue as the Commons hustles down the home stretch of a session marked by bitter criticism of the government's financial policies.

Debate on the prices committee's report is scheduled today. The report urges the government to take the sting out of its austerity measures and to do something to reduce the rising cost of living. Tabled Friday by Health Minister Martin, committee chairman, it may touch off a full-scale debate when he moves concurrence.

Finance Minister Abbott's last minute supplementary estimates include $50,000 to meet the expenses of a prices commission suggested by the committee.

He said he recommended the vote because he has little doubt the Commons will adopt the suggestion.

Other steps which the committee said should be considered by the government:

1. Removal of last November's emergency excise taxes on "commodities in common use."
2. Removal of the prohibition of import of fruits and vegetables.
3. Reimposition of individual price controls and temporary subsidies where it is clear that hardship will otherwise results.
4. Consideration of the Canadian supply position and the interests of prdoucers and consumers before removal of embargoes prohibiting export of foods from Canada.
5. Revision of rent-control regulations to remove hardship in certain cases.

Prior to the tabling of the report, Mr. Abbott told the house the government believes it will be possible to allow certain fruits and vegetables to come into the Dominion under quota "toward the end of 1948."

The excise taxes, imposed as part of the austerity program, cover a wide range of durable consumer goods ranging from automobiles to electrical appliances. Some are straight 25-per-cent taxes; others raised existing 10-per-cent levies to 25 per cent.

The committee recommended two straight-from-the-shoulder counter-measures: Taxation of unreasonable profits and amendment of existing legislation, if necessary, to permit action in cases involving "flagrant profitteering at the consumer's expense."

These "conclusions" also were recorded:

1. The committee was impressed by the importance of the combines investigation commissioner in preventing practices tending to increase prices.
2. Terms of business incorporation under the Companies Act should provide for a uniform system of accounting.
3. The Companies Act should be amended to provide for more complete disclosure of inventory reserves in computing profits.
4. Co-operation of the provinces will be needed in dealing with prices because, in the long run, constitutional difficulties may arise through federal operations in this field.
5. The Dominion Bureau of Statistics should publish periodically an analysis of the division of the consumer dollar. It should also publish total sales, operating income and net profits of principal industries.
6. The only permanent solution to the problem of high prices is increased production.

What War in Arctic Area Would be Like Pictured At Medical Convention

Toronto, June 26 (CP) — Canadian soldiers fighting in an Arctic war would likely escape most diseases and ills of civilization—but they'd face frost-bite, water shortage and lack of laundry and sanitary facilities.

This opinion was expressed Friday by Lt. Col J. N. Crawford of Ottawa, at closing sessions of the Canadian Medical Association's convention. He described medical aspects of war in the far north to some of the convention's 1,979 doctor delegates.

Outcome of an Arctic war would be "forced quickly" Col. Crawford told the C.M.A.'s armed forces' section.

He said small detachments of troops would fight on a narrow front. Fighters would be airborne as parachutists or glider troops or would travel overland. Their supplies would be flown in or brought by tractor train. atomic bomb attack on Canada. would be caused by flash-burns, blast and radiation, said Dr. W. R. Franks of Toronto. Doctors would find burns and blast effects similar to those caused by orthodox air bombs. Treatment of multiple ray radiation injuries would be the principal medical problem.

The convention heard a recommendation from Dr. G. H. Stevenson of London, Ontario psysciatrist, that jurjes should not consider insanity as a legal defence. He spoke in a panel discusion after Ontario Chief Justice J. C. McRuer outlined the the fundamental principles of insanity as a defence.

"Juries have not the technical training necessary to appreciate the scientific aspects of insanity," Dr. Stevenson said.

S. African Govt. Has Surplus Of $20,000,000

Johannesburg, June 26—(Reuters) — Consideration of the budget will be one of the first tasks of the new South African parliament when it assembles Aug. 6.

Its first meeting has been delayed until this date to enable Finance Minister N. C. Havenga to repare a new draft of what the government considers essential to this stage — a first popular budget.

In this task, he will be helped by a surplus of more than £5,000,000 ($20,000,000) left by the United Party government.

The draft which Havenga's predecessor, F. C. Sturrock, intended to introduce in August is likely to be considerably changed, says the political correspondent of the Rand Daily Mail.

But Havenga is expected to implement the assurance given by the United Party government that old age and other pensions will be increased at a total cost of £2,500,000.

Other matters to be dealt with include a plan for the reimposition of import control, the union's decreased gold reserves, and the urgent need to devote the country's limited dollar holdings to the acquisition of essential imports.

The concensus here is that the first session of the new parliament will be short, probably only about 10 weeks to deal with legislation of immediate urgency.

Other business will probably include a bill, drawn up by the United Party government, for the control of the union's uranium resources. Eris Louw, minister of mines and economic development, will have the task of piloting this through the Assembly.

Man Had 'Beautiful Way of Talking', Convicted of Larceny

New York, June 26 (AP)—A $47-a-week elevator starter, who a witness said had "such a beautiful way of talking," was convicted Friday night of squandering $118,000 his friends gave him to invest.

Gus Fusaro, 54, was found guilty by a jury on five counts of grand larceny.

Assistant District Attorney Francis Clark said Fusaro posed as a big-time Wall Street operator to talk friends into turning money over to him for investment in the stock market.

One of the 13 persons who testified they had given money to Fusaro said:

"He had such a beautiful way of talking that I didn't think we'd lose any money."

Weather Synopsis

Toronto, June 26 (CP) —Synopsis: A large high pressure area centred over Northern Ontario is bringing clear cool weather to most of the province this morning. A weak disturbance in the central states is moving slowly eastward and will bring showers to western Ontario by Sunday evening. Temperatures will rise over most of the province as warmer air pushes in, in advance of this disturbance.

New Brunswick Voters to Polls On Monday

Fredericton, June 26 (CP) — From one end of New Brunswick to the other, voters will go to the polls Monday to elect the Province's 20th and largest legislature.

Voters, however, actually have only two choices in party ranks.

Liberals and Progressive Conservatives are the only parties with enough standard bearers in the field to form a government in the new 52-seat house.

The Liberals, with five members already elected by acclamation, have 47 candidates in the remaining 16 constituencies. All ridings in the province are multiple, ranging from two to five seats.

The Progressive Conservatives, who formed the official opposition in the House that dissolved May 18, have a total of 40 candidates.

The C.C.F., previously expected to make a strong bid, had only 20 in the running when nominations closed June 14. Five Social Credit aspirants, making the party's first bid in New Brunswick, and eight Independents round out the slate.

The 52-seat House, largest in the Province since Confederation, was brought about by the addition of four new seats under a partial redistribution.

No new ridings are created as the new seats give additional representation to existing constituencies.

In the old 48-seat House, Liberals under 56-year-old Premier John B. McNair held 36 seats. The Conservatives under Hugh Mackay held 11, and an Independent, one..

Halifax, June 26 — (CP) — Importation of an entire German industry to Nova Scotia is being considered by the provincial government, Industry Minister Connolly told the convention of the Nova Scotia Music Teachers' Association Thursday.

He said members of his department would leave shortly for Germany to bring technical advisers to the province. He did not say what type of industry was being considered.

Frank (Mike) Michael, 54-year-old market gardener and one of Ontario's best-known curlers, died in Oshawa yesterday. Funeral services will be held here Monday afternoon.

A life-long resident of East Whitby township, Mike had the distinction of never missing the Toronto annual bonspiel since its inception. He was a member of several rinks which brought the district cup and Ontario Tankard to Oshawa on various occasions.

His widow was the former Charlotte May Harris of Madoc, Ont. Two sons, four sisters and a brother also survive.

COMMONS READY FOR PROROGATION SOME TIME TODAY

Order Paper Cleared Of All Main Business

Ottawa, June 26 — (CP) — Parliament likely will prorogue today if members agree to curtail debates on the cost of living and on estimates of a few departments of government.

The order paper has been cleared of main government business, but still pending is a debate on the report of the prices committee and on appropriations of what many consider the less important departments of government.

Party spokesmen said an agreement has been reached under which debate on the prices report will be limited to two speakers from each party if that agreement falls through, prorogation likely will not come until next Wednesday.

In an active session Friday, the Commons dealt with twp government bills and with the estimates of the resources, labor, fisheries, defence and revenue departments.

The day included these developments:

Prime Minister Mackenzie King announced the Federal government will pay a $5,000,000 grant to British Columbia.

Bear 75 P.C. of Cost

He also disclosed a federal undertaking to bear 75 per cent of the cost of repairing, strengthening and rebuilding Fraser Valley dikes. A supplementary estimate put that sum at $4,500,000.

British Columbia will contribute the remaining 25 per cent—$1,500,000.

Monies already spent by the armed services for relief and diking projects will be considered part of the two Dominion contributions, Mr. King said.

He also announced formation of a Fraser Valley diking board to carry out the diking phase of the recovery plan.

Justice Minister Ilsley said the government has not had an opportunity to consider a Senate motion that the legality of the ban on oleomargarine be tested before the Supreme Court of Canada.

Members adopted a bill extending import restrictions to conserve American dollars.

While the import restriction program was working satisfactorily, there were still some loopholes to be plugged. For instance, imports of American bicycles and tricycles were heavy enough in recent months to warrant their being placed on a quota list.

Trade Minister Howe reported that the control of capital imports also is working satisfactorily. Since the restrictions have been imposed new industries have been established in Canada and new products have been produced.

However, restrictions could not be relaxed until multi-lateral trade is re-established.

BURMESE TROOPS RECAPTURE WAW

Rangoon ,June 26 (AP)—The Burmese government said today its troops recaptured Waw, about 100 miles from here on the road to Mandalay, from Communist Insurgents.

News dispatches said the Communists seized the town on Wednesday. A government communique said it was retaken the following day. The bulletin made no mention of casualties.

New Currency of Western Allies Welcomed by People in West Berlin

By LYNN HEINZERLING

Berlin, June 26. (AP)—Worried Berliners asked one big question today—will the western allies leave Berlin under Russian pressure?

It is heard on all sides—in the food queues, in the long lines of Berliners waiting to exchange their old money for new, in the homes and on the corners. Most of them say this:

"Food, important a problem as it may be, is secondary for the moment: After all, we've lived for years never knowing whether we would get tomorrow's food ration. We know there's enough to eat for at least the next month. And by that time the crisis may be over. But will your westerns still be here?"

No one could yet give them the answer.

The 2,000,000 Germans in the western sectors of the city ,most of whom haven't had a big meal in more than three years, are experiencing again the discomforts of darkened homes.

What about the new currency issued by the Western Allies, which precipitated the Russian retaliations?

"It's a good thing," a waiter said.

This was the general view of the west sector Berliners who exchanged their old marks for the new Deutsche mark.

"The East (Soviet Zone) mark is the same old mark with a stamp on it," one said. "It has only the Russian zone behind it. You can buy seven of the new Russian marks with one of these west sector marks already." (The rate was 25 to 1 on some black markets).

Accused by Britain Of Trying to Create A State of Siege

British Foreign Office Backs Statement of U.S.

Berlin, June 26 — (AP)—The Russians' land blockade of Berlin continued today, and Britain accused the Soviet Union of trying ruthlessly to create a state of siege.

With the western powers in close consultation over their next step, the British Foreign Office said in a statement issued in London that the Soviet campaign, "by starving the helpless civilian population" of Berlin, seeks to gain political advantage at the expense of the west. The statement added:

"We intend to stay in Berlin."

This backed up an earlier statement by Gen. Lucius Clay, United States Military Governor, that no action short of war could drive the Americans from Berlin.

The Berlin blockade coincides with the western powers' currency reform, and efforts by Russia and the western powers to put their own brands of currency in circulation here.

As another angle of the western zones' current reform, Germans there were told they will get back one new deutsche mark for 10 old reichsmarks. This will be the conversion rate for an unspecified number of marks after 60 old marks have been traded in for deuteche marks on a one-for-one basis.

The British statement on Berlin said:

"Attention has been called to a report in Galiche Rundschau (official Soviet paper in Berlin) which presumes to define the attitude of His Majesty's government to recent events in Berlin.

Completely Untrue

"The report is completely untrue and is very far from representing His Majesty's Government's real attitude.

"The statement that we intend to stay in Berlin holds true.

"The opinion of the whole world will condemn this ruthless attempt of the Soviet government to create a state of siege in Berlin and so, by starving the helpless civilian population, to secure political advantages at the expense of the other Allied powers."

The Tagliche Rundschau had quoted British circles as saying Britain is considering methods of getting out of Berlin.

United States Ambassador Lewis Douglas called on Foreign Secretary Bevin in London for consultations on the tense situation.

Fly Drugs In

United States authorities started flying drugs into the city to fight the squeeze, which took the form of a rail freight blockade and a cessation of food and brown coal supplies from the surrounding Russian zone.

The Americans also announced plans to fly in powdered and condensed milk for German babies. Supplies of fresh milk have been shut off with other food supplies for some 2,000,000 Berliners in the city's western sectors. A barge was reported to have arrived from western Germany with grain and flour today, but there was no sign of a let-up of the land embargo.

ONTARIO GOVT. ORDERS PROBE IN MERCER RIOT

70 Policemen Called to Subdue Screaming Women in Institution

Toronto, June 26 (CP)—A new reform institution will be established here to replace Mercer women's reformatory, scene of a riot Friday by 100 female prisoners, George Dunbar, Ontario Minister of Reform Institutions announced today.

The new institution which will be established on a different site will provide for segregation of "tough" prisoners, he said.

Police, meanwhile, stood guard at the reformatory as plans went forward for an investigation into Friday's riot.

A. R. Virgin, director of reform institutions, announced the investigation. He said punishment of ringleaders would be withheld until the inquiry into the institution's first riot in 13 years was completed.

More than 70 policemen were called to subdue the screaming women, who swung chair legs and baseball bats and hurled crockery.

Officials said the trouble started after a 17-year-old girl, popular among the inmates, was placed in solitary confinement for fighting with another girl. After breakfast the inmates staged a sit-down strike to back their demand for the girl's release from what they called "the dungeon."

Police were called to put the women back in the cells of the west-end King Street west reformatory.

The women seized fire hoses and turned them on the police. They let go with heavy plates, cups and bowls. Most of the girls had a long standing dislike for policemen and they scratched and bit the officers who led them back to the cell blocks.

One policeman had his thumb almost bitten off. He said that he was saved only when his assailant's false teeth failed.

On the other hand, some of the women were frankly glad to see men. A good looking officer quotted a girl as saying to him:

"Oh, just let me hold your hand a minute. I haven't held a man's hand for so long!"

SAYS ARMS, AMMUNITION SMUGGLED IN

New Delhi, June 26 (AP)—A military spokesman said today the Indian government has evidence that arms and ammunition are being smuggled by plane into Hyderabad, a princely state which has refused to accede to India.

Some of the weapons are believed to be of Canadian manufacture, he said. Defence officials declared there was little India could do to intercept the night flying bombers carrying the arms.

High Standing In Musical World Given Army Band

The visit of the North Toronto Salvation Army Band to this city Wednesday night, presents the opportunity of enlightenment in regards to the rapid growth of the Salvation Army in the realm of music.

Commencing with a few instrumentalists for the purpose of accompanying singing, particularly on the street corner, the Army Band has now secured for itself a very high standing in the musical world. Particularly strong is the Salvation Army Brass Band movement in Canada, England, Australia and New Zealand.

In the realm of music the Army has had to start from scratch and provide scores for the small band and for the crack bands of the country. This they have done by dividing compositions into three classes, the second series for the smaller combinations, the ordinary journal for regular use and the festival sheet for program work. It is noticed that The North Toronto Salvation Army Band have several of these most difficult festival numbers on their program. The trombone solo, "A Never Failing Friend" was written by Bandmaster Eric Leidzen, who has arranged musical settings for the famous Goldman Band, which plays in Central Park, New York City, and a few years ago was the guest band at the Canadian National Exhibition, in Toronto.

The Army has accomplished a most magnificent task in the manufacture of their own instruments and it is nothing short of marvelous the rapid manner in which they filled the terrific demand for new instruments the world over, after the last great war. Particular notice was taken of the label on the packing boxes "Britain delivers the Goods."

The ranks of the Army Band the world over has been greatly reduced by the last war. One of the Army's most noted composers, Bandmaster Gullidge of Australia, with almost his entire band, joined the Australian Forces, and were all lost by enemy action in the Far East.

Tucker, 49, would have at least 19 seats in the new legislature.

Fresh peas were offered on the market for the first time this season with vendors asking 15 cents the berry box for unshelled peas. With the quantity of peas offered, however there was indication that this price would ease before the market was over.

New Pay Increases For Thousands In US Agreements

Chicago, June 26 (AP)— New pay raises for thousands of workers in some of the key industries of the United States — coal, steel, rubber and electric— were included in new agreements reached Friday between management and union officials.

Coal miners will have $1 a day additional in their pay envelopes beginning July 1, when the new contract becomes effective. The pact between the operators and John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers, also calls for setting up a $100,000,000-a-year welfare and pension fund. The steel industry which owns the so called "captive" mines, did not sign the new contract because a spokesman for the steel firms said it violated the Taft-Hartley act.

The producers who made the contract with Lewis mine 400,000,000 tons annually. Coal men estimated the new agreement will result in a boost in the cost of coal from 75 cents to $1 a ton.

In Pittsburgh, the Aluminum Company of America and the United Steelworkers Union (C.I.O.) agreed to terms providing pay boosts of 10 to 16 cents an hour for 18,000 C.I.O. employees.

The Aluminum company announced after the settlement, it would increase its basic price for aluminum by one cent a pound.

B. F. Goodrich Company followed the lead of two other big rubber companies today and granted 11-cent hourly raises for workers in seven plants.

Similar settlements have been reached with Goodyear Tire and Rubber Company and Firestone Tire and Rubber Company.

It was estimated that the boost brought base hourly rates at Goodrich to about $1.63.

A wage boost of nine to 16 cents an hour was announced by Westinghouse Electric Corporation in Pittsburgh to 1,500 production and salaried workers who are members of the International Brotherhood of Electrical works (A.F.L.)

Representatives of the United Automobile Workers (C.I.O.) in Detroit Friday made new pay demands for 110,000 hourly rate employees at the Ford Motor Company. The new demands, which add up to 28 cents an hour, were made after the union rejected Ford's offer of 11 to 14 cents an hour.

Kinsmen to Provide Full Eye Examination for All Pupils In Grade 1 of Schools in City

Commencing with the opening of the school term in September the local Kinsmen Club will provide full eye examination for all pupils in Grade 1 of the public and separate schools in the city.

In addition pupils found requiring eye treatment or glasses will have these provided by the Club at no cost.

For many years the local Kinsmen Club has conducted an eye clinic service in local schools and has provided glasses where they were needed, but the proposal to give full eye examination to all pupils of grade 1 will mean that approximately 375 pupils will be examined each year. This will be a beginning of the club's new service but it is hoped eventually that all pupils in all schools wil receive the examination.

The proposal was broached by members of the Kinsmen Club last spring and recently received the approval of the board of education. A meeting of the club executive this week with school principals, the school nurse, and schools administrator L. A. Kells resulted in the decision to examine the eyes of all Grade 1 pupils.

All public school principals were heartily in accord with the proposal as it has been demonstrated that if eye deficiencies are discovered early proper treatment may result in approximately 60 per cent being cured without resort to wearing of glasses.

The eye examination will be given by local optometrists with the school nurse to do the necessary filing.

Adjourn Recount Until July 5th

Picton — Recount of votes cast in Prince Edward - Lennox on June 7th was adjourned until July 5, by Judge W. S. Lane here yesterday. At a brief meeting a place and date satisfactory to all three candidates was decided upon. Due to the smallness of the Returning Officer's office and the Judges' Chambers, it was decided to hold the recount in the County Court House.

Mr. Hepburn was represented yesterday by Mayor Lance Nethery and Mr. Baxter by George Bagwell of Toronto. The third candidate, Thomas Creighton, was not represented by legal counsel.

The recount was requested by Mr. Hepburn, Progressive Conservative and former Speaker of the Ontario Legislature, who was defeated by Mr. Baxter by 51 votes. Mr. Hepburn charged irregularities in connection with the tabulation and counting of votes. It is expected that the recount will last three days as 14,000 ballots must be scrutinized.

Horses Rescued As Barn Burned, Hit by Lighting

Thomasburg, June 26 — During the severe electric storm which came early Wednesday evening the barn on the farm of Mr. Ross Robinson, east of Thomasburg, was struck by lightning and became all ablaze almost instantly. The horses were in the stable at the time and Mr. Robinson was able to save them, but harness and other barn and stable contents were lost as well as some farm machinery.

This was the first heavy storm to come this year. The rain was badly needed and will undoubtedly benefit the strawberry crop as well as being a benefit in general.

Sunday School Lesson of the Week

Do We Dare Believe In God?

By ROY L. SMITH

The word "belief" figures very conspicuously in religion, and it has long been the habit of religious people to divide the world into two clases; the believers and the unbelievers.

When Do We Believe

If we say we believe in a political party it means that we believe in a certain body of political principles, we believe in the party leaders, we vote fr the party's candidates, and we desire to live under the conditions which the party's policies would produce.

If we say we believe in a doctor it means that we would be willing to have him attend us when we are ill, we would be willing to take his medicine we would be willing to trust our loved one to his care or we would be willing to change our way of living if he ordered us to do so.

If We Believe in Jesus

Many people say they believe in Jesus Christ, but by that they only mean that they believe He really lived, that he said the things he is reported to have said and that he did the things the New Testament tells about. To believe thus is only to admit certain historical facts, but to really believe in Jesus is something much more inclusive and involving.

To believe in Jesus means that we believe He was right about life, that He had found a way to live life to the best advantage and that His program for life will ultimately succeed. To believe in Jesus means that one is ready to throw everything he is and has in on the side of those things Jesus favors, and in opposition to those things he deplored.

Malachi's Warnings

The old Hebrew prophet whose book is the last in the Old Testament undertook to strip away all the easy complacency with which his generation viewed God. He assured his readers it was dangerous business to believe in God.

He worshipped a God who could not be swayed by any cheap sentimentality, who could not be turned aside by flattery, who was immune to all forms of bribery. Instead he was exact, just, undeviating in his loyalty to righteous principles, and unalterably opposed to evil in all its forms.

He drew a strict line between the godly and the godless, the just and the unjust, the right and the wrong. And no man need expect any benefits because of God's favoritism. It was to be a terrible day in which to be alive if one were wrong, for the evil could expect no favors, and any man who pinned his faith on evil would go down.

Do We Dare Believe?

The basic lesson of this scripture can be summed up in the simple and searching question — do we dare believe in God?

Do we dare believe in a God of justice and go running our business as we are now running it?

Do we dare believe in a God who is the Father of all mankind and then refuse to aid His other children who are in dire distress?

For Sunday School lesson for June 27: from Malachi to Christ, Daniel 2:31-45; 8; 11; Malachi 3:1-5; 4; Luke 1:67-79; 2:25-33; John 10: 22-23.

Do we dare believe in God and pay admissions to entertainments which debauch the performers? Do we dare believe in a God of mercy and refuse to forgive those who have done us a wrong?

Do we dare believe in a God of wisdom and go on unchecked in our way of deliberate folly?

Do we dare believe in a God of sincerity and then continue in hypocricies, our double dealings, and our self-deceptions?

Do we dare believe in a God of power and then put our wits against his judgements, our conceits against his wisdom, and our evil desires against his endorsements of righteousness?

Do we dare say we believe in God just because we believe he exists? To really believe means to line up our every purpose, motive, desire, and ambition alongside his preferences and eliminate every one that does not conform.

To believe in God takes everything that any man has.

Senate Keeping Abreast of House For Prorogation

Ottawa, June 25 (CP) — The Senate passed eight bills and one resolution today, keeping almost abreast of the Commons in the drive to complete parliament's business this week.

The resolution, ratifying the proposed international wheat agreement, was approved after heated debate on the pact's chances for success.

Senator Wishart Robertson, government leader, took to task Senators who criticized the agreement without offering "something better" as an alternative. But he, too, was chided for remarks which Senator Iva Fallis (PC-Ontario) said sounded like excerpts from an election campaign speech.

Given third reading were bills which:

1. Repeal the pre-confederation Lord's Day Act of Ontario.
2. Set new interest rates on overdue income taxes.
3. Make certain changes in the criminal code.
4. Give the Manitoba government a free hand in its plans to set up a provincial hydro-electric organization.
5. Amend the customs act.
6. Extend the life of the agricultural prices support board for an indefinite period.
7. Return to University Officers Training Corps funds they raised during the war.
8. Provide pensions for dependents of certain civilians killed during the war.

Gives Second Reading

The Senate also gave second reading to a government bill revising income tax administration. It was referred to committee for detailed study, starting tonight.

In the wheat debate Senator T. A. Crerar (L-Manitoba) predicted the agreement will never go into effect. It probably would be "about as successful as the fabled pursuit of the Holy Grail, which I understand is still going on."

Canada had no guarantee that the 33 consumer-nations would live up to their undertaking to buy specified amounts of wheat. Nations would buy wherever wheat was cheapest.

Senator W. Rupert Davies (L-Ontario) asked what Senator Crerar would suggest as an alternative to the agreement.

Senator Crerar called that "an interesting question." He asked one himself: "Can we, in the long run, treat wheat differently from any other commodity?"

Senator Robertson criticized proposals to "tear down" without suggesting an alternative. He said Senator Davies' question was "very pertinent." The agreement admittedly was not perfect but Senate energies should be toward framing a better answer to the problem.

Arctic Warfare Medical Problems Hold Spotlight

Toronto, June 25 (CP) —Arctic warfare medical problems will hold the spotlight today in the final sessions of the Canadian Medical Association's 1948 convention.

A C.M.A. panel of armed services and civilian doctors was also to discuss atomic and bacteriological warfare and the organization of medical research for Canada's defence.

Dr. R. O. Jones of Halifax said Thursday at a psychiatric meeting that persons who complain "I feel sick all over" should see a psychiatrist not the family doctor. They likely suffered from a mental ailment called depressive reaction.

Attempts at suicide often characterized these cases. Depression attacks were recurrent, caused patients gloom and sleepless nights.

"Electric shock treatments have been the most effective treatments of depression," said Dr. Jones.

Dr. George Stevenson of London, Ont., added that shock treatments once a month avoided relapses of mental illness.

Old age, from a psychiatric viewpoint, is becoming an all important Canadian problem said Dr. A.S. Stokes of Toronto. Many old people's minds broke down over family problems and a struggle for life in miserable living quarters.

Dr. E. G. Hobbs of London, Ont., said 12 per cent of Ontario's people in 1941 were older than 60 years. In some sections of western Ontario, 20 per cent topped the 60 mark.

HIGH COST OF SIDEWALK

London, Ont., June 25 (CP) — City officials wished today that more sidewalks had been laid 50 years ago.

Checking old records they found that at the turn of the century Londoners paid two cents a foot per year for 10 years for new sidewalks. Now the annual charge is 22 cents a foot.

BULLETINS FROM BIRDLAND

BY WINIFRED E. WILSON

NO HIGH COST OF LIVING

In Birdland there is no high cost of living. But much hard work is often necessary, and parents with large families are tremendously busy in early summer. Sometimes birds must change their districts in order to obtain sufficient nourishment. When lemmings are scarce in the far north, Snowy Owls come down to civilization and subsist on rats and mice; when fish are not plentiful enough in the Mergansers' favorite inland waters, these birds visit the seas. Years that we have few berrier robins leave us earlier than usual for parts of the country where soft fruits can be had. However, the food supply never gives out entirely.

Seed eaters have little difficulty in finding food. Weed seeds are undoubtedly too numerous to suit farmers yet these form the staple diet of Goldfinches and Snow Buntings, and are preferred to all other seeds by Savannah, Vesper White-crowned, and White-throated Sparrows, and Juncor. Swifts and all kinds of Swallows, as they glide through the air, simply scoop up meals of flying insects. This is the easiest method of shopping. Kingbirds catch similar insects, but not quite as simply. Tiny Wood Peewees do their small part in aiding the agriculturist by destroying insect pests, and their big relatives, the Great Crested Flycatchers, carry on the same job, with a result proportionate to their size. Thrushes including Bluebirds, eat mainly insects, though some fruit also is taken.

Woodpeckers may not really have a harder time foraging for food, but they appear to exert themeselves more than most birds Watch a Downy hammering on a tree trunk. It looks as though the little neck would be worn out as the head goes backwards and forwards with such rapidity. But Hummingbirds buzz along with no noticeable trouble, poking their long bills into blossom after blossom to suck up diminutive insects and honey simultaneously.

Hawks vary their fare according to the supplies. If mice and insects are not immediately available, Red-shouldered Hawks may be obliged to hunt little birds. Waders and shore birds alight on beaches where they are able to pick up their favorite foods: frogs, snakes, and small fish for the Great Blue Herons, insects for Plovers. The Spotted Sandpipers know enough occasionally to leave the shore and run over the farmers' ploughed fields, gathering injurious insects. Although much effort is sometimes required for marketing, birds need not pay.

London Woman, 38 Offers to Marry For $6,000

London, June 25 (CP)— A 38-year-old London woman who is a "clean liver" and who smokes, drinks and dances, "all in moderation," is for sale. The price is £1,500 ($6,000).

But unlike Mrs. Dorothy Lawlor of Rockville Centre, N.Y., who recently offered herself as a wife to anyone willing to put up $10,000, London's "bride" is anonymous. Would-be suitors are asked to write to a box number.

This advertisement appeared today in a south London Weekly newspaper:

"Bride for sale. Englishwoman, healthy, clean liver, who has worked for her living all her life, offers herself as wife to any bachelor who will pay £1,500 in cash.

"Heart-whole, aged 38, brunette, five feet two, not unattractive, smokes, drinks, dances, all in moderation, and has sense of humor."

STRENGTH FOR THE DAY

By
EARL L. DOUGLASS, D.D.

LEARNING THE HARD WAY

Eight weeks ago today I went down before the most serious illness of my life. Things were grim for a time, but I believe I have learned more in these weeks than in any corresponding period of my life.

First, I learned what a blessing it is to have a host of friends. Their gracious words and services will fill me with gratitude as long as I live. Also, I realized what it means to belong to a family and to feel the warmth of affection as each member snaps into an attitude of helpfulness and makes the crisis more endurable. Everyone, I believe, who has done any thinking must be impressed by the advantage of living in a day when science really has something to offer sick folks. A classmate, now a distinguished specialist, was on the scene in a few hours. A skilful doctor took the case through crisis and convalescence. Faithful nurses gave the service which only nurses can give in the struggle to overcome human ailment.

But best of all, this protracted illness gave me insight into the ways of God with men. Now I know that whether we live or whether we die is a matter which rests wholly in God's hands. Sometimes it takes a jolt to make us appreciate the mercy and goodness of God. Some of us have to face death in order to learn how to live.

Rev. E. M. Cadigan Says Formal Farewell At Sunday Service

Marmora — Last Sunday morning a large attendance of worshippers was seen at St. Andrew's United Church, marking Father's Day and the close of the ministrations of Rev. E. M. Cadigan who has been pastor for the past four years. The singing was led by a men's choir of about thirty voices, which rendered an anthem. Its leader, George Woodhouse sang the solo "My Task." Reception of new members took place. About thirty were received into membership, half of these on profession of faith and the remainder by letter from churches which they formerly attended in other communities.

Members of the session joined with Rev. E. M. Cadigan in welcoming the new members. After the reception servce, Mrs. Flora Litt, who is retiring as church organist after several years of faithful service, was presented with a basket of flowers, a set of earrings and a brooch. The pastor spoke briefly in appreciation of Mrs. Litt's services and Mr. G. Woodhouse made the presentation. Jack Cadigan, the pastor's son, was then called to receive the gift of a desk lamp from congregation and choir. A. W. Drew made the presentation remarks, and James Sproul made the presentation.

In his farewell address, Rev. E. M. Cadigan reviewed the history of the church for the past four years, during which he has been pastor, and referred to the happiness of himself, Mrs. Cadigan and their son in their residency in the village. Following the address, Rev. and Mrs. Cadigan were presented with a cheque on behalf of the congregation, the address being given by H. C. Barlow with F. R. Wells making the presentation. The church was beautifully decorated with flowers which included bouquets of flowers from the family and father fo the late Lewis Phillips in his memory.

Holidays

Holidays are about here and the next eight weeks and more will be days which will be enjoyed by the multitude of pupils who have looked forward to this recess from study. Summer has finally landed here after a long trail through some disagreeable weather in recent months.

Summer is a time which gives the sense of freedom. For schoolboys and schoolgirls are not the one persons who enjoy this season which is universal in its appeal. However childhood and youth being at that momentous period of life when they are building up their bodies and minds with strength and experience make unusual progress in this season. But older people take holidays for relaxation and for rebuilding the worn nerves and tired frames. Many go far in quest of pleasure, some cross the continent, some sail across the seas and visit foreign lands far away but others take to the beaches not so far from home. But it is not necessary to take a long journey to get the most out of life in this season. Some even enjoy a good part of it on their lawns under the shade of trees. Then there are those who may take a long journey far to the north as the members of the Arctic health expedition of doctors who go on a mission to study and serve the Eskimos. Summer enjoyment is so varied that there is enough to suit every desire.

Summer lightens the burdens. People's wants are not so many, no need for fuel except to cook meals and modern science has helped even in this by inventing the tin can and the refrigerator to preserve food from meal to meal and day to day. There is less need of clothing and many utilize the sun's rays to absorb sunlight to build up their resistance against the dull and gloomy days of the winter season. People even like to be "put out" a bit by the weather in summer and will enjoy at camp and cottage even a lack of certain accommodations the autumn, winter and spring home in the city or town provides and enjoy with glee that lack for it brings into life some of the touch of romantic things, often so absent in this modern age. Experiences at camp or on tour are more than ordinary experiences because the man and the woman, the boy and the girl are sensing freedom which summer gives.

But of course childhood drains to the last drop the enjoyments of the warm season. Everything is new to the learning child, scenes, experiences, friendships for Mother Nature is an apt teacher who teaches the wholesome lessons of living. Under her influence boys and girls can hitch their imaginations to the stars for all is one scene of continued loveliness and pleasant experiences, like the drinking of a refreshing draught of water at the spring. Summer sees life in motion, nature growing and youngsters growing in the growing world of flowers and birds.

Those who learn their lessons in the school of nature are taught to be free.

Equipped by nature and by school and by home training, what boy or girl has not a full preparation for life!

It is a happy feeling to find appreciated the fact that more and more the importance of the finest developments of life lies in the home ties, the school training and association with nature. The holiday season is now generally looked upon as a necessary season in the year for variety of experience, for rest and relaxation. Man is content to live closer to nature than he used to live and the life in nature is being emphasized everywhere as a necessary experience or teacher in every individual's life.

One of those who may be looked upon as living very close to the heart of nature is the farmer. Of course the holiday season means the very busy season for him. He gets his experience in nature and makes it a part of his way of life. In the point of weather the rural forecaster knows nature well enough in her various moods so that he can make a good effort to tell what the weather will be like at any time within a day or two. So close to nature is he that his life is enriched by his experiences in the fields and woods.

The Outlook

As mid-1948 approaches, evidence accumulates that receding tendencies which had appeared in certain lines during the first quarter have not proved to be the precursors of a general slackening of business. Most indicators of industrial activity are above last year's level, with exceptional buoyancy evident in the field of new construction. Farmers report that growth on the land is proceeding satisfactorily, although floods in the Rockies and forest fires across central Canada have involved severe losses in the areas affected, says Bank of Montreal Business Review.

Canadian crop conditions are reported to be favorable in most areas. Although seeding in the Prairies was delayed by a late spring, recent warm weather has promoted good growth, but more rain is needed and grasshopper infestation is serious in southern Saskatchewan.

While it is still too early to estimate the size of the Canadian harvests, an official survey made on April 30 revealed that farmers intended to seed 23.7 million acres to wheat.

The world wheat prospect continues to be favorable with the four principal exporting countries reporting encouraging conditions and with substantial betterment indicated in Europe and Asia. A survey by the International Emergency Food Committee estimates that world production of food and feed grains may rise to pre-war levels in the forthcoming crop year, with Europe contributing most of the increase over the previous year in bread grains.

Want More To Do

It is an unfortunate fact that much of church attendance, both as it pertains to religious services and to other activities, is largely impassive rather than active. In this age of activity such programs do not appeal to young people in particular .The demand is for something to do. If the church does not meet that demand then the young people are sure to turn to some other organization. There are, of course, in each church certain people who take active parts. The minister, naturally, is the centre of the great part of all activity. He carries on the preaching. In most cases he does most of the "church calling," though doubtless he would welcome assistance. And he is called upon to give much of the leadership during the week. Then there are the Sunday School teachers, superintendents and other officers, many of whom have been serving in such capacity for many years. And of course there are the members of the various boards, and other organizations. But, all in all, in most churches a small body of people do the work, the others sitting on the sidelines."

It is necessary to the well-being of any organization that the members be given something to do. This is particularly true where young people are concerned. True, it is difficult to get some people to take an active role in anything. But, with proper leadership and right instruction, and the organizations necessary, a great deal more active interest could readily be created.—Owen Sound Sun-Times.

If You Believe It

Animals buried alive for long periods but rescued in the end have secured much attention, but apparently man creates the record in this form of endurance — at least he does if you believe all you see "in the papers." In a Paris paper dated July, 1826, appeared the marvellous story of the discovery, in the valley of the Laventina, of the body of a man hidden under a heap of ice. The story declared that the body was extricated, and "on animation being restored" (it was as simple as that) the patient described himself as Roger Dodsworth, son of the antiquary of that name (who died in 1654.) He said he was born in 1629, and, returning from Italy in 1660, was buried under an avalanche. The account added that "Mr. Dodsworth feels a great stiffness in his points." If he also developed a cold in the head and suffered twinges of rheumatism, it would not have caused much surprise.— Manchester Guardian.

WARNING TO CHILDREN

Little children, you should know
It is wrong to quarrel so.
Never raise your hands to strike.
Let your playmates ride your bike.
Never shout: "You can't have that!"
Let him use your ball and bat.
You're too young as yet for hate.
'Til you're grown up, can't you wait?

Little children, at your games
Never call each other names.
If you've tossed aside a toy,
When you see another boy
Pick it up you shouldn't whine.
Don't start screaming: "That is mine!"
Gladly share the things you own,
'Til, like us, you've older grown.

Little children, you should play
In a peaceful, friendly way.
Share with others, while you're small,
Your possessions, one and all.
When you've learned to write and read,
There'll be time enough for greed.
When you're twenty-one and plus,
You can start to act like us.

The Packsack of Gregory Clark

War correspondents have been coming in for a little belated abuse and derision in recent weeks. Both in books and magazine articles, some snide things have been said. Having been a soldier in one war and a correspondent in the other, I should have a reasonable opinion in the matter.

A war correspondent, actually, is a friendly agent, as compared to an enemy agent. An enemy agent gives aid and comfort to the enemy. A war correspondent gives aid and comfort to the folks at home.

For fear that the folks at home might lose faith in what the correspondents write, these newspapermen in uniform are permitted to adopt a considerable attitude of authority. Some of them assume the role of military critics and experts. But their basic function is that of propagandist to report favorably on the conduct of the war, to keep up the morale of the nation and to spur on both recruiting and the civilian war effort. And every word they write is under the strictest censorship of generals, admirals and air marshals. Before a war correspondent put on uniform, he is "accredited" to one or other of the armed services. He is, in fact, enlisted. He comes under complete control of the service he is accredited to. The only difference — and an enormous one it is — consists of the fact that he doesn't have to go into battle unless he chooses: he can pretty well come and go as he likes in search of his material; and by cabling home to his civilian employer, he can usually get himself demobilized at will. It is a pretty good life.

A soldier once abused me roundly for having written a highly romantic account of the first convoy of troops to Britain. He declared I lied about it. I must have known how crowded the troops were below decks; how bad the food; how miserable the whole voyage . . .

"I wasn't writing that for you, soldier," I apologized. "I was writing it for the benefit of guys still in civvies back home . . . "

"Check!" grinned the old sweat.

Accidental Verdicts In Four Deaths

Watertown, N.Y., June 25 — (CP) — District Attorney Milton A. Wiltsie ruled Thursday night that there was no evidence of criminal negligence at an inquest he conducted into the deaths of four persons in a boat explosion and fire at Henderson Harbor, June 14. Wiltsie, who acted as coroner, issued accidental vedricts in the deaths of William J. Meehan, Miss Beverly J. Lyman, George M. Herse and William E. Richmond, all of Henderson Harbor. The four died from exposure and over-exertion after leaping into the cold waters of Lake Ontario when their cabin cruiser, the Shangra-La, caught fire after an explosion.

LIVING IN HARMONY

Dundalk, June 26 — (CP) — Churches in these parts can show their bigger counterparts how to live in religious harmony. The Presbyterian minister is living in the Anglican Rectory and a United Church student is boarding with him. Not only that, but a Presbyterian student minister conducted services at Oakville United Church last week, while the Regular United Church minister was preaching to the Presbyterians. During July and August, the Presbyterian and United Churches will exchange ministers.

STRENGTH FOR THE DAY

By EARL L. DOUGLASS, D.D.

BUT ALL ARE CALLED

The name Thomas cames from a Greek word which means twin. Because a man is called Thomas today does not mean that he has a twin. But in ancient times it did. One of Jesus' disciples was named Thomas. There were several pairs of brothers in the apostolic circle, but Thomas' twin brother was not among these. Thomas went on to spiritual triumph and a great service in the name of the Lord and Master. Scripture makes no reference whatsoever to the career of the twin brother.

It may well make us ponder seriously the way certain people in a family go on to spiritual triumph while others do not. Sometimes godly parents have godless children; occasionally a child of marked spirituality will come from a home where he has had no encouragement along such lines. A godly wife and a godless husband sometimes go through life with these different interests. One member of a family responds to the call of God and another equally promising member does not.

There is a serious process going on whereby some are being chosen and others rejected. This is not because God wills it so, but because the persons involved will it so. It is the will of God that all men be saved. When they are not, it is because with deliberate purpose they choose otherwise.

Man is Detained In Connection With Woman's Death

Montreal, June 26 (CP)—Provincial Police today disclosed that a man from Cantley, Que., near Hull, had been detained in connection with the death of a middle-aged woman whose body was found in a snowbank in Cantley last March.

He is being detained for the reopening of a coroner's inquest in the suspected murder.

At the first inquest, a verdict of death by natural causes was returned but investigation by police indicated foul play.

The body was exhumed for autopsy and the man was arrested after police proved statements he made last March were false.

The inquest will be reoponed Monday.

Grand Orange Lodge To Assist Migration

Hamilton, June 25 (CP)—The Grand Orange Lodge of British America plans to assist immigrants to Canada.

Elections closed out the convention with R. Hardy Small of Toronto re-elected Grand Master. James Jackson, Owen Sound, was chosen a grand auditor.

RUNS AWAY AGAIN

Toronto, June 26 —(CP)—Garnet Arscott, eight, ran away from home a week ago but gave up his travels after two days. Money he had raised by "cashing in" pop bottle deposits ran out.

He turned to toting beer cases for customers at a brewers' ware house and built up a new travel fund.

Now he's gone again—and playmates said that this time he started out with a handful of bills and a pocketful of silver.

PERSONAL HEALTH TALKS

By WILLIAM BRADY, M.D.

(Signed letters pertaining to personal health and hygiene, not to diseases, diagnosis or treatment, will be answered by Dr. Brady if a stamped self-addressed envelope is enclosed. Letters should be brief and written in ink. Owing to the large number of letters received only a few can be answered here. No reply can be made to queries not conforming to instructions. Address Dr. William Brady, care of this Newspaper.)

CARDS ON THE TABLE

Once in a blue moon I receive a letter from one of you expressing approval, appreciation thanks or good will, and quite often I receive a letter from one of you expressing contrary sentiments or views and I am grateful for the criticism in either instance. My friends tell me what they think about my teachings or propaganda and with complete candor—I like to believe a fair number of you readers are my friends.

The other day one mail brought a handful of postcards, some signed but minus the address of the writers, some anonymous and therefore meaningless, and some asking why the writers had received no reply to letters sent me weeks ago.

Postcards do not rate answers. Nor do letters if stamped self addressed envelope is not inclosed. Nor does a letter inclosing stamped self addresses envelope rate a reply if the query is not within my province.

There are several reasons aside from these why a letter may bring no reply. Every day a dozen or so must go unanswered because writers fail to give sufficient address. Frequently when we are not too deeply snowed under we find in the dead letter file a letter returned to us by the postoffice for "better address" — bearing the name of some reader who is raising a terrible squawk.

A good many letters which would be promptly answered must go unanswered because we can't guess what in tarnation the writers want—you see, they do not ask for it in writing, but instead inclose a clipping in which, if one were to take time out to read it, there is some mention of the pamphlet the writer wants. But in opening and sorting or "processing" all this mail it is too easy for a piece of newspaper to get into the chucker before we realize that the correspondent can't or won't say it in writing.

Some letters go answered simply because they are too long. There are always people who expect me to give them the time which belongs to a score of other readers who do comply with the rules. Letters one hundred words long or less get the preference.

Although the quantity of mail is ten times as large as it was before the war—I still try my dangdest to keep this a personal health service.

Now, then, folks, if we understand each other a little better maybe we can get along together for a long time to come.

Yours sincerely,
Doc Brady.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Sniff, Sniff, Ahem, Ahem

I was becoming a nervous wreck listening to my son constantly sniffing and clearing his throat—but in less than a week the trouble ceased when I followed the instructions in your pamphlet "Relief for Allergy" and corrected his diet to overcome calcium deficiency. (Mrs. I. P.)

Answer—Which may have been just coincidence, though at any rate it could do no harm to try it out. Any reader who asks for it in writing and incloses stamped self addressed envelope may have the pamphlet "Relief for Allergy". For the booklet "The Calcium Shortage" send ten cents and stamped self addressed envelope.

7-Year Itch Cured in 7 Hours

Some eighteen persons in our mining camp suffered badly with what we called the "seven year itch". We had some medicines from the doctor, but these gave no relief. I found a set of your 'Little Lessons" in the library and came across the article on itch. We followed the advice therein, and overnight every affected person got relief and the trouble cleared up completely in a few days. (J. V.)

Answer—Thank you, sir. Scabies (pronounced ska-bi-ease) is an itch due to a mite burrowing in the skin, highly contagious. Chapter describing the successful home treatment is included in booklet "Save Your Skin" for copy send twenty-five cents and stamped envelope bearing your address. Every one in the family or group must undergo treatment at the same time and all clothing, bedclothes and toilet articles likely to harbor the mites must be sterilized or laundered at the same time.

BEAUTY

By HELEN JAMESON

Lemon Rinse Subdues the Oily Skin

Many pretty marchers in the grand army of beauty seekers have come to the conclusion that there is no use in battling an oily complexion. Their weapon is the powder pad. The beaming nose may be subdued for the time being, but that's all. It continues to shine with a persistence that is maddening.

Let them consider causes, and treat them—not just fight effects. The skin has two sets of glands—one to produce a salty exudation called perspiration, the other to produce an oil that is necessary to keep the skin from drying out and flaking. Both serve a useful purpose. Sebaceous glands are capable of producing an ounce of grease a day. They are more active during adolescence than in later years. The exudations consist of liquids and solid fats in varying proportions.

It is possible to reduce the amount of oil by changing the diet. A diet that is low in fats will make the sebaceous glands less active. If you are a member of the oily cult, close your eyes when the pastries are served. Put less butter on your bread. Avoid gravies and rich sauces. Drink more water; eat green salads; have a half glass of orange or tomato juice for breakfast.

Local treatment is necessary, of course. But it won't help much unless the diet is favorable.

The lemon rinse, that does so much to make the hair silky and fluffy, will act favorably upon the oil-filmed complexion. The acid element seems to have a tempering effect upon the glands, for some reason that your reporter cannot explain.

The rinse should follow the nightly face-washing. It is important that the job should be a thorough one, so that every bit of oil is removed. Use a complexion brush, one with bristles so firm that they do not bend or mat when moistened. Fluff up a rich suds; brush briskly. Rinse with warm water. If blackheads are present, dip a heavy washcloth in hot water and press close to the flesh, repeating half a dozen times. Then use cold water freely. The change from hot to cold water will normalize the circulation.

Use a soft towel when drying, and be gentle. To a half cup of water add the strained juice of one lemon. Apply with pledgets of cotton, let it dry on.

In the morning use cold water freely; apply witch hazel that is soothing and acts as an astringent.

Put less butter on bread

Oily cosmetics should be used sparingly, if at all. If you must employ them to protect against sunburn, all right. But do not let them remain on over night.

Fashion Flashes

ALL WHITE hats are favored everywhere. Topping a beautiful black and white printed chiffon frock, we admired a wide brimmed hat of starched white cotton lace, trimmed with tiny self rosettes.

STILL ANOTHER pelt is making a come-back for Fall: hair seal or Labrador seal, which is natural spotted seal, is used both as is and also mink and beaver dyed. Promoted for the budget bracket, it is new and different.

ALWAYS RIGHT for ordinary wear in town is the cartwheel of Milan straw. And it is much nicer with a ribbon band and, perhaps, streamers than it is all decked up with flowers, veiling and even sequins, which is what we've seen around town, in the shops, and atop heads, lately.

BEAUTIFUL SCULPTURE

Ancient Greek and Roman sculptors produced many masterpieces in terra-cotta, or burnt clay.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

A Case of Romantic Daydreaming

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am a girl nearly 13, and I feel I am in love with a boy the same age. I call it love because I love him more than my own parents. I also find myself crying at night and thinking about him.

He is a boy who they say has not a very good character, but I have liked him for two years. He doesn't like me at all, but this doesn't seem to matter to me. What do you call this fondness, and what can I do about it?

"Helpless"

Dear "Helpless":

What I would call this "fondness' is a bit of romantic daydreaming, and what I suggest you do about it is to go around with all your boy and girl friends and have lots of fun with them. Perhaps you are the shy type who hasn't many friends and so is apt to cling to someone in particular. You'd have to tell me a little more about yourself before I would be able to judge.

But doesn't it seem a little silly for you to let yourself dream about a boy who doesn't like you and who doesn't even have a good reputation?

Kiss Him if You Like, Loretta; It Won't Really Matter

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am 14 years old and soon to graduate from grammar school. I have to have a date for a party the class is giving after graduation. This will be my first date, and probably my last one till I am 17, as I am not allowed to go out on dates and can only do it now because it is my graduation.

When my date takes me home, should I let him kiss me goodnight? He is quite a little older than I.

"Loretta".

Dear "Loretta":

If this is to be your only date from now until you are 17, I don't think I would worry much about whether or not this boy kisses you goodnight. If he wants you to kiss him, and you feel like giving him this kind of friendly goodnight, make it a quick one and go on in the house. But don't go in for any goodnight petting. I can't believe the kiss will make much difference if it's to be three years before you have a chance for another.

Wanted to Escape From His Home Situation

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am 17, and very much in love with a fellow 18. His mother is very much against his going with me and keeps nagging him about it But he says he loves me very much and still goes with me.

Now he has signed up in the service and claims that he did it because of his mother. He says he will marry me as soon as he gets out.

Do you think he went in because of his mother, and do you think he would have gone if he really loved me?

"Lonely Bee"

Dear "Lonely Bee":

It is very likely that this boy did decide to go into the service to escape from a situation in which he was unhappy and which he could not handle. Whatever his feeling for you may be, what he is most interested in now is getting out of his difficulties.

My advice to you is to try and be a good friend to him during this period in which he is undoubtedly having a hard time finding himself, and let the future take care of itself. If he continues to feel that you are the girl for him, he will come back to you, and if it turns out to be a case of "out of sight, out of mind," his being away will make it easier for you to adjust yourself.

Strawberry Shortcake

There are hundreds of women in Belleville who are hiding their lights under bushels and Mrs. R. B. Grose, 83 Cedar Street, is one.

Mrs. Grose is famous far and wide for her strawberry shortcake. It is so good that she has to beat people off with metaphorical clubs from her door, demanding more! More! She is driving all those who have tasted this heavenly dessert into a kind of "Shortcake Delirium' for which there is no known cure.

Here is her recipe:

3 cups of flour
(Sifted four times)
2 level teaspoons of baking powder to one cup of flour
A little salt
1-2 cup of butter or Crisco
(Use more salt with Crisco)
2 tablespoons of sugar
1 beaten egg

Method—Rub butter into flour and mix into a soft dough with sweet milk into which egg has been beaten. Divide dough in half and pat one half into a square pan. Pour melted butter over this half. Pat other half on top and bake in a quick oven, 450 degrees, the same as for biscuit.

Have strawberries ready in a bowl, sliced and sugared. When shortcake is done split in half and cover with berries. Place other half on top and pile on remaining berries. Cover generously with whipped cream. Eat while warm. This makes about ten servings.

Warning: Anyone on a diet please avoid!

It's a little rich, cautioned Mrs. Grose, but everyone enjoys it so much!

Wife Preservers

If you are planning to wear a flower-trimmed hat on a rainy day, pin an invisible hair net around the flowers. It will keep them from fraying.

BARREL OF BREAD

One barrel of flour is considered sufficient to make an average of 270 one - pound loaves of bread.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Good Taste Should Guide Widow in her Wedding Plans

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am a widow, thirty-nine years of age, and soon I am to be married to a widower, two years older. (1) I would like to have a reception in a hotel, a supper followed by dancing. Would this be correct? (2) Would it be correct to have a wedding cake? (3) Would it be the correct plan for the bridegroom and me to receive the guests? (4) What form of invitation would you suggest? (5) Who proposes the toast to the bride and who to the groom?

H. S.

(1) The circumstances of the wedding . . . .for example how long you have been a widow and how long your fiance has been a widower, as well as other circumstances . . . should direct your taste about the type and size of the reception following the ceremony. Of course there may properly be a reception, but for a widow, it is usually a simple, informal occasion, with a restricted number of guests. (2) Yes. (3) Yes; you, the bride, standing at the right of your bridegroom. (4) I suggest you invite the guests either by word of mouth or by cordial little notes of invitation. (5) The first, and most important, toast, is the one customarily made by the best man, "To the bride and groom, and to their happiness always'. After this toast, the bridegroom rises and expresses the thanks of his bride and himself. Then anyone who wishes may rise and propose a toast.

Plans for a Thirtieth Wedding Wedding Anniversary Celebration

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My parents are to celebrate their Thirtieth Wedding Anniversary soon, and we would like to surprise them with a celebration to be held in my home. Besides the family (six) I am planning to invite twelve or fourteen of their friends. (1) Will you please tell me what is the symbol of the thirtieth wedding anniversary. And how could we use this? (2) What kind of entertainment should we plan to have? (3) How and by whom should the gifts be presented? Would it be appropriate for two of their grandchildren (the oldest grandchild is my 3-year-old son) to be dressed as the couple were dressed on their wedding day, and have them present the gifts? Or would a simpler way be in best taste?

Blue Eyes

(1) Pearl is the traditional symbol of the Thirtieth Wedding anniversary . . . and some lists include ivory as well as pearl. But today not too much attention is paid to the anniversary 'labels', particularly when it is a symbol not too easy to plan in gifs and, most particularly, in gifts appropriate for both husband and wife, the guests generally have an article which they think those being feted will appreciate, something decorative for their home, or something of convenience or deep comfort. As a symbol of the anniversary, you might use a pearl-gray cloth on the table (you may be able to borrow a damask one, or make one of linen or cotton or radiant, pearl-gray rayon). (2)) Usually there is no especially planned ent tainment, for a wedding ar versary is an occasion for unions, talking of "old days new", the serving of special freshments (if not a dinner luncheon) the festive cutting the anniversary celebrat and the serving of it to the gue toasts to "the bride and groo and other festive features. if you wish to plan for bridge any other game your parents their friends like, there's no r son not to. Sometimes nowadays there is a "sing", of old songs and new songs, the guests provided with small books of the songs or at least the lyrics. "Here come the bride" might be sung as your mother, the "bride", comes forward to cut the first slice of the bridal cake ,which she shares with her "groom'. (3) I think it would be best taste for each guest to hand to your mother and father his or her own gift. Unusual features, such as you suggest, are often definitely not welcomed by the couple being honored by the party—dressed-up children shouldn't "steal the show".

Correct form for the Invitation to the Marriage Reception Only

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Ours will be a small wedding at the rectory, with only our parents and attendants present. After the ceremony, we are going to have a fairly large reception. Will you please give me the exact wording of the reception invitations, so that the guests will know that they are invited not to the wedding, but only to the reception?

E. M.

This is the correct form to be used when guests are invited to the marriage reception, but not to the marriage ceremony:

Mr. and Mrs. John Paul Mason request the pleasure of your company at the marriage reception of their daughter Elizabeth and
Mr. George Foster Allen
Tuesday, the twenty-second of June
at half after four o'clock
Fourteen Pleasant Place
Haven, New York
The favor of a reply is requested

Notes: (1) If your reception is formal, as well as large, have the reception invitations engraved on the large, formal-size wedding paper. If semi-formal, you may use the small, less formal size. (2) In the reception invitation the phrase "request the pleasure of your company " is used . . . not "request the honor of your presence", as to the church ceremony. (3) In reception invitations, "and' (not "to") is used between the names of the bride and the groom. (4) The time given is usually one-half hour after the hour set for the ceremony . . .but this, of course, depends on the distance from the rectory to the place where the reception is to be.

Pupils and Parents Honor Departing P. S. Teachers

Shannonville.— The pupils of Shannonville Public School, with their parents, honored two departing teachers Wednesday evening, in the Senior room of the Schoolhouse, when they met to pay a farewell tribute to Mrs. Howard Holden, and to Miss Isabel Hanley. Rev. A. W. Lougheed acted as chairman for a short but interesting program by a number of the pupils.

An address was read by Mr. Lougheed and Mrs. Holden was presented with a coffee table, while Miss Hanley received a useful overnight bag. Both teachers replied to this token of the esteem in which they are held by pupils and parents alike, and expressed their gratitude for the very fine gifts, voicing regret at severing connections with friends in the community.

Refreshments were served by the "mothers" present at the party, as a suitable finale to an occasion of pleasant associations.

Bridge St. YPU Sponsors Successful Garden Party

The lawn at Bridge Street United Church parsonage, 100 Bridge Street East, was the scene of a pleasant gathering, Friday evening, when the Young People's Union of that church sponsored a Garden Party. With the proceeds in aid of the Moira Lake Camp Site Fund, a good sized attendance was recorded during the evening.

An enjoyable program was presented by members of the Young People's Group including music and readings previously recorded on the wire recorder for presentation at this time. A fish pond, parcel post sale, and sale of flowers were different means of raising funds. Dainty refreshments were served during the evening.

Friends from Sidney and Thurlow townships gathered on Thursday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. H. P. Twiddy, Cannifton, to honor Mr. and Mrs. Charles Maybee, (nee Betty Twiddy) with a presentation party.

A program under the capable leadership of Mrs. Harry Farnham, organist of Cannifton United Church, was presented, consisting of community singing with Mrs. Furmidge as song leader, and readings by Mrs. R. Lockyer and Mrs. Gerald Brenton, followed by a solo by Mrs. Furmidge and a duet by the parents of the bride.

Trumpour was chairman for the evening, and invited Mr. and Mrs. Maybee to seats selected for them, while Mrs. Earl Yateman read an address of congratulation, and Mr. Yateman with Mr. Ross Pound presented an occasional rocking chair, a magazine rack and the wife's legendary weapon, a rolling pin. Mr. and Mrs. Maybee graciously responded, voicing their appreciation and thanks, and extending an hospitable invitation to their new home.

Choir Members Honor Mrs. Duff At Picnic Supper

Baskets of pink and white peonies were used for decorative purposes Thursday evening in Tabernacle United Church, when forty choir members and friends assembled for a picnic supper.

Among the visitors present were Mr. Ed. Shortt of Sherbrooke, Que., a former highly-esteemed member of the choir, and Rev. F. R. Harback, minister of the church. While the gathering was still seated at the tables, Mrs. R. L. Johnston read an address to the organist and musical director, Mrs. M. P. Duff, expressing the appreciation of the members who have enjoyed singing under her leadership and have profitted by it. The address ended on a high note of humor with an original poetic contribution exposing the trials of the choir leader. Miss Lillian Sprackett, on behalf of the present choir and some former members, presented Mrs. Duff with a gold wrist watch. Mrs. Duff, although thoroughly surprised, was able to adequately express her gratitude for this token of the choir's esteem.

Mr. Ed. Shortt spoke briefly, saying he was very happy to be able to be present on this auspicious occasion, and that he had many pleasant memories of his former association with Mrs. Duff and the members of Tabernacle Church Choir; Rev. F. R. Harback voiced his appreciation of the loyalty of Mrs. Duff and the choir, and for their able assistance in the church services through the year. Mrs. H. Bennett-Poste, president of the choir, also spoke briefly.

Community singing, led by Mr. Reg. Wardle, was enjoyed by all present.

Also that owing to the early date of the recital the examination marks were not available but that they would appear in the Ontario Intelligencer when available.

Joe Louis' Retirement Promised By Champion Many Months Ago

New York, June 26. (CP)—Joe Louis' retirement, announced definitely after his defeat of Jersey Joe Walcott Friday night had been promised by the champion right along.

But there were many who believed if he finished off Walcott in a manner that satisfied his own high standards he would fight Gus Lesnevich, the light heavyweight champion, in the Fall.

But no, said Louis, perspiring in the 80-degree heat afterwards. "I'll be active in this year's presidential campaign," he declared —but not in the ring.

If he sticks to his word, and he is the kind of man who seems likely to do it, he will be the first heavyweight king to quit unbeaten since Tunney. Jim Jeffries did it, too, in 1905, but came back in 1910 and was knocked out by Jack Johnson. Only those three have stepped down since modern records began in 1882.

Louis has no illusions about himself.

"Five years ago I would have come out in the first round and got it over with in a hurry,' he said. "But I'm not the fighter I was five years ago."

Louis won the heavyweight title from James Braddock June 22, 1937, by knocking him out in eight rounds. His ring earnings of $3,365,000 compared with $2,000,000 for Gene Tunney, and $2,280,000 for Jack Dempsey.

He has always been a sensation. He started out as a Golden Gloves champion. As a professional, he won his first fight by a knockout in the first round, finishing Jack Kracken of Chicago on July 4, 1934.

Only one blemish is on his record. Max Schmeling knocked him out in 12 rounds on June 19, 1936. The next time they fought Louis knocked out Schmeling in one round, on June 22, 1938.

Friday night's defeat was a bitter blow to Walcott. The quiet Negro, who had been a ditch digger and garbage collector to support his family of six children, was convinced he beat Louis last December.

"We told him not to go over the line and attack Louis too close,' said his trainer, Dan Florio, afterwards. "Louis is like Rogers Hornsby. At 40 he could still bat like the devil even if his legs were gone".

Northern Electric Team Defeats Merchants 1-0

In one of the best baseball games seen here in a long time a strengthened Northern Electric team defeated the Belleville Merchants 1-0 in seven innings under the lights at the Fair Grounds. The game was an abbreviated affair and was witnessed by a slim crowd.

Cy Barriage back in the Northern line up after an enforced rest with an infected arm, hurled 4-hit ball as he set the Merchants down scoreless to give the Electrics their first win in seven starts. Several Kiwanis Junior players were in the Northern line up and they went well throughout the game.

A power failure in the top of the seventh delayed the game for five minutes during which time the few brethren present departed for their radios and the fight.

The Electrics scored their only run in the sixth inning as they bunched three of their five hits. James led off with a single and went to second as Robb hit to short centre. James stole third and scored as Reeves hit to left. Bush struck out, and Robb was thrown out first to home as he attempted to score on Williamson's weak grounder to Leo Goyer at first. Bunton grounded to short who threw him out at first.

Down in Order

Merchants went down in order in the first three innings and did not threaten until the sixth when poor base running ruined what chances they had. Weeks led off with a single and Wardaugh sacrificed him to second Carson singled advancing Weeks who was thrown out by the left fielder as he tried for home. Fitzpatrick struck out to retire the side.

In the top of the seventh Goyer went down pitcher to first and Whitman doubled. L. Goyer grounded to the third baseman who bobbled. The error paid off though as Whitman was tagged trying to reach third.

At this point the lights went out and the fans departed. Carson, running for Leo Goyer was on first and there were two men down. After five minutes the lights went on again and with Chapman at the plate for Williams Carson was thrown out by Reeves as he tried to steal second.

Barriage went the route for Northern Electric striking out 3, walking one, and giving up four hits for no runs. "Lefty" Weeks, hurling in a losing cause for Merchants struck out four, walked one and allowed one run on five hits.

Louis' Admirers Almost Mob Brown Bomber

New York, June 26. (AP)—Joe Louis' admirers became so excited over their idol's knockout victory over Joe Walcott, Friday night that they almost took it out on the world's heavyweight champion.

When Louis arrived at his hotel in Harlem a little after midnight he was almost mobbed by a crowd of 10,000 faithful followers.

Louis was accompanied by his manager and three detectives. The fans climbed all over his car, tore off the hood and, all four tires, then ripped off the license plates. It took 30 policemen a half hour to get Joe safely up in his suite.

Brown Bomber Retains World Heavyweight Championship By K.O. of Walcott in 11th

By FRED KERNER
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

New York, June 26 — (CP) — The sava

The savage Joe Louis of a decade ago lived again for a few violent seconds Friday night to knock out Jersey Joe Walcott in the 11th round of their title battle.

But the 34-year-old Louis, born Joseph Barrow, knew his flabby more-than-200-pound body was well past its prime. He immediately announced his retirement—undefeated world's heavyweight champion after defending his crown 25 times.

The rage of the jungle killer welled up in Louis as the 11th round neared its end. He found the opening for which he always has waited. Then it was a matter of only seconds and Jersey Joe was a sad-looking, open-mouthed loser. The time was 2:56.

His left eye puffily red and half shut, Louis made his retirement announcement while Referee Frank Fullam still held his right arm aloft as the symbol of victory. And as his last fight, the Detroit Brown Bomber dedicated it "for my mother . . . this is for her . . ."

It was a vengeful Joe Louis who entered the ring at Yankee Stadium before 42,667 fans. He was after definite victory to make up for the slim decision he won from Walcott in their Dec. 5 bout. And though he actually dropped his poker-faced look by the fifth round and appeared worried and harried, the hard killer-look returned when Walcott made his fateful mistake.

Tried to K. O. Champ

The Jersey challenger used his jig-jog backstep to its greatest advantage — except when he opened up and tried to knock the champion out. Walcott's loose-armed looping blows in the hurried seconds preceding his knockout left all the room in the world for the champion to find the opening he wanted.

Walcott later claimed he didn't remember anything after Louis' first right to the jaw — a punch that travelled about four inches. Louis followed that right with a short, powerful left. The challenger's jaw dropped open, but a hard uppercut closed it.

Louis savagely pummelled Walcott's kinky head. He lashed quick vicious punches to the insensible Walcott's face. The challenger staggered forward to the canvas and rolled on his back. By the count of seven he came to his knees.

Then desperately— wilted only by the sub-conscious — he tried to rise. The referee ended his count and put his arms about Walcott's waist as the bulge-muscled Camden come - back collapsed face forward.

The previously booing crowd, which paid $841,739 to see the second Louis - Walcott battle, surged to its feet, a mighty cheer drowning out the blaring loud-speaking system. It resembled a Louis victory of pre-war years.

Refused to Chase Walcott

Louis was a far wiser, though much paunchier, man than he was last December. Most of the time he refused to chase the half-grinning challenger. But the annoying three-step of Walcott's embittered the champion visibly.

In his hanging - arm manner, Walcott even went so far once as to raise both his hands above his head within Louis' reach. Dozens of times he half-stepped back and then walked away from the champion, his tongue sticking out just a little.

The referee twice called to Walcott: "Come on, this is a fight." But Walcott didn't want to make a fight of it until he nearly closed the champion's left eye. When he came in to fight, it was all over.

Up to that time the judges had Walcott out in front and the referee saw Louis as leading. The Canadian Press scorecard listed Walcott with five rounds, Louis with three and two even. Referee Fullam had it Louis 5-2 with 3 even. Judge Jack O'Sullivan scored it 5-4 for Walcott with one even and Judge Harold Barnes gave the challenger a wide edge, 6-3, with one even.

Although the rain of the last two nights materially cut into the receipts, the total of $841,739 made the fight the ninth richest in ring history. Louis received approximately $250,000 and Walcott $125,000.

Vet, Newcomer Matched in Final Of Golf Tourney

Toronto, June 26 (CP) —Veteran Phil Farley of Toronto and newcomer Don Varey of Brantford were matched today in finals of the Ontario Amateur Golf championship.

A forecast of good weather favored the final 36 holes of match play due to wind up the 3 day tournament on Rosedale's tricky par-70 course.

Varey, 27, scored a surprising victory Friday over defending champion Rudy Horvath of Windsor in a semi-final match, to earn the right to meet Toronto's 36-year-old five-time winner of the title.

Varey won from Horvath 4 and 3; Farley defeated Emerson Creed of Barrie 3 and 2 in the other semi-final match.

Since the tournament started Wednesday, favorites have gone down to defeat daily. On the first day four former champions failed to qualify in the 18-hole medal play round. On Thursday, the first day of match play, most low scorers in the medal play were ousted by comparative newcomers.

Horvath was one up on Varey at the end of seven holes. Varey came back to win the eighth and Horvath's putting was off, and Varey came on to win the 10th, 13th, 14th,, 15th, and 16th.

Farley won four of the first five holes. Creed took the next two, and Farley the ninth. On the return nine Creed won the 12th and Farley the 14th. The match ended after they split two more holes.

Three in Line For Vacant Title Held by Louis

New York, June 26 — (CP)—The scramble is on for the vacant heavyweight championship. Right now Jersey Joe Walcott, lightheavyweight champion Gus Lesnevich and 175-pound Ezzard Charles seem to have the edge on the pack in the chase for boxing's most prized crown.

Joe Louis created the vacancy last night with his explosive right hand which flattened Walcott in the 11th round at Yankee Stadium.

And it wasn't long after the king had announced his retirement that Sol Strauss, acting promoter of the Twentieth Century Sporting Club, declared his outfit would seek to bring together the leading heavyweights in an elimination tournament to determine the Brown Bomber's successor.

Eddie Eagan, chairman of the New York Athletic Commission, said the commission couldn't do anything until bouts were brought to it for official action. But there wasn't much doubt that Eagan and his two fellow commissioners would approve a series of fights that would bring in Walcott, Lesnevich and Charles.

Walcott, incidentally is 34 years old, Lesnevich 33, and Charles will be 25 next month.

The National Boxing Association probably would fall in line, too, with any tournament that would bring in the three.

From a promotional standpoint, a Walcott-Lesnevich match appears as the standout and it is understood that the 20th S. C. may have something like that all cooked up for outdoors in September.

Precedent for an elimination tournament was established in 1928 when Gene Tunney retired undefeated. After a series of fights, Max Schmeling and Jack Sharkey emerged as the class. The German then won the championship on a fourth round fowl from Sharkey on June 12, 1930.

Man Saves Children In Path Of Fast Express WINS DOW AWARD

CHARLES AUGUSTE LEMAY OF LOUISEVILLE, QUE.,
rescues boy and girl from railway bridge in nick of time

On their way home from an afternoon sports meet, the two Saucier children — Helene, 8 and Roger, 4 — decided to take a short-cut by crossing a 250-foot railway bridge. Chattering gaily about the day's events, and not thinking to look behind, they didn't hear the Montreal-Quebec express approaching in the distance.

LEMAY SEES DANGER

Charles Lemay, walking along the track with a friend, saw the train and the children at the same time. Realizing that the youngsters would not have time to get across, he made a dash for the young pair. He had been about 500 feet from the bridge when he started and by the time he caught up with them they were about half way across.

Without saying a word and barely stopping, he swept 4-year-old Roger into his arms and ran with him to the other end of the bridge. Then, speeding back, he, grabbed the girl and repeated the wild dash . . . leaving the bridge just in time. In a matter of seconds the express roared by.

Courage, presence of mind and quick thinking on the part of this young Canadian saved the lives of two children that Sunday afternoon. We are proud to pay tribute to Charles Lemay of Louiseville, Que., through the presentation of The Dow Award.

Lemay knew that the children would never reach the other end of the bridge on time. Quickly he sprinted the 500 feet to the bridge . . . determined to save them at any cost.

Slowing down just long enough to scoop young Roger into his arms, Lemay carried him to safety and then returned at full speed for the girl.

THE DOW AWARD is a citation for outstanding heroism and includes, as a tangible expression of appreciation, a $100 Canada Savings Bond. Winners are selected by the Dow Award Committee, a group of editors of leading Canadian newspapers.

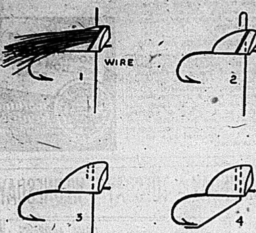
Solunar Tables:

The Weedless Bass Bug



By JOHN ALDEN KNIGHT
(Noted Sportsman, Author and Creator of Solunar Tables)

About six or seven years ago, my son and I journeyed out to Wisconsin to investigate some of its famous bass fishing. Our first port of call was Prairie du Chien. There, under the able guidance of several of the local anglers, we were introduced to some of the most unique bass fishing that I have encountered anywhere.

Prairie du Chien residents, of course, fish the back waters and sloughs (pronounced "slews") of the upper Mississippi. These waters are endowed with luxuriant plant growth — water weeds, lily pads, lotus and, last but not least, huge beds of duck wort. It was on these last that we were introduced to the finer points of fishing with a weedless bass bug.

Duck wort, in case you are not familiar with it, is a tiny little water plant, complete with roots, stem, leaves and blossoms. The entire mature plant can be encompassed, roots and all, in a cubic half inch. The plant floats on the surface and the roots merely hang down in the water, never actually coming in contact with soil. In the Mississippi "slews," the shorelines are fringed with solid acres of duck wort and under these sheltering mats of vegetation the big Mississippi bass make their homes.

Good Results Over Beds

While you may catch a few bass by fishing around the edges of these beds of duck wort, your luck will be much better if you fish right through or over the beds themselves. The boys out in Prairie du Chien have developed an interesting technique for this job. They use weedless bugs. These are cast to the shoreward side of the beds. Then, slowly, they are "walked" back across the duck wort, their progress giving the impression of some luckless small creature that has fallen into this death trap and is trying to make its way out. The bass don't actually see the bug. They strike at the shadow from below and they take bug, duck wort and all — a great big mouthful. The play is unhampered as there is open water underneath the duck wort beds, and the line moves through the little plants without complication. As I say, it's interesting fishing. Often not so much as a drop of water touches either the bug or the line throughout an entire cast and retrieve.

When we left Prairie du Chien, not without considerable regret, we applied the weedless bug technique elsewhere. In hard-fished waters, it is a handy trick to have up your sleeve.

It stands to reason that in heavily fished waters the open shorelines, available to all with orthodox methods, become fairly well depopulated in due course. However, in every good bass lake there are marshy areas, choked and cluttered up with water plants, down logs, brush piles and stumps. Here and there in these places are pockets of open water. We shove our boat through these wastelands and cast our bugs ahead of us into the pockets. It is amazing, to one who has not seen it done, to see a bug cast into a tangled labyrinth of brush and snags and then safely retrieved by the simple process of "walking" it out.

Simple Technique

The technique is simple. Cast your weedless bug to a pocket sixty or seventy feet from the boat. Fish out the pocket slowly. Then lower the rod tip and pull the line slowly back through the guides. The bug will climb or "walk" over, through and around the most hopeless tangles and come safely back to you to be cast again.

Of course, when you hook a bass the only way to land him is to keep tight line and take the boat in to him. You certainly can't lead him out to you. While the play is restricted, as compared to the openwater variety, there is plenty of excitement and it is a way to find good fishing in heavily fished waters. Not only that, but you will encounter surprisingly little competition. Most folks, when they see you fishing in such a place, assume that you must be slightly daft and go on about their business of fishing the depleted shorelines.

If you can't find weedless bugs at your tackle shop, don't be discouraged. You can "de-weed" most any bass bug by using the simple method shown in the illustration. All you need is the "E" string of a guitar and a pair of pliers. Just shove the wire through the cork head of the bug (being careful of your fingers) and bend it as shown. If you have never fished a weedless bug in the congested waters of a lakeside swamp, give it a try some day. You'll be surprised at how much fun you'll have.

And don't forget — you will get better fishing in these places if you fish them during the Solunar Period. Then is the time that the bass will come out of hiding and knock the paint off your surface lures.

Solunar Periods

The schedule of Solunar Periods, as printed below, has been taken from John Alden Knight's Solunar Tables. Plan your days so that you will be fishing in good territory or hunting in good cover during these times, if you wish to find the best sport that each day has to offer.

The Major Periods are shown in boldface type. These begin at the times shown and last for an hour and a half or two hours thereafter. The Minor Periods, shown in regular type, are of somewhat shorter duration.

The days given are for June 27th to July 4th inclusive. All times D.S.T.

Tactics Failed To Work For One Split Second

(Editor's Note: A noted psychiatrist who predicted a knockout by Joe Louis after using scientific methods of analyzing the fighters, gives his views on the outcome.)

By J. L. MORENO M.D.
(Copyright, 1948, by The Associated Press)

New York, June 26 (AP)—Joe Louis Friday night was like a husband who's just caught on to the tricks of a nagging wife.

He and Joe Walcott fought much like a husband and wife who have argued many times over a mother-in-law or the family budget. Each had a feeling, almost to the second, of what the other was planning to do next.

This time Louis knew Walcott much better. He had learned a great deal in six months. He had carefully studied Walcott's style, and sparred with men who imitated it. That was the psychological difference between the close December decision and Friday night's knockout.

And somewhere in the middle rounds, Walcott apparently realized that.

For 10 rounds it was an almost monotonous repetition of the first fight, like most family quarrels are. Walcott battled according to prescription. He played a careful game of chess—until he was caught in the 11th round whirlwind.

Jersey Joe knew he had no defence against the whirlwind of Louis' fury of punches. His plan was to retreat with attrition, to collect points and get the decision. He was aided by superiority on his legs, and his tremendous steadiness on his feet.

But for one split second, his tactics failed to work.

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

The longest reign in the history of heavyweight boxing ended last night as Joe Louis, aging but potent "Brown Bomber" stood over Joe Walcott after an eleven inning knock out triumph and declared that "This is my last fight" The Joe Louis of old showed briefly in that eleventh round when the champ got in that paralyzing right hand and crashed another victim to the canvas. The victory, Louis' twenty fifth successful title defence, was a glorious climax to his long boxing career and with it he wrote finis to an era in the heavy weight division.

In his eleven years as kingpin in the boxing world Louis has fought every challenger that has appeared. No man can do more. Undoubtedly he has set a record in a profession in which records abound, that will lie undisturbed for decades. He has proven himself to be one of the greatest champions ever to lace on the gloves.

Louis was a champion in more ways than one. He always fought hard clean fights.. He was invariably the aggressor and always the gentleman. He accepted his position as the best in his class with becoming modesty and was never heard to utter a boastful word about his own abilities.

All that remains now is for the boxing enthusiasts to sit and thrash out the age old question; Would Joe have beaten the men who preceded him, Jefferies, Johnston, Dempsey or Tunney.. That question will never be answered. But Louis has nothing to fear regarding his status as a champion. He will always rank in the front row.

Those few who turned out to witness the game at the Fair Grounds last night were treated to a pleasing exhibition of the pastime, as Northern Electric downed the Merchants 1-0 Everything happened. The game was started prior to 8.30 and the scorer did not arrive until the bottom of the first. The management of both teams agreed to cut the contest to seven inings in order to give the players and the fans an opportunity to hear the fight. In the top of the seventh innings the lights went out and the fans went with them. When play was resumed a pinch hitter was at bat but he had little to do as the runner was thrown out by the catcher in a vain tempt to steal second base.

As if this was not enough "Mouse" Bush who was on loan to the Northern Electric and was playing short, failed to return when the kleigs shone again. Either he strayed away or was carried off by the hordes of mosquitos but his absence necessitated the only player subsitution of the game.

And to crown the whole effort, the game was well played. Only one error was commited and as it turned out it was possibly the best play of the evening. Williamson bobbled Leo Goyer's grounder in the top of the second but tagged Whitman as he headed for third for the second out.

Tonight the Batawa Shoemen tangle with Kingston's lowly Locos in a regular COBL fixture at the Fair Grounds. The Shoemen, who are pushing the faltering Petes for the leadership could take over the top slot tonight if the Merchants in Oshawa repeat their performance of last Wednesday and down the lads from the Liftlock city.

Such a fortunate coincidence would give the locals the nod mathematically although the two teams would be tied in number of games won. The Petes have a game in hand. However their early season wins would seem to loom larger as the season progresses because the Petes have lost three of their last four games, one to each team in the league. Any talk that the boys from the Liftlock city might make the race a runaway seem to be disappearing into thin air. At present they lead Batawa by one game and the Oshawa Merchants by two games.

The game here tonight shapes up as a contest with distinct possibilities. The Locos, although reposing unmolested in the league basement served notice the other night that they intend to be heard from ere long. They dropped the first half of a double header to the Petes but came back in the second tilt to win 10-9. It is true that the win came in the Locos own yard but it would undoubtedly give their sagging spirits a lift. They beat the Petes. Who knows what might happen tonight.

The Easton led crew, minus manager Easton and ace hurler Gordie Muffitt, will be out for the all-important win. Bridgeman, Watson, Bowman and Cook suspended earlier in the week for violation of player agreements with the Trenton Monarchs will see action in the lineup. Their suspension was lifted by an OBA sub-committee Thursday but the suspension of pitcher Muffitt and manager Easton will remain. Muffitt will not see action again until July 1 and manager Easton has been thumbed off the bench until July 10.

From. Oshawa. comes. word that the disputes which have been rankling the team have resulted in a shakeup of the personnel.

"Manager Doug Sutton has taken over the running of the team with Jimmie Legree as secretary and business manager. Moose Mathews is out as coach and Red Jubenville has turned in his uniform. Others were considering turning in their uniform too. It remains to be seen if those still with the ship will work to make a success of it" concludes scribe Campbell.

Rumor has it that there is a cracker-jack junior pitcher in town from Montreal. 'Tis said that the lad is definitely good and chances are that he will sign shortly with one of the contenders in the Belleville Baseball League angling for his John Henry.

Bits and Pieces: Abe Yanofsky of Winnipeg and Canada's only chess master, won his 13th round game at Marianske Lazne, (you pronounce it) Czechoslovakia, and it tied for third place with Milan Virmar of Yugoslavia with a score of 8½, 4½ ...... We always knew that some boxers were fast in retreat and it is reputed that one or two of the better known ones have "ridden bicycles" in their time but Gerard Cote takes the prize. Gerard took up the running game as a conditioner for his hoped-for boxing career and wound up as one of the all-time great marathoners and Canada's best hope in the Olympics .... Highest price ever paid for a seat on the New York Stock exchange was a red hot $625,000 in 1929 ......Any takers?

4 Zone Standards Shattered In Winnipeg Meet

(By The Canadian Press)

Two zone standards fell Friday night at Winnipeg as the zone three Olympic track and field trials wound up at Sargent Park. Four standards were shattered Thursday night as the two-day trials opened.

Doreen Dredge of Kelvington, Sask., equalled the Canadian women's high jump record (native and open) of five feet three inches, set by Ethel Catherwood of Saskatoon in 1928 and tied by Margaret Bell of Vancouver in 1936. The Saskatchewan girl's leap topped the zone standard by three inches.

Svein Sigfusson of Winnipeg broke the men's discus standard with a heave of 137 feet two inches. The standard is 135 feet. A special committee will select the squad to enter the final eliminations at Montreal July 9-10.

At London, England, Lennart Bergelin, 23-year-old long-legged Swede with a boarding house reach, pulled one of the classic upsets of Wimbledon tennis history Friday when he defeated Frankie Parker of Los Angeles in a gripping five-set struggle. The 32-year-old American star, seeded first and heavy favorite to win the singles title, went down by scores of 5-7, 7-5, 9-7, 0-6, 10-8, after more than three hours play before 15,000 exhausted fans.

Patty Berg of Minneapolis and Babe Didrikson Zaharias, Friday gained the finals of the United States Women's Western Open Golf Tourney at Chicago. Miss Berg, 1941 and 1943 open winner, triumphed on the 21st hole, 1 up, over Beverley Hanson of Fargo, N.D., the lone amateur still in the running. Mrs. Zaharias, who copped the open three times previously, easily climbed into today's 36-hole championship round with a 6 and 4 triumph over professional Helen Detweiler of Indio, Cal.

Israel hopes to have a battle-hardened team of about 50 men and women at the Olympic games next month. They now are being rounded up from warfronts of the new Jewish state carved out of Palestine. Like all Israelis between 17 and 55 they are in military service under conscription.

At Toledo, O., golfdom's golden boys, Jimmy Demaret and open champion Ben Hogan, grabbed a commanding lead Friday in their quest to make it three straight in the $10,650 Inverness best-ball matches. The two boosted their match play points to six plus seven. They racked up two victories, giving them a three-point edge going into the final rounds of the 126-hole competition.

Indian Land, bay horse of Castleton Farm stables, Friday night burst the bubble of Dr. Stanton's Invincibility, defeating the great Canadian pacer at Roosevelt Raceway at Westbury, N.Y., in the $5,000 Nebraska free for all pace. Joe O'Brien of New Glasgow, N.S., drove Indian Land to the wire by a length.

Time of the race was 2:02 1-5, fastest of the year at the Raceway.

Officers of the Kitchener Minor Baseball Association resigned Friday. They said their action resulted from an Ontario Baseball Association decision Thursday night to disallow a Kitchener protest against certain Kitchener players lining up with Waterloo Tiger Cubs' Juniors.

Tom Hunter and Tom Hale, both of Montreal, each fired a 73 Friday to tie for first place in the qualifying round of the Quebec Amateur Golf Championship played over the County Club course at Montreal.

At Saint John, N.B., champion Birchwood Riffle El Nyla, owned by Mrs. Eva Gudgeon of Bronte, Ont., won best-in-show and best Canadian-bred in the 47th annual dog show of the New Brunswick Kennel Club Friday night.

Eddie Haddad, Canada's lightweight selection for the Olympic Games Boxing competition, arrived in Montreal Friday en route to Halifax. He will sail from there next month with the Canadian boxing team. Haddad, a stores assistant in the Canadian Navy, has been granted special leave for the games.

Toronto, June 26 (CP)— The British Empire games, a seemingly unwanted child for a while, may land back in the home of its birth 18 years ago—Hamilton.

When Toronto turned down the chance to be host to the games at the Canadian National Exhibition Grounds, Ivan (Hamilton Spectator) Miller said Hamilton could obtain the games if a man could be found to devote his full time as organizer. But few such men are available, he said, "Unless the city could get interested and dig M. M. (Bobby) Robinson, boss of the initial games, out of retirement."

Hamilton Civic Stadium, says Miller, is even better equipped to handle the job today than when it was scene of the first games

What Price Amateurs?

Jack (London Free Press) Park reminds his readers that London is in the running for the games but hopes the paying customers will give them more support than is usual for track and field there. London track meets "rarely draw enough attendance money to pay for medals."

Goodbye, Kenny

Bill (Ottawa Journal) Westwick has a parting note for Kenny Charlton, who is leaving Ottawa Roughriders to play for another team of football Roughriders in his home town of Regina.

"It is through no lack of effort on the Big Four team's part that Charlton is not staying on," says Bill. "But he has been offered a position in Regina which appeals to him."

Tribute to The Boss

Britt (North Bay Nugget) Jessup pays tribute to his late boss, W. E. (Bill) Mason, who also published the Sudbury Star.

"Mr. Mason always gave his sports editors a free hand to express their views....in many cases we can recall being supported by 'the big boss'....

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

Many players refuse to consider a jump rebid in the same suit as an absolute force. Most of them do not know why. All they do is follow a statement made by some noted expert.

In answer to an opening of one, their system permits a bid in response with a weak holding. On the other hand, their jump rebid in the same suit is based on a response that is not shaded.

Consequently, a responder who has shaded lacks what the jumper has counted on. With the weak responding hand the jumper will not be able to make the game that his jump indicated.

Thus, their jump rebid in a same suit is only a conditional force. It is forcing only if partner has not a weaker hand than his first response should actually show.

In Horse Sense a jump rebid in the same suit is an absolute force. Why? Our response is not weak or shaded. Responder has what jumper expects and the pair will have game with what jumper holds.

There was a deal like this:

NORTH
♠A K 10
♥10 8 3
♦10 8 7 4
♣J 3 2

WEST
♠9 7 5 4 3
♥A Q 5 4
♣8 7 6

EAST
♠Q J 6 2
♥K 9 7 6
♣K 10 9 4

SOUTH
♥J 2
♦A K Q J 6 3 2
♣A Q 5

The bidding went like this:

South	North
1 D	1 NT
3 D	3 NT
4 NT	5 H
6 D	Pass

At no time did south see 12 tricks in their pair. A final bid of five diamonds is where the contract rightfully belongs. A lead of a heart would take two tricks to kill the slam.

But his four no-trump slam prober got a reply that landed him in slam. And when west led a trump instead of a heart, south took 12 tricks. Some players have it handed to them.

The Movie Column

By BOB THOMAS

Hollywood, June 26 (AP) — Comedian Bobby Clark wants Hollywood to know he cannot be lured away from the stage. In fact, he gets almost violent about it.

Clark, currently cavorting here in "Sweethearts," said he has received a "feeler" about a film job. But movie makers should know by now his utter disdain for their medium.

"I never go to the movies, except to see foreign films," said Clark, who like most comics is a serious man offstage. He told of being inveigled into seeing one of the current film hits: "It was terrible—a disgrace."

"Film makers don't even know what a performer can do," he continued.

Television Hopeless

The famed comic sees little hope for television.

'It's in all the bars in New York", he declared, "but nobody looks at it. Even the most rabid baseball fans will watch only a couple of innings and then lose interest.

"Television will be all right for historic events, but for entertainment—no."

"There will be no more funny shows," he predicted. "The trend is already in that direction. Look at the successful musicals—'Brigadoon', 'Oklohoma!' 'Finian's Rainbow', 'Sono of Norway', 'Allegro." None has any comedy to speak of.

Comic Shortage

"The students are trying to put together a new 'Ziegfeld Follies', but they can't because they can't find a comedian who can carry the show."

TRIUMPH OF PENICILLIN

Bretton Woods, N. H., June 26 — (AP) — The prevention of prenatal syphilis was described by Dr. Arthur E. Parks of Toronto Thursday as "perhaps the outstanding triumph of penicillin." He said that when penicillin is given a syphilitic expectant mother in two courses of 2,400,000 units in the third and seventh months of pregnancy, "it is nearly 100 per cent effective in preventing infection of the baby." Dr. Parks spoke before the 36th annual meeting of the medical section of the American Life Convention.

WHEAT FLOUR PRODUCTION

Ottawa, June 25 — (CP)—Production of wheat flour during May amounted to 1,726,281 barrels, much lower than the 2,610,806 barrels produced in May, '47, and the next-to-lowest monthly figure during the current crop year, the Bureau of Statistics reported Thursday.

ORDER OF LENIN CONFERRED

London, June 26 — (AP) — The Moscow radio said Fri. the Order of Lenin has been awarded to Marshal Vassily Sokolovsky, Russian commander in Germany, and to his deputy, Lt.-Gen. M. I. Drativin. The Order, one of the Soviet Union's highest decoraful fulfilment of government asful fulfilment of government assignments."

Mayors' Discuss Housing Problems At Last Session

Halifax, June 26 (CP)—With a plea for better housing, the Canadian Federation of Mayors and Municipalities ended its 11th annual meeting here Thursday.

The 350 delegates from Glace Bay, N. S., to Victoria covered a wide range of subjects and finished business one day earlier than scheduled. Site of the next meeting was selected as Quebec and Mayor Lucien Borne of that city was elected president to succeed Mayor Ray T. Forbes of Fredericton.

The meetings were preoccupied throughout with housing and adopted a resolution calling for a Dominion - Provincial - Municipal Conference on the problem.

On the instigation of Mayor Rev. H. Lloyd Henderson of Portage La Prairie, Man., the conference resolved that the only permanent solution to the housing problem is to raise the income of low-wage brackets.

A report by J. O. Asselin, head of the Fredericton's housing committee, called for federal rental subsidizing as a temporary solution to the housing crisis.

Can't Provide Shelter

Asselin, president of the Montreal Metropolitan Commission, said "nearly half of the Canadian population is unable to provide itself with shelter" under present construction costs.

Howard M. Baker of Montreal's traffic study department told the conference five people are killed every day in traffic accidents in Canada and yearly loss from such accidents amounts to more than $70,000,000.

E. Royden Colter, executive director of Saint John, N. B., said there is no equity in the distribution of taxes among the three levels of government.

Resolutions passed by the Federation called for: Recognition by the federal government of full responsibility for the relief of unemployed; municipal relief from the costs of social services; increased pension payments to war veterans; increased old age pensions and lowering of the age requirement to 65; prevention of sex crimes, and restriction of undesirable publications.

Capital Closeups:

Senator Haig Most Vocal, Persistent Critic of Govt.

By DOUGLAS HOW
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, June 26 (CP)—Come youth and all its splendors, a 70-year-old veteran of 34 years of political strife remains possibly the most vocal and persistent critic of government policy on Parliament Hill.

As leader of the wan and depleted Progressive Conservative membership of the Senate, John Thomas Haig has to be—because he is often largely a one-man opposition.

Some times twice in one day, he lets fly on major subjects.

He is an active member of most of the Senate's more important committees, but his major job is as second-in-command of the divorce committee that handles the Chamber's longest, toughest task.

With some significance, he lately has been encouraging the two old parties to make electoral changes that would forestall a C.C.F. government on a minority vote.

It is political irony that he is the Senate counterpart of John Bracken, his party's leader in the Commons, because they were foes in the Manitoba legislature for years. It is a commentary of his open, boyish, friendly nature that an autographed print of a painting of Prime Minister Mackenzie King hangs on his office wall, thickly encircled by Tories.

As a United Nations delegate, he became a friend of M. J. Coldwell, C.C.F. leader. The corridors of parliament are not surprised to see him and Senator Wishart Robertson, Liberal leader, first-naming one another and walking arm in arm.

Earthly Language

Once a farm boy, Senator Haig has never quite divorced himself from that background despite his legal career. His talk easily runs to homespun terms like "honest" and "by jiminy." He argues with an earthy, open purpose that often carries him away.

He is never happier than when the Senate, somewhat of a sanctuary, rears back and flies into a good old-fashioned scrap.

Ask Information On Steps to End Docks' Strike

London, June 26 — (Reuters)—Conservative members in the Commons Friday pressed in vain for information on further measures planned by the government to end the 12-day-old strike of 20,000 dockers which has paralyzed the great port of London.

Prime Minister Attlee said the 300 troops so far drafted into the docks to move perishable food cargoes would complete their task this week-end.

The number of men on strike at mid-morning was 19,662 — almost exactly the same total as Thursday.

The walkout started in protest against the suspension of 11 dockers who refused to unload "dirty cargo" without extra pay.

It has already cost the men about £150,000 ($600,000) in lost wages. Import and export cargoes valued at about £30,000,000 — ($120,000,000) have been held up and the 150 vessels idle in the Thames have lost about £250,000 in sailing time.

Peiping Council Hurl Ash Trays At Commissioner

Peiping, June 26 (AP)—Peiping's city council threw ash trays and ink wells at its Commissioner of Police Friday when he appeared to make his report.

The council was sore at the commissioner, Maj. - Gen. Tang Yung-Hsien, because it thinks he's too dictatorial. Also it did not like all those armed police he had stationed around city hall.

When he told them to shut up and likened them to three-faced buddhas (a Chinese way of saying you think you know everything, don't you?) that was too much.

They let fly with everything that came to hand. Four councilmen rescued Tang, relatively undamaged.

Bomb Story Hoax Brings Plane Back to Port

London, June 26 — (CP)—A Montreal - bound airplane was ordered back to London airport Thursday following an anonymous telephone warning that a bomb had been planted aboard it.

But the warning was a hoax. Fire engines, ambulances and police met the returning plane, a British Overseas Airways Constellation with 24 passengers. No bomb was found and the aircraft took off again early Friday.

INCREASE SALARIES

Toronto, June 25 — (CP) — Board of Education Thursday night increased the maximum salary of public school women teachers to $3,500, the same maximum as men public school teachers. The increase is estimated to cost $120,000, but will not become effective in any case until 1951.

Buffalo Bisons Battling Way To Top of Loop

(By The Associated Press)

Buffalo Bisons slowly but surely are battling their way upwards in the International League pennant race.

Manager Paul Richards' fence-busting crew is only one percentage point out of third place today and four games behind the second-place Newark Bears.

The Bisons missed an opportunity to take over third Friday night by dividing a doubleheader with Jersey City Giants while the third - place Syracuse Chiefs dropped a 5-2 decision to Toronto Maple Leafs.

After beating the Giants, 5-3, in the first game, the Bisons were nosed out, 4-3, in the second contest.

Newark divided a doubleheader with Rochester Red Wings, taking the first tilt, 4-3, but losing the second 5-3.

The game between the league-leading Montreal Royals and the tail-end Baltimore Orioles was postponed.

R. Branca Wins Seventh in Row For Brooklyn

By RALPH RODEN
(Associated Press Sports Writer).

"Ralph Branca is finished." That was the opinion shared by many following the Brooklyn Dodger righthander's dismal showing in the 1947 World Series against New York Yankees.

The belief gained momentum when the pitcher was knocked from the mound in his first three starts in the current National League season.

Today however Branca is in line for a pitching assignment on the league's all-star team.

Following his third trip to the showers Branca began to look like the Branca who won 21 games in 1947. Currently he's on a winning streak that has reached seven straight.

Branca tamed St. Louis Cardinals 3-2, with a seven-hitter in Brooklyn Friday night to post his ninth victory. He has lost five.

The Dodgers jumped on Red Munger for two runs in the third on an infield hit, Billy Cox's triple and Jackie Robinson's two-bagger. The Dodgers scored the winning run in the fifth when Ed. Miksis singled and rode home on Marv Rackley's double.

By losing, the Cards fell 1½ games behind the league-leading Braves who swamped Pittsburgh Pirates, 12-3, in a night game.

Jimmy Russell, Tommy Holmes and Alvin Dark belted homers to spark the Boston attack.

Philadelphia Phillies edged Chicago Cubs, 2-1, behind Dutch Leonard. Dick Sisler's double and Del Ennis' single produced the winning run in the seventh frame.

Giants Trounce Reds

In the only day game in either league, the Giants trounced Cincinnati Reds, 7-0. Ray Post held the Reds to three safeties.

Philadelphia Athletics moved into second place, a game behind the front-running Cleveland Indians in the American League pennant chase by downing the White Sox, 4-1.

Joe Coleman limited the sox to eight hits and batted in two runs with a second-inning double to hang up his eighth victory.

The Indians were nosed out, 3-2, by Washington Senators. It was the faltering Tribe's ninth setback in their last 13 starts. Pitcher Early Wynn batted in the winning runs with a two-run single in the top of the seventh inning.

At Detroit, the Tigers turned back New York Yankees, 4-2, to drop the Yanks from second to third place in the standings, four percentage points behind the Athletics.

Southpaw Hal Newhouser held the Yanks to seven hits, two of them homers by Johnny Lindell and Joe DiMaggio. DiMaggio's blast was his 18th, top output in the circuit.

St. Louis Browns upset Boston Red Sox, 9-6, with pitcher Bryan Stephens breaking up the game by doubling home three runs in the eighth inning.

CALLED TO QUELL DISTURBANCE

Brampton, June 25 — (CP) — For the second time this week R.C.M.P. and Provincial Police were called in to quell a disturbance among a group of Indians on a farm at Huttonville near here Thursday.

Three men were arrested and charged with disturbing the peace and resisting arrest. A quantity of beer and wine was seized. The Indians were all employed as berry pickers on the farm.

Russia, Satellites Want All-German Govt. Set Up

Warsaw, June 26 (AP)—Russia and seven European satellites today urged that a "provisional democratic, peace-loving all-German government" be set up.

They did so in a communique by their Foreign Ministers, who ended a two-day conference Thursday midnight in a Wilanow Palace, eight miles east of here.

The communique as broadcast by the Moscow radio and distributed in London by Tass, Russian news agency, said an all-German government should be created by big-four agreement.

The foreign ministers, including V. M. Molotov of Russia, said the government in Germany should be made up of representatives of democratic parties and organizations and should guarantee against any more German aggression.

In the conference with Russia were Albania, Bulgaria, Czechoslovakia, Hungary, Poland, Romania and Yugoslavia. Russia and Poland called the meeting.

Little Benny's Note Book

Ma was looking at the radio page to see if there was any mistery show to tern on, saying to pop, Oh dear, there doesn't seem to be anything on the air just now except music and singers. Oh well, that's better than politics. Turn something on, William, she said.

Which pop did, being an announcer saying, You have just heard Mack Merry and his Merry Macks playing, You Have Filled My Empty Heart. Perry Brand will now sing When I'm Home Sweet Home in My Baby's Arms.

Which Perry Brand started to do, through his nose like he always sings, and pop said, Move over, Perry, and give somebody else a chance.

And he turned to another station and the Midjin Sisters were singing Time Stands Still When I Kiss My Bill.

Yee gods, this is getting me down, aren't there any songs except love songs any more? pop said, and ma said, But William, there never were.

The dooce there weren't, how about the rousing old drinking songs? pop said, and ma said. They were only drinking toasts to love.

You wrong them, my dear, they were drinking to some place where the Wertzburger flows, pop says.

And he terned the dial again and some girl was singing Jack Come Back to our Lonely Jill, and pop quick terned it again, and another announcer was saying. Peggy Shutz will now give us the top number in the song parade, Squeegie weegie teetie.

What the mischieff is that? pop said, and ma said, It's not a love song. I dont know what you'd call it.

I'd call it a relief, pop said, and Peggy Shutz started to sing it, being Squeegie weegie teetie, Weegie sqeegie boo, From Springfield to Teheeti, Eegie deegie foo.

Yee gods, there are werst things than love, pop said, and he terned the whole radio off till it was time for ma's ferst mistery show.

Yu'An Hee See Laughs

By Sax Rohmer

"No!" she confessed blankly, watching him. "It isn't the same. Of course, you can't possibly know what I'm talking about, so I must explain. While I was in the bath this morning that sudden squall of wind and rain came. Do you remember?"

Haig nodded.

"I had opened the porthole and fastened the door back to freshen the air in my cabin, and Dr. Oestler, whose cabin adjoins mine, must have done the same. Because, when I got back—I returned first—a lot of papers which had been lying loose on my table had been blown right out into the main alleyway...."

Dawson Haig was thinking, "I have so little to offer this glorious girl. et, if I lose her, life won't be worth a hoot. It seems like Fate that we've been brought together...."

"I didn't realize, until I looked through them, that some of the papers didn't belong to me. There were sheets of notes in German, some sort of scientific leaflet, and one or two other odds and ends, which I gave to the stewardess, asking her to find out where they had come from. I suggested, as his door was open, that they probably belonged to Dr. Oestler. I was right, and he sent a message back, thanking me. But later, when I was dresede, I found another fragment."

She slipped a hand into a pocket of her jumper and produced a half sheet of thin paper. "When I saw this," she continued, and her voice grew very serious, "I thought you ought to know at once."

Haig removed "Mr. Smith's tinted glasses and took the torn sheet from Eileen's hand. Scribbled in pencil upon the paper were the following words:

"Haig chief inspector Scotland Yard on board. Identify and advise."

Alone once more, but unaccountably happy amid his difficulties, Dawson Haig bent over his notes. Eileen had slipped in unnoticed. Sheer luck, and her keen wit, had come to his aid.

Dr. Oestler's pencilled scrawl was obviously a translation of the message:

"IBJH head keeper searchlight near home stope know tell."

Its deadly simplicity betrayed genius. The IBJH was elementary the letters being merely those next in the alphabet to HAIG, but the fact that "Head Keeper Searchlight" meant Chief Inspector Scotland Yard, was one which no crytographer could ever be expected to discover. "Near home" evidently corresponded to On Board; "Known" to identify; "Tell" to advise.

It was a system of analogies, and he proceeded to apply it to the other messages, with the result that by lunch time he was satisfied that at least the gist of these was in his possession.

He leaned back in his chair and whistled softly. Five members of this mysterious organization, professedly strangers to one another, were travelling in the Wallaroo, and Dr. Oestler was evidently the Chief. But the purpose behind it all remained unfathomable as ever. Three were booked to Port Said (since Mr. Len Chow had arranged to cancel his further passage); two to Australia.

What did their presence in the ship mean? And what was the connection with the Limehouse murder? He was baffled. Perhaps the most alarming feature of the case was the fact that these people seemed to be supplied with deadly accurate information. Durham had been identified, so much was evident. Now they knew that he, Haig, was on board! Since he could not recall having ever seen one of the suspects in his life—Franz Hartog excepted—he inclined to the idea that Durham, as well as himself, had been notified to Dr. Oestler from some well informed sources.

He bent over the messages which he had decoded. Those sent by the woman obviously related to the chief engineer, one of them reading:

"Organ grinder sure stop big boy and next of kin not running signed Val."

This he had translated as follows:

"Chief engineer captured. Commander and chief officer no good. Val."

That this meant that Corcoran had been bought over and become a party to some crooked deal, Haig did not believe for a moment. He read it to mean that the infatuated engineer was playing into the woman's hands. He was to be used, in some way, without his knowledge.

But—Haig stared up at the porthole and asked the question aloud: "In what way?"

Dr. Oestler's radio correspondence frankly defeated him. He could find no parallel, amongst the ship's company, to the strange names employed. And he had come to the conclusion that it related to something taking place elsewhere. Evidently, Dr. Oestler was a sort of chief of staff; his out-going messages took the form of inquiries as to the whereabouts of certain persons, and the replies presumably contained the desired information, which, however, conveyed nothing at all to Dawson Haig.

These messages were sent to a telegraphic address in Paris which he had no means of tracing.

It was all very maddening, because one fact emerged from all this mystification—a fact which refused to be denied:

This complicated conspiracy had nothing to do with drug running. That enterprise had been merely a side line, abandoned at the first hint of danger.

What then did it mean?

He thought of that hurried removal of the crates from Birmingham—the crates which almost certainly had been in charge of Mr. Len Chow.

Dawson Haig sat, his head resting upon one up-raised hand—for five minutes—for ten minutes... thinking hard—very hard.

How had Jo Lung, or the man of whom Jo Lung was merely a creature, learned of the instructions sent to Sydhey? They had been sent from the Yard in code to the Chief Customs officer.

Haig suddenly stood up. "By heavens!" he whispered. "They can't have known—they can't have known. It was a definite change of plan on the part of the gang. They removed their precious consignment because...."

Because of what?

The night train from Cairo to Asuan pulled into the station at Keneh. Only two first-class passengers alighted there, a man and a woman, an extraordinarily petite, a small, very slender woman.

The woman shivered as they entered a saloon car which awaited them in charge of a Nubian chauffeur and groom, magnificent figures in their smart uniforms.

..You shiver, little one," said Yu'an Hee See.

The woman leaned against him. "I am so cold, Yu'an," she explained.

"In two days you will be in your own apartments — amongst your scents and jewels, and those other toys you love, with service and warmth, and those treasures amid which I delight to see you playing."

He stroked her slender knee with a plump, tapering hand, and his words came as a high croon. While the car passed swiftly, and almost silently, along an unevenly paved street in which were lighted cafes, above them a tawdry gaiety glimpsed through open windows.

Where a large mosque grotesquely broke the continuity of these houses, they swung into a narrow side turning. The driver skirted one high wall of the mosque, came into the very shadow of the minaret, and turned left again. Through an unpaved lane running parallel and behind the rowdy street they proceeded, slowly now. Twenty yards along, they pulled up.

The Nubian groom deftly unrolled a length of carpet across the muddy path to a gate which was suddenly opened in an otherwise blank wall. An old Arab, black robed and white turbaned, stood there, holding a lantern high above his head. Its yellow light fell upon a wrinkled face which had earned for its owner the title of Father of Cunning.

Yu'an Hee See and the woman passed across a roughly paved courtyard. Light shone out from rooms on the ground floor, and there was an outer staircase leading up to a balcony illuminated by two fine lattice windows.

One would have judged, and judged correctly, that this was an old Arab mansion, dating no doubt in part to those dim ages when Egypt was governed by the Caliphs of Bagdad. Around it the sordid life of Keneh had crept, fungus-like, almost concealing, but not defacing, the home of some former merchant prince.

The Arab stood aside, set his lantern upon the balcony, and performed a low salutation as Yu'an Hee See and his companion entered the lighted room. On the threshold of this room, which was furnished with surprising elegance, they were met by Aswani Pasha. He bowed low over the extended hand of Orange Blossom, deeply saluting Yu'an Hee See.

"We have done our best, my lord," he said. "I trust you will be happy here for one night."

He clapped his hands, and an old Arab woman appeared.

"My lady," he bowed to Yu'an Hee See's companion, "your apartment is prepared; Magreba will attend to you. Orange Blossom, followed the aged attendant from the apartment.

"All are here?" Yu'an asked, upon a very high note, which betokened anxiety.

"All. I have the list showing where each man is tonight."

Yu'an Hee See waved a plump hand. "I do not wish to see it. Next?"

"The detective from Scotland Yard, who is in the Wallaroo, has been identified....He is in touch with the American girl whom your excellency has taken under your protection!"

Yu'an Hee See began very softly to hiss. "It is almost certain then, that this man had read the notes in my book before....?"

"I fear so, Excellency."

Yu'an Hee See, his eyes apparently quite closed, nodded, slowly.

"Even so," said the Egyptian, "alone he could do nothing."

"He has had time to inform others. But he cannot kno wall. Yet this man it was who followed me to Singapore a year ago..and has escaped me since..The Hangman is on board?" he whispered.

"He is."

A pause, then: "Instruct Dr. Oestler," said Yu'an Hee See.

Aswani Pasha nodded comprehendingly; whereupon Yu'an Hee See began to laugh, his red lips seeming to swell, but his teeth never showing; the oblique slits of his eyes turned in the Egyptian's direction.

For five, ten seconds, Aswani sustained the gaze of those eyes which he could not see. Then, his own bold glance faltered— he dropped his dark lashes and turned aside.

The laughter of Yu'an Hee See reached a note so high as to be almost audible....

Pittsburgh, June 25 — (AP)— "Come on, Pop, let's go out to the zoo and see the termites."

That sort of request won't be an impossibility among Pittsburgh's younger set in a few months, officials of the Pittsburgh zoo said Thursday.

The zoo people said they plan to establish a "zoo within a zoo" —consisting of two glass enclosures to house such insects as termites, ants and spiders.

Falls City, Neb. — (AP) — When Gus Phillips, now a Falls City railroad engineer, left Bulgaria as a "penniless boy" to come to the United States, King Ferdinand was on the throne.

Today a good package was on its way to the former king, sent by the same Gus Phillips The aged monarch, Phillips said, had requested it.

Phillips said the request was contained in a letter just received from Ferdinand, who abdicated in 1918 in favor of his son, Boris. Ferdinand now lives in an old castle in Coburg, Germany.

Los Angeles — (AP) — Stanley Smith, 39, and his wife, Grace, were tussling on the street when police drove up. Here, reported two officers, is what happened:

"My husband has been beating me," said Mrs. Smith. "I want you to arrest him."

"We can't arrest him," replied one of the officers. "We didn't see his hit you and you bear no marks."

"Is that the law?" interposed Smith.

Informed that it was, he declared: "Well, watch this."

He swung so hard he knocked Mrs. Smith unconscious into one officer's arms.

"Now," said Smith, "arrest me. I'm so tired of her bothering me that I want to go to jail."

The officers complied.

Los Angeles —(AP)— Imagine picking up $9,000,000 from the sidewalk and discovering it isn't worth a nickel to you!

Mailman H. L. Cutler, 45, did Thursday. He found a leather case. In it was a cheque for $9,060,916. He took it into a nearby bank. A girl messenger from the Federal Reserve Bank arrived to claim it. She'd dropped the case.

A Federal Reserve official said the cheque was a non-negotiable routine draft for transferring funds from a Bank of America branch to the Federal Reserve Bank.

Govt. Advises King To Proclaim State Of Emergency

Will Prevent Serious Threat To Britain's Food Supplies

London, June 28 — (CP) — The government today advised the King to proclaim a state of national emergency to deal with the fast spreading dock strike which enveloped two more of Britain's supplies arteries today.

Prime Minister Attlee told the Commons today that the royal proclamation has been requested to prevent more serious threat to Britain's food supplies. Such a proclamation, he said, would empower the government to take all steps necessary to maintain essential food supplies.

Attlee also disclosed that Labor Minister George Isaacs has been recalled from a visit to San Francisco to deal with the work stoppage, which spread today to Liverpool and Birkenhead.

The prime minister planned to take the strike issue directly to the country in a broadcast tonight.

Attlee said in a weekend speech that "Communist mischief" was partly responsible for the work stoppage.

The national emergency status called for by Attlee would be the first since the war and also the first since the Labor government came to power in August, 1945. Custom calls for the King to accept the recommendations of the government.

Attlee told the Commons "the irrespensible action of a section of the workers was inflicting grave injury on the nation." He added that "full use would be made of further service personnel to maintain the economic life of the people."

9,000 Workers Quit

While service men were moved into the London waterfront area to unload food supplies, an estimated 9,000 dock workers quit work at the two ports.

In London, truck loads of troops waited to see whether work would be resumed after the two-week layoff, protesting penalties imposed on 11 dock workers who refused to accept an agreed rate for handling a "dirty cargo" of zinc oxide.

The continued strike by about 19,000 London dock workers and the walkouts at Liverpool and Birkenhead was another slap in the face for the Transport and General Workers' Union, said to be the world's largest union.

The union has repeatedly called for work resumption and Sunday its spokesman claimed that a rowdy dock-side meeting had voted to go back. Many dock workers at the meeting denied this.

SKUNK GETS CAUGHT

Oshawa, June 28 — (CP) — Skunks have no respect for the Sabbath. One, a girl skunk, was inconsiderate enough to get herself caught Sunday in a Humane Society trap under the Oshawa General Hospital's pavilion. When an inspector arrived to shoot the animal he said, "the patients seemed to get a kick out of it anyway."

DROWNINGS TOP 28 FATALITIES DURING WEEKEND

14 Violent Deaths Occur in Ontario as Residents Rush to Resorts

(By The Canadian Press)

Drowning accounted for 13 of Eastern Canada's 28 weekend fatalities.

A Canadian Press survey today also showed the stocking strangling of a red-haired Toronto woman, eight traffic deaths, three deaths from burns, one by electrocution, one mine fatality and one death from injuries sustained in a fall.

Ontario reported 19 violent deaths, Quebec eight, including 6 drownings, and Nova Scotia one.

The following weekend deaths were reported today:

Edward Pincome, 51, of London, died at his home of injuries sustained June 9 when he collided with a motorcycle; George Brown, 64, was drowned early Sunday when he fell asleep while fishing and toppled into the Trent Valley canal; Velma Pascoe, 15, died of injuries sustained when she fell at a swimming pool near Oshawa; Peter Malowski, a Polish displaced person, died in a mine accident at Kirkland Lake; Florence Hill died of burns suffered in a fire at her home near Brantford, in which her seven-months old son had died earlier.

Leonard B. Smith, 25-year-old Toronto foundry worker, was charged with murder of Mrs. Leila Adams, 38, whose scantily-clad body was found Saturday in an alleyway in Toronto's east end. Police said the badly-beaten woman had been garrotted with one of her own stockings.

The drowning victims included: Sylva LaFlamme, 19, who slipped off a boat in Riviere des Prairies at Montreal; Jean La-Porte, 18, who lost his life while swimming in Lake Clouthier at St. Beatrice, Que.; Herbert Vandusen, 19, who plunged into the Thames River at Chatham; Doreen Everett, 20, of Bradford, who waded beyond her depth in the Moon River at Bala, while learning to swim.

Three Bodies Recovered

Others who drowned were: Angelo Vottero, Montreal police constable, victim of boating accident on Lake of Two Mountains near St. Eustache, Que.; Yvan St. Laurent, 18, who fell from a rock into the St. Lawrence River at Beauville; Gaston Jeffery, 19, who slipped into the St. Lawrence while transferring from one rowboat to another near Quebec City; Robert Raesback, eight, who fell off a Toronto wharf while trying to retrieve a ball; and Thomas McLachlin, 14, who was drowned in five feet of water in a Hamilton filtration basin.

VERBAL SLUGFEST ON PRICES PROBE STOPS CLOSING

King Declares Member "Talking Nonsense"

Ottawa, June 28 — (CP)—The Commons stopped a hurried drive toward prorogation Saturday to engage in a verbal slugfest on the report of the prices committee.

Charges and counter-charges were heard and at one point Prime Minister Mackenzie King angrily declared that John Diefenbaker (PC — Lake Centre) was talking "absolute nonsense."

Mr. Diefenbaker charged that the recommendations of the all-party committee had been tailor-made by the government itself.

"I ask the Prime Minister who it was that drafted or handed to certain members of the committee — certain government members of the committee — the recommendations that it was desired the committee should give. ..."

He said there were by-elections in which the government lost and "pilgrimages" of Liberal members to Mr. King seeking relief from taxation. Mr. King, in turn, had taken Finance Minister Abbott to task for his budget policies.

At this point, Mr. King jumped to his feet.

"That's absolute nonsense!" he shouted. "I have never taken the minister of finance to task in my life."

While Mr. Diefenbaker drew fire from the government benches, Ralph Maybank (L — Winnipeg South Centre) roused Progressive Conservative members with charges that they had wanted the prices committee to bring in a "white-washing report."

Other speakers in the debate were Donald Fleming (PC—Toronto Eglinton), William Irvine (CCF — Cariboo), Cecil Merritt, V. C., (PC — Vancouver-Burrard).

The prices debate on a report tabled Friday. That report contained recommendations urging the removal of excise taxes and import controls imposed in last November's currency conservation program.

Roumanian Meets Wife for First Time in 21 Years

Kitchener, June 28 — (CP) — George Hendels, a native of Roumania, has met his wife for the first time in 21 years.

He has also made the acquaintance of a 21-year-old daughter whom he never had seen before.

George came to Canada two decades ago hoping to make good and bring his family over. With his wife in the homeland, he left a four-year old son, George. He was the only child.

After he had been in Canada four months he received news a daughter had been born. Somehow things didn't work out as George had hoped and he could not bring his family to Canada.

Treaty to Set Up International Quota System for A-Power Urged

Lake Success, N. Y., June 28—(CP) — Frederick H. Osborn, United States delegate to the United Nations Atomic Energy Commission, Sunday advocated a treaty setting up an international quota system for atomic power.

Osborn in a statement backed up the viewpoint of Gen. A.G.L. McNaughton, Canadian delegate, at the final meeting of the atomic commission. Gen. McNaughton said the majority plan, from which Russia and the Ukraine dissented, represents "a bold challenge to the forces of reaction, of ignorance and of timidity to face up to the new conceptions of international organization which recognizes the inescapable facts consequent upon our entry into the atomic age."

The American delegate listed the major Russian arguments and his own answers as follows:

1. There must be a treaty prohibiting atomic weapons and the means of making them. The treaty must be put into effect before a treaty for control can be discuss-

"This proposal is tantamount to unilateral disarmament and is wholly unacceptable to any of the nations outside the Soviet sphere."

2. The proposal of the majority would "extend the United States monopoly through the whole world."

"It is hard to see how anyone can make this statement unless he has failed to read the first and, particularly, the second reports of the commission."

3. The international agency would control the economic life of each country.

This is groundless, "especially since agreement was reached on the inclusion in the treaty itself of a quota system which would provide in advance the proportion of atomic power that would be available to each nation."

4. The plan of the majority would interfere with national sovereignty.

"This argument is correst but . . . the question is . . . whether governments now want effective

First Break Seen as Cominform Assails Policy of Yugoslavia And Tito as Hateful to Russia

Prague, June 28 (AP) — The Communist Cominform charged today Yugoslav Communists had departed from the Marx-Lenin line and that their leaders, including Premier Marshal Tito, pursued a hateful policy toward Russia.

The cominform called for "either a true return to Marxist policy or a chance of Communist leaders in Yugoslavia."

This marked the first break in the ranks of the nine eastern countries which formed the cominform — the International Communist "information bureau" — at a meeting in Poland last fall. Yugoslavs were among the founders and cominform headquarters were established in Tito's capital, Belgrade.

An official statement today said Yugoslav representatives of the Communist party refused to take part in a session of the cominform held "the latter part of June" in Romania.

The statement of the Communist information bureau was published in "Rude Pravo" official newspaper of the Communist party of Czechoslovakia.

The bureau adopted unanimously a statement that Yugoslav Communists had departed from the Marx-Lenin line.

Rumors of the June meeting have floated around the world for the last ten days. Important Communists professed ignorance of it.

The first paragraph of the resolution, or statement said "the cominform asserts that the leadership of the Yugoslav Communist party has been lately undertaking entirely wrong policy on the principal questions of foreign and internal politics which means a retreat from the Marxism-Leninism.

"In connection with that, the Cominform accepts the process of the central committee of the all-Communist union of Bolsheviks, which assumed the iniative by unveiling the wrong policy of the central committee of the Communist party of Yugoslavia and especially the wrong policy of comrades Tito, Kardelj, Djilas, and Rankovic."

National Capital Planning Resolution Introduced By Prime Minister King

Ottawa, June 28. (CP)—Prime Minister Mackenzie King today introduced in the Commons a resolution committing the federal parliament to development of Ottawa as a national capital along the lines of an approved plan.

The resolution, in effect, defined federal policy towards the capital and Mr. King said he thought it "would be preferable to have an assurance from parliament of its intentions."

The plan for Ottawa's development would be beyond the means of any municipality, he said, adding that "the day will come when Canada will hold first place among the countries of the Commonwealth."

Mr. King's resolution calls for a special "National Capital Fund" with annual appropriations by parliament to finance projects recommended by the federal district commission.

He said improvement, including construction on new bridges and removal of the railway freight terminals will be "extremely costly".

The federal government, the city of Ottawa, and the provinces of Ontario and Quebec have direct interests and responsibilities in development of the capital area. It would be impossible to bring them together harmoniously unless there was some broad, general plan.

He warned that the developments could not be implemented at once and would require federal appropriations over a period of years. The resolution guaranteed that projects started one year would not be abandoned the next.

In emphasizing the necessity for a national capital, the Prime Minister declared that Canada "has possibilities no other countries have" and predicted that it would eventually reach first place in the Commonwealth.

120 U.S. Cargo Planes Carry Food into W. Berlin To Help Break Blockade

By LYNN HEINZERLING

Berlin, June 28 (AP) —United States transport planes are arriving at Tempelhof airport at eight-minute intervals today with food and other supplies for this Russian blockaded city.

A total of 120 planes is expected to fly the corridor over the Russian zone during the day to supply United States army post in Berlin and fill the most urgent needs of the 2,000,000 Germans in Berlin's three western sectors.

The United States Air Force hopes to send 100 or more planes in daily as long as necessary. But even the 120 planes scheduled today can bring only 300 tons of supplies. For the people of the western sectors the western allies formerly brought in 2,000 tons of food daily by rail.

British transport authorities said four flour barges reached here Sunday and 20 more were on the way. They could not explain why Russian inspectors let the barges through.

The Russians fired the German chief of electric utilities in their sector. They accused him of sabotaging their orders to shut off electricity to western Berlin.

This shutoff still cramped service in the western sectors, but western Berlin supplies about half its own power.

Trade union leaders in the Soviet sector voted against trying for a Berlin general strike for fear it would not be fully effective. United States authorities said the Communists were behind the move.

American police said they had received orders to "lay off or at least ease up" on arresting Sov-

(By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER)

Washington, June 28. (AP)—As food supplies dwindled for 2,000,000 Berliners, diplomats predicted the western powers shortly would make a direct demand on the Kremlin to lift the traffic noose from their sectors.

Air Force headquarters announced here Sunday night that about 39 of the big four-engine C-54 flying boxcars had been ordered to Germany to help ferry food and other urgently-needed supplies into the United States sector of Berlin.

The action gave one more indication of the determination of the United States, along with Britain and France, to stand fast and resist Russian efforts to block rail, highway and canal transport into the city.

A British Foreign Office spokesman said Sunday in London that the western powers were considering a direct "approach" to Moscow.

The London spokesman did not make clear what form the "approach" would take, whether in a single note or three similar notes.

However, arguments the three powers have made to date against the Russian actions indicate the approach probably would be based on two major points.

1. They could argue that under agreements made at the end of the war the western powers were accepted by Russia without qualification as joint occupants of the capital of defeated Germany.

2. They may warn Moscow in stiff terms that Russia has created a powder keg in Berlin and must bear full responsibility for the consequences if she persists in her present course.

MURDER CHARGE LAID AGAINST NAPANEE NATIVE

Said to Have Beaten And Strangled Woman

Toronto, June 28 — (CP) — A 25-year-old foundry worker, arrested on a charge of murder, today stood accused of garrotting Mrs. Leila Adams, 38, with her own silk stocking.

Leonard B. Smith was said by police to have beaten the woman then strangled her, leaving her partly-clothed body in a garage in east-central Toronto. He was remanded today until July 6.

A war veteran who married 4 months ago and lived with his bride less than a week, Smith was seen with Mrs. Adams Friday night, drinking beer in a tavern.

The body was discovered when Thomas Scott noticed the woman's red-painted toenails protruding from beneath the door of the dilapidated garage. Identity was made through fingerprint files; police said she had a police record here and in Montreal.

Police said there was "some evidence" Mrs. Adams recently underwent an illegal operation. She was married here in 1930 and has been estranged from her husband, a Hamilton roofer, for 11 years.

Dr. J. W. O'Hara, coroner, said: "All signs indicate this is definitely murder."

Mrs. Isobel Doole told police she heard the noise of a struggle in the lane at 2 a.m. Saturday.

Mrs. Adams, also known by her maiden name of Godfrey, had been visiting for the last five weeks at the home of a niece, Mrs. Vincent Baldasio. Police were told she received several telephone calls in the last two weeks from a man called 'Frank.'

Smith, native of Napanee, served with the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment during the Second World War, taking part in the invasion of Sicily and Italy.

Lightning Bolt Strikes Home, Woman Shocked

Toronto, June 28 (CP)—Shortly after Mrs. Frank Tadman left the bedroom in her suburban Scarboro home today a lightning bolt roared through the room.

Plaster, wood and cement was ripped from the walls and floor and an iron bed frame was bent. The bolt travelled on down to the basement causing damage there.

Mrs. Tedman suffered severe shock.

The electrical storm brought half an inch of rain to Toronto in a little more than half an hour The storm is reported to have been local, with scattered showers throughout southwestern Ontario.

Hollywood, June 28 — (AP) — Danish-born actress Osa Massen is changing her name after eight years as a feature film player because, she says, people confuse her with actresses Ona Munson and Ilona Massey. She said she will seek court approval of the name of Stephanie Paull which she already has adopted professionally.

200 Houses Down In City of Fukui, Ishikawa Aflame

Buildings Sway in Tokyo; No Report of Tidal Wave

By RUSSELL BRINES

Tokyo, June 28. (AP)—Three heavy earthquakes followed by fire wrecked the western Honshu City of Fukui late today.

Japanese newspapers guessed the total of dead and injured might reach 5,000, but United States occupation authorities said first reports had proved excessive and declined to make an estimate.

The only known casualty figures were 10 dead and 60 injured at Daishoji, coastal village 20 miles northeast of Fukui.

"It is apparently not as bad as we thought it was," said Brig. Gen. Crawford Sams, head of the Occupation Army's Health and Welfare section. "Damage appears to be pretty well localized.

No Tidal Wave Reported

Col. C. C. Carter, adjutant general of the First Corps told the Associated Press there were no indications of any tidal wave.

Japanese had earlier expressed fears there might be such waves as they often follow coastal earthquakes.

Fukui, a city of about 85,000 population, is 200 miles west of Tokyo and 10 miles from the Sea of Japan.

It was 85 per cent destroyed by United States Superfortresses in July, 1945, but since had been largely rebuilt.

The epicentre of the earth shocks appeared to be in Fukui. Tokyo and Osaka, the latter 160 miles southeast of the scene, felt the shocks but reported no damage, and there were no disaster reports from points outside the immediate Fukui vicinity.

The first shock hit Fukui at 4:12 p.m. (1:12 a.m. E.D.T.) It was followed by two others, with fire resulting almost at once.

200 Houses Collapse

Original reports said 900 houses collapsed in the first shock, but this later was scaled down by the army to about 200.

A fully-equipped United States army relief train was rushed to Fukui, coastal city fronting the Sea of Japan.

Tidal wave warnings were issued. Japanese, remembering the 44,000 who died in the Zqowe Tokyo quake, were jittery.

The heaviest damage appeared to be in three prefectures, Fukui, Ishikawa and Toyama.

Buildings in Tokyo Sway

Buildings in Tokyo — several hundred miles to the northeast — swayed and the quakes were felt at Navoya, Kibe, Osaka and Kyoto.

(Honolulu reported a sharp earthquake there.)

The Osaka meteorological service said the first of the three temblors struck at 4:12 p.m. Other reports placed the number of temblors at four.

In Fukui, Asahi said 90 per cent of the town's buildings had collapsed. One seven-storey concrete department store fell in, the newspaper said.

Reports to the United States army here said that Kanazawa, another west coast city, with a population of 186,000, was aflame.

Story of Siam King's Death May Be Told at Next Month's Murder Trial

Bankok, Siam, June 28—(Reuters) — The inside story of the death of 21-year-old King Ananda Mahidol in his bedroom at the royal palace here two years ago may be revealed when the trial of the late king's secretary, Nai Chaleo Pratumrot, on charges of murder, opens next month.

With Nai Chaleo Pratumrot in the dock will appear two other officials of the Siamese royal household, charged with complicity in the murder.

Secrecy is being maintained regarding the findings of a special investigation committee which for nearly six months has been collecting evidence on the circumstances of the king's death.

This committee, headed by the chief of the Siamese criminal police, has just returned here from Lausanne in Switzerland, with a 100-page statement by King Phumiphon Aduledej, Anada Mahidol's brother, who succeeded to the throne two years ago.

The officials are also said to have obtained "important evidence" from the late king's mother and members of the royal suite at Lausanne.

Maj.-Gen. Phra Phinit Jonagadi, chairman of the committee, said that evidence gathered from members of the royal family at Lausanne "confirmed what were hitherto mere conjectures" regarding the king's death.

The investigators said the king was the victim of an assassin's bullets. They suspect a large-scale conspiracy, involving some of the leading personalities in the kingdom.

While the committee declined to divulge further information, a high authority quoted the investigator's report as listing Pidi Panomyong, ex-prime minister and elder statesman, among those who had "a hand in the king's death."

UNDERCURRENT SPILLS FISHING BOAT, FIVE DROWN

Son of One of the Victims Able to Swim Ashore After Being Tossed Out

Sirdar, B.C., June 28 (CP) — The violence of an undercurrent which sucked five carefree fishermen to their deaths in the waters of Kootenay Lake meant survival for the 12-year-old son of one of the victims.

The survivor, Eagar Hornseth of Sirdar, was thrown from the wildly-spinning outboard motorboat when the undercurrent caught it, and was able to swim to shore.

His father, Henry Hornseth, 36, was pulled beneath the water with his companions, identified as Art Rowsell, 36, his son Gordon, 11, both of Kimberley; John Kollman, 10, of Sirdar, and his playmate Buddy Annable, 10, of nearby Tye.

Sirdar is 35 miles southeast of Nelson, in the Kootenay district of British Columbia. Two drownings occurred near here.

Young Hornseth said the motorboat's occupants re-started its motor when the boat was 1,000 feet offshore. At this the boat trapped in the powerful undercurrent, began swinging crazily. He was thrown clean out as it continued to spin and finally capsized.

The survivor said the party tried to right he boat three times when the undercurrent was first felt. But the youngsters became panicky and caused the boat to upset again. The men and boys aboard were sucked beneath the surface one by one.

Henry Hornseth, who lost a small daughter last December in the same waters, is survived by his widow and two children.

The tragedy proved doubly poignant for Mr. Rowsell's widow and two daughters. They were visiting Sirdar on holiday. They had lost their home at Kimberley during the disastrous spring floods which sent Mark Creek on a rampage of destruction.

Dr. A. E. Best Advises Measures To Prevent Spreading of Diseases During Months of Summer

Precautionary measures to be taken to prevent the spread of diseases which are common during the hot summer months were outlined to a radio audience Friday evening by Dr. A. E. Best, director of the Prince Edward County Health Unit as he spoke over station CJBQ.

The director of health will speak every second Friday evening on associated topics, particularly emphasizing the precautions which must be taken to protect small children against the spread of summer diseases.

With summer holidays just ahead and with many persons thus incurring risks which would not be faced in the home, Dr. Best urged that a few simple rules be observed which would do much to preserve the health of both adults and children.

Warning was given against the use of unboiled or unchlorinated water, either for drinking or for household purposes, while bathers were warned against bathing in water that may be infected by raw sewage.

Raw fruit and vegetables should be placed in boiling water for at least one minute before being used.

The doctor pointed out that summer was a particularly dangerous time for small children with infantile paralysis being the most dangerous. Other diseases prevalent during the summer were dysentry, summer diarrhoea and typhoid fever.

All these diseases were spread by carriers. The bacteria or virus as contained in feces, or human excreta, is transferred to the mouth by flies, food or fingers and is duly swallowed by the unspecting victims. Whether or not water is frese from bacteria can be determined only by laboratory. Boiling o fwater or aodequate chlorination will make water safe.

Kiwanis Club Starts Celebrating 25th Anniversary

Residents generally had a good time on Saturday afternoon and evening picking out the western hats worn by certain Kiwanians, which secured for them a case of Coca-Cola. One hat was not identified. This little stunt has been put on to remind the citizens that the Belleville Kiwanis Club for the first three days of the week are celebrating their 25th. anniversary and there will be something doing every minute of the time.

On Tuesday there will be the weekly luncheon and Rev. "Bill" Johnson of Toronto, who has spoken in this city many times will be the speaker for the occasion. It is expected that members of Kiwanis clubs throughout the district will be present to wish their fellow clubmen lots of luck in the years to come. In the afternoon a bowling tournament will be held at the local greens and in the evening a "stag" will be held at Tobes with floor show arranged by Bill Garden. Wednesday afternoon will be "Sports Day" at Roblin Lake and in the evening the women will participate in the celebration with a party at Tobes in Prince Edward County. There will also be a floor show given on this occasion along with the dance.

Those winning the case of Coca-Cola on Saturday were Miss Doris Ferguson, 143 West Moira Street; Frank Sparks, city foreman, and Mrs. James Taylor, Foster Avenue. The hats to be sought out on Tuesday are from Texarcana, Texas; Las Vegas, Nevada; Great Falls, Montana, and Santa Rose, Texas, while those for Wednesday selected are from Laramie, Wyoming; Billings, Montana; Sherman, Texas, and Oklahoma City, Oklahoma.

New Brunswickers Troop to Polls To Elect Govt.

Fredericton, June 28. (CP)— New Brunswickers trooped to the polls today to elect the province's 20th and largest legislature.

Polling was from 8 a.m. to 6 p.m. E.D.T.

Only 47 of the 52 seats in the new legislature remained to be settled by the voters today. Five Liberals were elected by acclamation in Gloucester County when nominations closed June 24.

The new 52-seat House, brought about by a partial redistribution which added four seats, gave the province its largest legislature since Confederation.

Liberal forces under Premier John B. McNair were opposed by 40 Progressive Conservatives under Hugh Mackay, 20 C.C.F. standard-bearers under Joseph Arrowsmith, eight independents and five Social Creditors.

At dissolution May 18 standing in the 48-seat House was: Liberals 36, Progressive Conservatve 11, Independent 1.

The Conservatives women 12 seats in 1944 election but later dropped one to an Independent in a by-election. The Independent —E. Claude Seeley—sought reelection today in Saint John County.

Campaigning for today's battle of the polls was mild.

Most candidates relied on newspaper advertisements and radio broadcasts to carry their message. A break occurred Saturday when a plane droned over Saint John in a sunny sky dropping campaign leaflets.

Both Premier McNair and Mr. Mackay were fighting their second campaigns as leaders of their respective parties. Mr. McNair took over the premiership following the resignaton of A. A. Dysart in 1940 and fought his first campaign four years later.

Mr. Mackay appeared as Progressive Conservative leader in the same election.

Mr. Arrowsmith, although no political babe in the woods, was making his first appearance as party leader. He contested a seat in the 1939 provincial election to be the first candidate to run under the C.C.F. banner in the Maritimes.

Mercer Quiet After Outbreak Over Weekend

Toronto, June 28 (CP) — All was quiet at the Mercer Reformatory today, women prisoners resting their pitching arms after a weekend outburst during which they heaved bricks through bars at male guards.

The rebellious women, staging their second assault in two days dislodged bricks from their cells and took aim at dodging guards. The attack petered out Saturday night when no more bricks were available.

To relieve the score of city police officers stationed at the reformatory since the women rioted for 90 minutes last Friday morning, eight male guards from Guelph an five from Mimico proved elusive targets for the brick heavers.

Twenty ringleaders of the 70 women who attacked police Friday with baseball bats and chair legs, were held responsible for the brick-throwing episode. Police considered removing them to Don jail but superintendent Jean Milne said she preferred that they remain at Mercer.

Most of the women have volunteered to return to their regular chores but others continue to throw back their food when it is brought to their cells. Either out of breath or repetant, they have quit shreiking and banging on their bars.

Reorganization Of Deaf School In City Urged

Ottawa, June 28 — (CP)—The Ontario Association of the Deaf today urged reorganization of the Ontario School of the Deaf at Belleville.

A resolution passed at the Association Convention said the school authorities have claimed it is approved by the Conference of Executives of American Schools for the Deaf.

"It is well known that the great majority of such public residential schools in North America are operated on the combined - system with deaf teachers as valuable ad vital members of the school staff."

Therefore, the school should be reorganized "in order to become worthy of its membership on the distinguished conference through use of the combined system."

Another resolution urged "intelligent use of the manual languages in the religious development of all deaf children."

It said there has been evidence "of the most undesirable results in mentality and morals arising from the lack of proper means of religious instruction to the children at the Belleville school."

Reports from S. E. Europe

(Edward Kardelj is vice-premier of Yugoslavia, Molovan Djilas is minister for Montenegro, one of the Yugoslav states, and Lt. - Gen. Alexander Rankovic is minister of the interior.

The second paragraph of the resolution charged Yugoslavia with a hateful policy toward Russia and said Soviet representatives were mistreated in Yugoslavia.

The text of the second paragraph:

"The cominform finds out that the leadership of the Yugoslav communist party creates a hateful policy in relation to Soviet Russia and to all-communist union of Bolsheviks. In Yugoslavia an undignified policy of underestimating Soviet military specialists was allowed. Also members of the Soviet arms were discredited . . ."

On Saturday the London diplomatic correspondent of the Manchester Guardian wrote that reports from Southeastern Europe "strongly suggest that a serious political crisis has arisen in Yugoslavia." Qualified foreign office sources were inclined at the time to place some credence in the report.

"Marshal Tito's relations with Moscow," the paper said, "are believed to be strained, largely because of conflicting views on relations with the west. Even the question of Tito's whereabouts is being discussed.

Business Spotlight

(By The Canadian Press)

Current indications are that the next six months will test the foundations upon which world economy is operating now, and from the developments of the remainder of the year may come the headlines of the future.

In wartime the world operated under conditions and controls which by-passed normal economic laws, and these carry over into peace even if in diminishing degree.

The problem has been to ease out these without major upset, and also to consolidate certain social standards — a hopeful objective in a difficult situation.

The economy on which the world is operating was at the point of collapse, but is being held up by further props, mainly credits and aid from the productive forces of North America.

These props can be maintained for only a limited period, and if in the meantime the world economy is unable to send down natural roots to take their place, a fall or crash can ensure.

A point in question is at what level the world is capable of operating. If it is capable of establishing the present level on a sound basis, it is getting a chance to do so, but a chance with time-limits.

Britain's problem is an illustration. She is increasing production, but also increasing imports; the more she gets for exports, the more she has to pay for raw materials to go into the making of the exports. She is in a touch-and-go contest.

It is true that the European recovery program is barely under way and it is too early to judge what it may accomplish. To date, however, there seems to be some concern that the European economy is not showing sufficient signs of responding to its spark. The next six months will be a vital testing period.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Rollins, of Belleville, and Mr. and Mrs. Cathro, of Vancouver, B.C., attended Memorial services on Sunday morning.

Miss Mavis McGuire, of Toronto, is holidaying at the home of her parents, Inspector A. W. and Mrs. McGuire.

Mrs. John Sager attended a recital given in George Street United Church, Peterborough on Friday evening, June 25 by the pupils of Mr. Chas. E. Allen. Among those taking part were Harry and Betty Jane Rath of Lakefield, formerly of Tweed, and Betty Jane Goldie of Peterborough.

Gang of Bookie Robbers Shoot Two Policemen

Chicago, June 28 — (AP) — Five machine-gun bandits who held up an alleged gambling and handbook spot Saturday and shot two policemen in a running gun-battle appeared today to have eluded the biggest man-trap in Cook county history.

Police believe the gunmen slipped out of a ring of 200 officers on a freight train after they had been surrounded in a nearby stone quarry.

Treasury agents and police said they might have found some tell-tale evidence, however, in guns, ammunition and the abandoned bandits' automobile.

About $1,000, bulk of the holdup loot, also was found.

Police were checking the weapons and car for fingerprints. United States Treasury agents were racing serial numbers on the guns, a carbine, three .45 calibre pistols, a shotgun and a sub-machine gun.

The chase began as the gunmen left the holdup scene. A child who said she saw the men shoot a lock off the door, informed a nearby filling station operator who called police.

Sgt. Charles Petersen, 43, of suburban Western Springs police arrived as the bandits emerged from the building. As he stepped from the car he was felled by two bullets in the abdomen.

Petersen crawled back into his car and radioed an alarm. Lt. Joseph Clegg and other suburban LaGrange police took up the chase. They engaged the fleeing car in a gun-battle during which Clegg was slightly wounded in an arm.

The fugitives sped to the quarry and surrounding swampland where they abandoned the car.

A crew member of the passing freight train said he saw three men board it near the quarry about the time the search began. He added that they jumped off, probably with some injury to themselves, in Blue Island.

NATIONAL

M.J. Coldwell, C.C.F. leader, doubted that Ottawa's site was surpassed by that of any other capital in the world. He regretted that planning had not been carried out years ago because the city was poorly laid out, vulnerable to traffic congestion and beset with such things as "antiquated street cars."

It should be remembered, however that there were other things that should come first, such as a Trans-Canada highway. This required Federal aid.

Housing was still a serious matter throughout the Dominion. Ottawa itself had "slum areas in the modern sense of the word."

It was a disgrace that Ottawa had no cultural centre. There was no legitimate theatre, no "decent" opera, no "decent" symphony orchestra. It was a "disgrace" that this situation should prevail 80 years after Ottawa became the capital.

Jean Richard (L-Ottawa East) said he believes all parties agree on the principals of the plan. But he regretted that so many members were hazy on the details.

John Blackmore (SC-Lethbridge) lauded Ottawa's growth over its 80 years. Its beautiful trees made it "one magnificent park."

Mr. King's "admirable speech" would be read with satisfaction 100 years from now. Mr. Blackmore foresaw the day when Canada would be the centre of the British Commonwealth.

R. R. Knight (C.C.F.-Saskatoon City) assailed the commercial signs which blemished the approaches and the city itself. Sensational and glaring posters sometimes took up the whole sides of buildings.

The first step in developing Ottawa should be elimination of "screaming signboards" and "juke-joints."

John Bracken, Progressive Conservative leader, asked where the plan was and what it was. Parliament could hardly vote money for a plan it knew nothing about.

GOVT. ADVISES

The union was built up by Foreign Secretary Bevin. His successor as general-secretary Arthur Deakin, has been under fire for his handling of the strike but many observers think that even Bevin — who won the title of the "Dockers' K.C.," for fighting their battles for improved conditions — would have difficulty in handling the situation.

Crisis in 1926

The last previous state of emergency was proclaimed in Britain during the general strike in 1926.

The current strike held up the unloading of 160 ships at the Port of London and about 50 more at Liverpool.

The government, which had used not more than 300 troops to move perishable food supplies from strike-bound ships, had 6,000 service personnel on call today.

The emergency regulations asked for by the government are like those of war days. They permit the government to conscript and direct labor at will. But the government must proclaim that a state of emergency exists. Under the regulations, all registered workers are subject to emergency regulation.

The Labor government several times before has used troops to move strike-bound supplies; never since it came to power in 1945 has it asked for emergency powers to deal with a labor dispute.

Attlee told the Commons all perishable cargoes had been cleared from ships in the London docks and that troops are now being used to handle meat shipments. Other food cargoes in port will have to be moved to avoid a breakdown in deliveries of other foodstuffs, he said.

Soviet Tactics

Soviet tactics in East Germany run along the pattern of Russian steps since the close of the war. The Russians have been making an effort to weary the Western Allies so that they will leave Berlin but the British Foreign Office has said that the British will remain in the former German capital. For months there has been no progress in the negotiations of the Four Powers Council in Berlin as Russians have indicated lack of co-operation and the evident desire to try to force the Allies out of the city of Berlin.

The Foreign Office has clearly declared that the Soviet effort is to gain political advantage at the expense of the West by preventing food reaching the city, thus affecting the millions of the city's population.

In the words of the Foreign Office statement, "the opinion of the whole world will condemn this ruthless attempt of the Soviet Government to create a state of siege in Berlin and so by starving the helpless civilian population, to secure political advantages at the expense of the other Allied Powers."

Poison Ivy Time

With the coming of picnic time which often takes holidayers and picnickers into contact with poison ivy, it is well to be able to recognize this plant. The Dominion Department of Agriculture in its farm news describes the plant and what to do for its eradication.

Poison ivy generally grows as a trailing vine or as a number of plants forming patches of various thickness and size, but it may also climb a tree or telegraph pole for a considerable height.

Its leaves are arranged alternately on the woody stem with each leaf bearing three leaflets, which may vary in size, shape, color or in outline but which will always be in threes. Clusters of greenish-yellow fruits about the size of peas develop on poison ivy in some locations, and these fruits gradually turn white. Poison ivy is the only common plant in Canada having trifoliate leaves and white fruit.

The rash which can prove so distressing to many people is caused by coming into contact with the non-volatile sticky substance which is on the plant. This substance may remain active on gloves, tools, shoes and picnic baskets for months. Dogs, cats, or even smoke from burning poison ivy can transmit the substance.

The best preventative measure is to learn to recognize poison ivy and not to picnic or sit near it. If poison ivy does come in contact with the skin, wash immediately with laundry soap, preferably in warm water. Washing with alcohol, kerosene or gasoline would be of some value if soap and water are not available. Small patches or isolated plants in gardens or around summer cottages can best be removed by digging them out, but as the plant has an extensive root system, thoroughness is essential. Gloves and clothing should be worn which can be thoroughly washed or dry cleaned. More extensive infestations, when not among plants or shrubs which might also be killed are best treated with chemicals. Such chemical methods are outlined in a pamphlet, Poison Ivy and It's Eradication, which may be obtained from the Dominion Department of Agriculture.

Forced Savings Repayments

Recently it was reported that a large number of compulsory savings refunds have not been reclaimed. Some months ago many thousands of persons received their first repayment. There have been many changes of addresses of course, some taxpayers may have moved away to another section of the country and some have died. Others may have forgotten or misunderstood about the repayment.

Anyway there are many unclaimed repayments, and the Department has been unable to find these people at their old addresses. The authorities are anxious to get this money to the persons who are entitled to it. Some of the amounts may not be large but they are such that the owners would not care to miss being repaid. Yet if they left their old addresses and forgot about repayment or have not seen the notices which were sent out months ago, it is possible that a good number may not make an effort to get their cheques for these forced savings. Windsor Daily Star thinks it is possible some of the taxpayers have overlooked payments which were made under the payroll plan.

No doubt some have misunderstood or forgotten about the repayment of this money, though they must have received receipts from the Department for the money paid in as compulsory savings.

Crop Conditions

The weather during the greater part of May was cool and spring seeded crops in Ontario tended to develop slowly. Frequent rains from May 5th to 15th delayed the completion of seeding of spring grains, but dry weather at the end of the month and during the early part of June was favorable for land operations with the result that the seeding and planting of all late crops was practically completed between June 5th and 10th. With recent rains throughout Old Ontario and higher temperatures all crops are developing rapidly, and crop prospects for 1948 are considerably very good indeed. In Eastern Ontario the outlook is especially promising. Seeding operations were completed in good time throughout Northern Ontario this season, and early development has been very satisfactory to date. However, rain was badly needed at the middle of June in that portion of the Province to ensure the continued growth of all crops.

Corn for husking is being planted on an increased acreage over a considerably wider area of the Province than was the case a few years ago. Other crops showing increased acreages are soy beans, flax, fall wheat, fall rye, spring grains, and vegetable crops, while tobacco, sugar beets, corn for ensilage and buckwheat are expected to show a reduction.

Pastures are generally in good condition and milk flow is nearing its peak for the season. Farmers are showing increased interest in pasture management. The number of dairy cows has been reduced somewhat, particularly in Eastern Ontario, by continuing heavy sales to the United States at good prices.

There was very little winter killing of hay and clover crops and although early growth was rather slowed up by cold winds, the weather during the past two weeks has been favorable and prospects are for average to above average yields in most counties. A few farmers commenced haying in different parts of the Province during the second week of June and in most areas this operation will be under way by June 21st. Requests for Western farm hands who come to assist in the harvest are considerably in excess of the potential supply and the shortage of farm help during the next several months is expected to prove rather acute.

Fall wheat and fall rye show heavy stands on most fields and give indications of average to above average yields. The possibility of lodging is feared. These crops are now coming out in head.

Most fruit crops have set satisfactory and vegetable crops are now making good development with recent supplies of moisture and higher temperatures providing the required conditions for an accelerated growth. The transplanting of tomatoes and flue-cured tobacco is practically completed and good progress has been made with the transplanting of burley and dark tobaccos. Prospects at the present time are considered excellent for these crops.

The world does not require so much to be informed as reminded. — Hannah More.

YOU NEVER CAN TELL

What the future may hold ere we come to life's end,
You never can tell.
Will the stranger we meet soon become a good friend?
You never can tell.
Life's stream flows along and the years slip away.
Will someone remember your favor
today
And kindness with kindness come back to repay?
You never can tell.

What we leave in our paths as we walk through the town,
You never can tell.
The final effect of a smile or a frown,
You never can tell.
We think the day done with the coming of night,
But the end of our toiling is never in sight.
Man's career may be changed by an incident slight.
You never can tell.

What others are thinking of us as we leave,
You never can tell.
Who will come to the door when in sorrow we grieve,
You never can tell.
This life seems a maze through which blindly we go.
What the future may hold there is no way to know.
Who'll be first to assist when our courage runs low,
You never can tell.

Filipino Film Star Confesses To Two Slayings

Manila, June 28 — (AP) — Authorities said today a Filipino film star has confessed to the knife-slaying of his beautiful dark-haired leading lady, Lilian Velez, and her maid.

City Attorney Jose Fernandez said that Narding Anzures, 21-year-old hero of several of Miss Velez' screen thrillers, admitted plunging a hunting knife into her while they sat in her home in suburban Quezon City early Sunday.

The actress' four-year-old daughter, Vivian, told police earlier she had peeked through a crack in her bedroom door and had seen the slaying. Police said the tot named Anzures, a close friend of the family, as the slayer.

Fernandez said he expected to file charges against the actor later today. He quoted Anzures as saying:

"I did it. I don't know what happened or how. I was under a spell. I do funny things sometimes and everything goes blank."

Miss Velez, husband, Jose Climaco, a night club entertainer and manager, said he knew of no motive for the slaying. Fernandez said Anzures told him: "I've been there (the actress' home) on many occasions.

Fernandez said Anzures told of stabbing the maid — 17-year-old Pacita — when she attempted to stop him from leaving the house.

Questioning of Anzures at the Quezon police station was witnessed by a group of reporters and broadcast over the government radio station KZFM.

STRENGTH FOR THE DAY

By EARL L.
DOUGLASS, D.D.

IDOL WORSHIP PERSISTS

We read in the first chapter of Genesis that God made man in his own image and after his likeness.

It is interesting to note, however, that through the succeeding ages man has been creating God after his image. In other words, men unconsciously fashion God after their own ideas of what is right or desirable.

In a play which appeared some years ago, a character who had never prayed finds himself in great peril, and he offers up a prayer something like this: "Oh God, I never prayed before and I don't know how, but keep me safe here and I will be a better man. I'll get that Spring Valley church fixed up, the one's that's falling down. I can do a lot for you, God, if you let me live." This reminds one of the man who admitted that he was not a church member but declared that he intended to join one soon because his health wasn't so good as it used to be.

Let us stop worshipping a false conception of God, which we have created after the image of our own miserable little distortions. Let us open the Bible and observe the kind of Being God really is. He made us in his image and toward that perfect image we are expected progressively to grow.

VERBAL SLUGFEST

Mr. Flemming moved that the report be referred back to the committee with five alternative recommendations. These were suggestions that the committee conclude that the high cost of living results from inflationary government policies and recommended that the government consider removing all the austerity excise taxes, exempting family budget items from sales and excise taecs and reducing income taxes.

The motion was ruled out of order on the ground the Commons could not instruct a committee to bring in specific recommendations. Progressive Conservative members challenged the ruling but Deputy Speaker Ross Macdonald was upheld by a vote of 96 to 26.

Mr. Irvine then moved that the report be referred back to committee. His amendment urged that the committee be empowered to recommend immediate imposition of a substantial tax on excess profits, restroation of a comprehensive system of price controls and introduction of subsidies wherever necessary.

It was ruled out of order on the same grounds but the ruling went uncontested.

Went Home Early

Mr. Maybank, vice-chairman of the committee, said Mr. Fleming had voted against the committee's recommendations, including the one urging removal of excise taxes. He said that Mr. Merritt, the other Progressive Conservative member on the committee, went home before the report was adopted by the committee.

The Progressive Conservative policy is clear, said Mr. Maybank. That party recognized that the labor market now is "tight." It wanted establishment of a labor pool. If such a pool was established then labor would be cheaper and costs would go down.

Mr. Fleming said the government had used the Prices Committee for political purposes.

Mr. Merritt termed the recommendations "ashcan" suggestions in that they obviously could be thrown away once parliament has prorogued. They represented the views of the government rather than those of the committee.

FREE DRUGS FOR THE AUSSIES

The Australian government launched a free medicine plan June 1, despite fierce opposition by physicians who declared they would boycott it.

Free medicine is not to be confused with state or social medicine.

Under the Australian plan medicines prescribed by physicians will be dispensed to the patient by the druggist (or do they call him "chemist" in Australia as they do in England?) but free—the government will pay for the medicines.

Everybody, rich and poor, is entitled to medicine free—the government pats the customer on the back, assures him or her heartily that there's no charge, don't worry about it, just hurry up and get well — and just around the corner from the drugstore a tax collector lurks, ready to bean the sap or sap the bean and collect enough tax money from the bewildered customer to keep the free medicine game going.

This government gravy looks wonderful from here in America. Not to the British Medical Association—the BMA advised its members in Australia to boycott the plan. For one thing the plan requires doctors to write prescriptions in duplicate on government forms — which, aside from the bureaucratic nuisance involved, means invasion of the privacy that has always heretofore been maintained and recognized as inviolable by government and the law. Such trifling matters of dignity and freedom do not greatly concern people who are willing to trade their independence for a dole from government. The British Medical Association objected to the plan on the further ground that certain medicines are excluded specifically from the list of medicine which can be supplied free. You see what I mean, children? The Australian plan carefully leaves the way open for imposing restrictions here and special requirements there, from time to time, until eventually the government will be practising medicine and the doctors will be well disciplined clerks.

This recommendation of the British Medical Association nettles the politicians at present in the saddle in Australia. They snort at the boycott with this devastating reply:

"The real objection of the medical association is fear that if the free medicine plan succeeds the government will nationalize doctors."

From what physicians and laymen tell us of the way the panel system works in England it would not seem very likely that even this free (with reservations) medicine will last long in Australia, to say nothing of nationalizing the medical profession — that is, unless the general I.Q. in the continent down under is lower than we think.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Shortberry Strawcake Time

Whole wheat shortcake instead of white flour shortcake — the other day a nice kind lady whipped up a strawberry shortcake made with whole wheat (freshly ground and nothing removed). It was the most delicious I have ever eaten — and I'm a connoisseur. I mention the whole wheat shortcake here because it may serve as the entering wedge in educating the family taste to plain wheat in the everyday dietary. To help this reform along I have a pamphlet Wheat to Eat which contains numerous suggestions for the use of plain wheat as a staple. For a copy send stamped self addressed envelope. But no clipping, please.

Supplementing the Growing Child's Diet

I know you advocate supplementing the diet of growing boys and girls with B1, B2, D, calcium, phosphorus and iodine, but what is the most practicable and least expensive way to insure enough of theme to maintain good nutritional condition and health. (A. L. A.)

Answer—Intelligent supervision of the everyday diet will insure adequate intake of these and all other essential nutritional factors. But this requires constant vigilance and discipline — more than most parents can provide. The next best way is described in the booklet V-I-T-E Spells Youth — for copy send twenty-five cents and stamped self addressed envelope.

Radiculitis

Recently heard the term "radiculitis" applied to some complaint — please explain what it means, if there is such a condition. (D.K.)

Answer — Radicle or radicula means root; the suffix-itis means inflammation. Inflammation of the root of a spinal nerve, most frequently sensory roots, as in "shingles", intercostal (between the ribs) neuritis or neuralgia, etc.

List of Domestic Problems Held Limelight During Fourth Session of 20th Parliament

By D'ARCY O'DONNELL
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, Jan. 28 (CP) — A lengthy list of domestic problems held the limelight during the fourth session of Canada's 20th parliament.

In six months of work, the members handled few measures of an international character. But they did hear External Affairs Minister St. Laurent make what many described as Canada's most forthright statement on foreign policy.

He committed this country to active partnership in any "collective security league" which the United States and the other form as a bulwark against war and the tide of Communist expansion.

While members were unanimous in denouncing the activities of Communists, they failed to agree a private member's bill that would have outlawed the Communist party in Canada.

While declining to accept the measure, the government did announce that no Communist or Fascist will be allowed to hold positions of trust in the civil service.

Dissatisfaction among Maritime and Western members was widespread after the government authorized a 21 per cent increase in freight rates in March. British Columbia threatened to break with the government when it was faced with a non-confidence motion as a result of the issue.

Swung Supporters In Line

However, Prime Minister Mackenzie King called a party caucus and swung wavering supporters into line.

In recent weeks, Ontario, Quebec and some Manitoba Liberals openly expressed their dissatisfaction with the government's taxation policies.

The protests arose from Finance Minister Abbott's anti-inflationary budget, which contained no major tax reductions. He lopped about $62,000,000 off the taxpayers' bills, but the reductions were spread thinly.

Mr. Abbott reported a surplus of $670,000,000 for the 1947-48 fiscal year and said he is budgeting for a surplus of $489,000,000 this year.

The government deliberately decided against major tax reductions so as not to increase the pressure of inflation.

Lose Three Elections

The protests against the government policies were not confined to the Commons. Elections in the constituencies of Yale, B.C., Ontario and Vancouver Centre elected three C.C.F. members in by-elections.

Mr. King, to retire after the party chooses a new leader at a convention in August, said the C.C.F. victories reflected the "inevitable dislike felt by persons of all classes for high living and costs and privations and restrictions of any kind."

The prime minister sponsored the establishment of a committee to investigate reasons for the high cost of living, but it was conceded by most members that the body would do little to reduce prices.

Mr. Abbott successfully piloted measures aimed at stopping the drain on reserves of United States dollars.

By a vote of 102 to 92, members approved a bill authorizing the government to make use of import restrictions. The opposition objected to the measure because it applied the restrictions against the sterling area as well as against the United States.

Extend Rent Controls

The members agreed to extend until March 31, 1949, the government's power to control domestic rents and to keep under price ceilings the few commodities still scarce.

They adopted a nationaal labor code, aimed at laying the groundwork for uniform cross-country labor legislation. The code now applies to industries under federal jurisdiction such as railways, communications, radio and shipping.

Brightest features in the health field was Mr. King's announcement that the government will distribute $30,000,000 among the provinces to enable them to improve their health services.

Housing remained one of the top domestic problems, but Trade Minister Howe announced a rental insurance program aimed at assuring builders a fair return on homes built for rent. He said 77,000 homes were completed in 1947 and it is expected as many will be completed this year.

Ilsley To Retire

Justice Minister Ilsley, who announced early in June that he would retire from the cabinet at the end of this month to return to private law practice in Montreal, sponsored several important measures.

One tightened Criminal Code sections dealing with sex criminals. Others provided for recodification of the Criminal Code and the revision of the statutes.

For the third year in succession, the Senate rejected the efforts of Senator W. D. Euler (L.—Ontario) to lift the ban on importation, sale and manufacture of margarine.

In the Commons, James Sinclair (L.-Vancouver North) sponsored a bill that would have abolished the ban. It failed to make any headway in the time devoted to private measures.

WEDDINGS

FOLLWELL—WILSON

Attended by many out-of-town guests, the marriage of Lois Margaret, only daughter of Mrs. Wilson and the late Rev. Robert James Wilson, Hamilton, to Mr. James Herbert Follwell, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Edwin John Follwell, Belleville, took place on Saturday at the bride's home in Islington. Rev. C. L. Cowan, D.D., of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, Hamilton, officiated. Tall standards filled with larkspur and gladioli formed the setting.

Given in marriage by her uncle, Mr. John E. Lee, the bride wore a graceful full-skirted gown of white parchment faille made with tight bodice, cap sleeves and heart-shaped neckline. Her heirloom illusion tulle veil was held with a circlet of orange blossoms. She carried a cascade bouquet of gardenias and gladioli florettes.

Miss Laura Dorsey, Hamilton, was the bride's only attendant, as maid of honor, in sea-foam green faille with square neckline tucked bodice and bouffant skirt. Her half-hat was of blending faille and she carried an arm bouquet of yellow roses and mauve sweetpeas.

Mr. Frank S. Follwell, Belleville, was the groomsman for his brother with Mr. E. E. Follwell, Belleville and Mr. Herbert Schmalz, Kitchener, as ushers.

At the reception in the garden, the bride's mother received in a gown of pale blue silk with softly pleated drapery and navy Milan straw hat. Her wristlet was composed of shell-pink sweetpeas and forget-me-nots. The groom's sister, Mrs. A. S. Duffield, who assisted, wore aqua crepe with bead trim, large straw hat and natural colored accessories.

Going away on a motor trip, the bride wore a two-piece ensemble consisting of a brown and white silk dress, crisp white linen jacket and alligator accessories. A gardenia corsage completed her costume.

The couple will live on Kipling Avenue in Islington, Ont.

ANDREWS—WHITFIELD

Cannifton United Church was the scene of a very pretty wedding on Wednesday, June 23, when Constance Mary, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. Whitfield, became the bride of Donald Wellington Andrews, only son of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Andrews, of Belleville, before a background of Summer garden flowers, with Rev. J. R. Trumpour officiating and Mr. Dorland Houston, of Belleville, providing the wedding music.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was charmingly gowned in white slipper satin, with hooped skirt, the hem accentuated with tiny lace ruffles and satin bows. Net, and lace inserts trimmed with seed pearls featured the neckline of the bodice. Her floor length veil of white tulle fell from a coronet of white roses, and she carried a bouquet of deep red roses and baby breath.

The bridesmaids were Mrs. Margaret Harmer and Mrs. Jean Hryszak, wearing similar gowns of pink and blue sheer, with shirred bodices, featuring cap sleeves and draped bands, and very full skirts. They carried bouquets of pink and white carnations.

The flower girls were Ellen Vincent and Gail Walker, similarly frocked in pink and blue crepe and carrying nosegays of roses.

Mr. Jim Mills, of Belleville, was the groomsman.

Following the ceremony a small reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, when Mrs. Whitfield wore a suit of grey flannel with black and mauve accessories, and a corsage of red roses. The groom's mother also received, wearing a dress of floral silk jersey, with matching hat and accessories. Her corsage was of sweetpeas.

For a trip to Montreal, Que., the bride chose a gabardine suit in a canary yellow shade, with which she wore black accessories.

Mr. and Mrs. Andrews will reside in Belleville.

It is interesting to note that this marriage was consummated in the same building where the grandfather of the groom, Mr. A. W. Andrews, was born 75 years ago, for at that time his great-grandfather, Rev. Andrews, was the minister of the Cannifton charge, and the family lived in the basement of the church.

BROWN—RYAN

White and pink peonies effectively decorated the altar of the Church of St. Michael the Archangel, for the marriage on Saturday, June 19th., of Miss Josephine Ryan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Ryan, of Stirling, and Mr. Philip Elmer Brown, with Rev. Father Carley officiating. Wedding music was provided by Rev. Sister Mary Bibianna and Miss Genevieve Tracey was the soloist.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a floor length gown of white, featuring a bodice with net yoke and draped lace bertha with pearl clips, and a full skirt caught with bows to reveal the lace tiers of her hooped petticoat. Her fingertip embroidered veil fell gracefully from a coronet of orange blossoms and she carried a bouquet of red roses and bouvardia.

The bridesmaid, Miss Marguerite Garvin, was gowned in pale blue taffeta, fashioned with low neckline and draped waistline, with matching headdress and mittens. She carried a bouquet of yellow roses.

The flower girl was petite Linda Lockyer, wearing a frock of white organdy, and carrying a nosegay of sweetpeas, and the ringbearer was Master Johnnie Bonn.

Mr. Jack Doran ably performed the duties of groomsman.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at Lanthorne Inn, on the Trent Road, where dinner was served to approximately forty-five guests. Later Mr. and Mrs. Brown left by train for Toronto, Niagara Falls and points in the United States. On their return they will reside in Belleville.

Out-of-town guests were from Stirling, and Detroit, Mich.

Those "Wolves" Of the City Are Not So Funny

"All the wolves are not in the north woods 'cause most of them are in Belleville Blues", could be the title for a new song hit.

Front Street is alive with rampant romeos. During the spring a girl could go for a walk in comparative safety. The man looked upon her with dreamy eyes, intoxicated with the budding of the trees, the buzzing of the bees and the general influx of sweet smelling flowers. She was a delicate creature to be adored and cherished.

Something happened! The temperature rose! Some of the masculine population of the city have turned into—well not gentlemen. The hotter it gets, the hotter they get! If they could beat their chests they would. The law of the jungle has taken over. Tender sighs have been exchanged for short pants. In the heat of the day a woman would do well to stay behind locked doors.

At the stroke of 12.00 noon, the wolves emerge, ready for action. The approaches are no longer subtle. Just a straight forward "How about a ride to Picton honey?" or "Say didn't I see you in Toronto?" The more adventurous type suggest "a flying visit to Montreal." Shyer types confine their efforts to low whistles from behind half-shut doors, but the spirit is there!

A curfew in the middle of the day would certainly be novel, but when grandpa stands at the four corners and gives you a slow wink—it's high time!

Pupils Present Mrs. E. M. Veley With Wrist Watch

For the piano recital given in the B.C.I.V.S., auditorium by pupils of Mrs. E. M. Veley, R.M.T., on Friday evening, baskets of peonies, delphiniums and Sweet William blossoms were used to decorate the stage for the presentation of a varied program arranged by Mrs. Veley with the capable assistance of Mrs. Charles Scott. Guest artist on the program was Mr. Gordon Brown, violinist.

Approximately seventy-five pupils participated in the recital, with five-year-old Margaret Diane Currie and seven-year-old Edward Kilner being featured in the opening number as "bride and groom" to the strains of the "Bridal Chorus" from Lohengrin, and at the intermission after playing of "Thais", (J. Jassonot), by Mr. Gordon Brown, a large bouquet of red roses was presented to Mrs. Veley by Margaret Diane. Later in the program Mr. Brown contributed "Polish Dance", (Edmund Severn's arrangement), both solos by this artist receiving continued applause from the audience.

Prior to the closing number Mr. Robert Reid, read an address of appreciation to Mrs. Veley and Mary Catharine Clare made the presentation of a wrist watch on behalf of the entire class.

Ushering for this outstanding event was supervised by Miss Margaret Sullivan.

Islanders Turn Out to Decide Liquor Question

Charlottetown, June 28 (CP)—Cloudiness and high temperatures are forecast for Prince Edward Island today, but come rain or come shine a heavy percentage of 50,000 voters is expected to have a say in today's liquor plebiscite.

As a result of the vote, the provincial cabinet will proclaim either a prohibition law or a system of government control, known officially as the Temperance Act.

Polls will not open until 1 p.m. (A.S.T.) (1 p.m. E.D.T.) and will close at 9 p.m. to give farmers a chance to reach the 235 booths.

Since the plebiscite was announced last March, campaigning has been quiet and conducted mostly by prohibition workers. Almost the only public figure to speak up for the Temperance Act was Premier J. Walter Jones, who supported it in an address last week.

Until 1945, the island had a strict prohibition act. An amendment then made it legal for doctors to issue prescriptions, good for six months, entitling adults to one bottle of liquor or one case of beer each week.

If the government control system is approved today, this prescription method will be replaced by a straight rationing system, allowing each person the same amount.

In the three liquor plebiscites already held this century, prohibitionists have won out.

TWO IN HOSPITAL

Acadia Valley, Alta., June 28—(CP)— Two men went to hospital and Alex Kindret, 23, of Acadia Valley landed in jail early Saturday, following a shooting affray that made this central Alberta town recall wild west days.

Police said it started with a restaurant quarrel. Kindret, one of the participants, went home, returned with his shotgun, and started shooting up the main street.

While residents scurried for cover, police said Kindret plugged William Golinski in the foot and wounded Douglas Ferguson in the chest with splinters shot from his own front door.

Baptist Church Holds Special Reopening Service

The challenge of a task well done is a bigger task and a bigger opportunity, the Reverend H. O. Eastman told a large congregation Sunday morning in Victoria Ave. Baptist Church at a special reopening service. The auditorium had been closed for several weeks while undergoing extensive redecoration.

With the desire to beautify the church during this, the 75th anniversary year, and yet determined not to go into debt, the church had raised over $1,600. in a few weeks to permit painting of walls, ceilings and floor of the auditorium, as well as choir room, vestry, front and rear entrances. A luxurious, heavy pile carpet has been laid on the pulpit platform, and delivery of new carpet for the aisles is expected in the near future.

"Don't let us stop to think how well we have done," counselled the minister. "Who has given the ability to make this possible? It is not because we are so smart or that we are so wealthy; but the love of God has been in our hearts and given us the ability to beautify His sanctuary. To God goes the praise.

Humble in Praise

"The challenge of a task well done is that we may rejoice. I would rather worship in a barn than become too proud. We ought to be humble in praise and adoration of God. There is nothing so radiant as a radiantly thanksgiving people.

"There is also a challenge to a new sense of stewardship, to realize that we are His stewards, that our total personality, redeemed by the blood of Christ, belongs to Him. It is His right to say what I shall do with my money and my time.

"Our task so far is completed but the way is open ahead for greater tasks, the winning of more men and women for Christ in these dark days. We need zeal and consecration. No one ever accomplished anything by not being sure it could be done.

"Ezra had come back from captivity and rebuilt the temple at the command of God. But the children of Israel were in a pitiable condition because they had not accepted the challenge of a task well done. The walls of Jerusalem were broken and the gates burned with fire. Nehemiah accepted the challenge of the rebuilding of the city walls. He believed it could be done, in spite of opposition and ridicule. He believed that God was able."

Speaks of Great Work

Mr. Eastman spoke appreciatively of the great faith and untiring labor of Mr. Stanley May, chairman of the House Committee, who had directed the work, also Mr. F. H. Chesher for his assistance.

The choir, under the direction of Mr. A. H. Wynne, sang "How Lovely Are Thy Dwellings" and Mr. Wm. Colclough contributed a solo, "O Love That Wilt Not Let Me Go". Mr. Dorland Houston presided at the organ console. His offertory number "Evening Star" from Wagner's Tannhauser, was particularly lovely. The benediction was given by the Reverend Mr. Dingman of Napanee.

SOMETHING TO WORK ON

Toronto, June 26 (CP) —Grant M. Young, regional director of the prices board said Friday he was "well aware" retailers are forced to buy goods they don't want under threat of having supplies stopped.

Commenting on such reports, he said, the law calls for prosecution of those believed guilty, but retailers were afraid to testify lest wholesalers would refuse to supply them.

"But now we have something to work on," he said, "and we men to go after the wholesalers of whom complaints have been made."

Yu'An Hee See Laughs

By Sax Rohmer

Dawson Haig sat in the room of Jack Rattray, the chief officer, or rather, he sat at intervals, pacing up and down like a wild animal.

"It's a most unholy business," said Rattray, in his slow fashion. "I've been looking on, and I've seen things. First thing: you're spotted!...."

"I know!—and I can't read Oestler's messages! They're in a perfectly undecipherable code."

"Second thing," Rattray went on: "Two members of this slimy gang are watching Eileen; meaning Dr. O. and Mr. Chow. What for? She's not in their way, is she?"

Dawson turned, just inside the cabin door, and stared at the speaker. Then:

"You're right, Jack," he said. "I've seen them myself. I don't like it, and I don't understand it."

"But what's it all about?" Rattray asked helplessly. "What are all these birds doing on board? They're a pretty unsavory crew, in my reckoning, anyway. Oestler's plausible enough, but there's a nasty brute hidden under that amiable smile. As for the 'smoke charmer,' she'd drown her own twins. Then there are the two Chinks on D deck. They appear to be on fighting terms, but I doubt it. The learned one, with the glasses—the little bloke, I mean, Len Chow—doesn't seem in the Number One list to me. But his long pal with the strangled face ought to be put overboard, if I'm any judge. Then there's the big German, Hartog—he seems harmless enough and not in the same gallery at all. I don't know what to make of it."

"And I," said Dawson Haig, continuing his restless packing, "don't know what to make of my report to the chief. I'm acting on information, Rattray, that this scheme, whatever it is, comes to a head before we reach Aden. And as I don't know what the scheme may be, I can't reasonably expect Scotland Yard to go on granting me leave of absence and paying my expenses indefinitely. You see, I'm supposed to be in charge of the Limehouse murder case!"

"I know," said Rattray, and produced his slow smile. "It's never been clear to me what the passenger list of the Wallaroo had to do with it."

"It isn't clear to me," Haig confessed. "But I know there is a connection. And I know I have my hand on the solution of the mystery if only I can grasp it."

He paced up and down awhile longer, then:

"Do you remember, Jack," he perked suddenly, "the loss of a big German freighter somewhere off Suakim about two years ago?"

Jack Rattray shook his head: "I wasn't on this run two years ago. Why?"

"Well, there's no point in telling you why, if you don't remember the case," Haig replied. "But do you recall the wreck of the American steam yacht, Miss Minnesota?"

"Clearly! We were only forty miles off at the time! An aunt of Eileen's—Lady Dakenham —was lost in her. What's the chief idea grilling in your brain pan?"

"There are several ideas. But I admit they're a trifle hazy. Did you get an S O S from her?"

"Not a thing."

"Then how do you know you were forty miles off at the time?"

"Ran into bits of wreckage and figured it out."

"Wasn't it funny they didn't send out a call for help?" Dawson Haig asked.

Rattray stared at him. "No," he replied. "In my opinion they hit some small heavily laden craft, and the pair of 'em sank almost at once."

"But surely there would have been a few survivors?"

"Have you ever had a good look at a shark?" said Jack Rattray grimly.

Following a short silence, then Haig asked, "Is there much drug smuggling down that way?"

"Lots! Hashish for Egypt, mostly. Also, the good old slave trade flourishes exceedingly. I'm told the poor devils are driven across the old slave routes by the time-honored methods. Right up from Central Africa! The caravans travel at night, of course, and dig in during the day. They run motorboats across nowadays, high-power craft developing forty knots. I've seen 'em from the bridge once or twice. They cross on dark nights, as a rule."

"But where can the markets be, Jack?"

"There's Mecca. That's still a closed city. Fez, up in Africa. And I'm told there's a small, sort of exclusive market somewhere on the Nile in Egypt."

A rap on the door.

"Come in!" Rattray called. The door opened, and Eileen entered, closing it carefully behind her.

"I've caught them!" she declared, her eyes sparkling with excitement—"at last!"

"What?" Dawson Haig demanded.

"I saw the snake charmer slip a note into the hand of Mr. Len Chow as they passed on the promenade deck, three minutes ago!"

There was a dance after dinner that night.

Dawson Haig, desperately worried, went up onto the boat deck, quite deserted at the moment, and leaned over the starboard rail, at a point just aft the bridge, staring across calm sea in the direction of the African coast. He tried to think—to think calmly.

The problem was one demanding the exercises of all his powers. And, set like a jewel in this dark affair, was Eileen—a distracting figure (he could not be blind to the truth), and one upon which all too often he found his thoughts focussed. That Eileen had twice proved of incalculable service did not alter the plain fact that many times when he should have been concentrating upon the mystery, he found himself concentrating upon Eileen.

From a professional point of view he was faced either with something very like ruin, or, alternatively, with a triumph which must prove a stepping stone in his far-flung ambitions.

Granted this success — now doubly to be prayed for—he might dare to think about Eileen as he longed to think about her; not as the charming sister of an old friend, nor even a capable little helper, but as——Eileen.

Where did the clue lie to these mysterious activities? What should be his next move? It was maddening to watch, to know some incomprehensible plot stretching from Limehouse to Paris. Paris to Marseilles, and thence to Port Said—further, perhaps—was fermenting under his very eyes, coming to maturity, and yet—to do nothing!

At which point in his reflections, he was seized from behind in a steely grasp and lifted lightly, as a nurse might life an infant! He was in the grip of that creature of Yu'an Hee See's called "the Hangman." But of this fact he was ignorant.

Swung back over the shoulder of his unseen, but incredibly powerful assailant, he reconized, powerful assailant, he recognized was about to be hurled into the sea!

Automatically to his mind sprang those instructions which every police officer receives in jiu-jitsu. His fists were useless, flung high, impotent, above his head. But the cunning grip which told him that he was dealing with an expert, held him so poised that only at one moment — for which, dangerously, Haig must wait — could he counter.

That moment came — as the seemingly irresistible forward swing commenced which was to hurl him into the sea. He checked a cry in his throat. He was icily cool. And, following the curve of that mighty throw instead of endeavoring to check it as an ill-informed victim would have done, he swung forward, drew up his knees, and kicked backward with all his strength!

It was sheer guesswork, but one heel registered dully upon the head of the athlete, who held him aloft.

That [illegible] swing was never completed. Haig dropped with a crash upon the rail, hung perilously for a moment—and felt a vice-like grip upon his ankles....

He was tipped forward, forward, irresistibly—until he saw the lights of portholes beneath, the lower ones reflected in the sea. He clawed at the rail. That silent horror was behind him, hanging above him!

Clutching grimly, he kicked—kicked again..got a hold with his left hand higher up, and realized that the man was craning right over, was reaching down to relax that detaining grip. In desperation, resting his head against the lower rail, he managed at last to free his ankles, to draw his legs down....

Then, with all his remaining strength, he shot both feet upward! There was an impact — a stifled cry. His jacket, held in clutching fingers, swept down over his head, but he clung on—clung on dizzily.

A wrench — a bulky shape streaked past him..a dull splash. The Hangman had failed!

Dishevelled, panting, Haig dragged himself back to tha dĕck. He leaned dizzily against a boat, striving to adjust his disorder. Already the plan was forming which later he carried out. No one knew that the thug was overboard. No one should ever know, but the sharks, until his absence was discovered!

When, bewilderingly, came the swish of a silken shawl—a patter of feet—a soft, terrified cry .... and Eileen's sweet arms were about his neck!

"Billy—Billy dear! Oh, my God! you're covered in blood! What is it? What is it?"

"My dear!" he said—"It's nothing. I'm safe—and no one must know—"

She was staring into his face eagerly, her own raised in a sort of agony of apprehension. Haig began to tremble. His heart was thumping so hard that its pulsation seemed to stifle him. Gone was every resolution he so recently had made—useless—hopeless..

He held her so close that she thought, "He will break me in half," and exulted. He kissed her until she was breathless, helpless.

"Oh, my darling," he whispered.

He had so little to offer this wonder girl, locked, happy, in his arms—so much to tell her— so much to explain. et somehow all he could say over and over again, was:

"Oh, my darling...."

A few moments after the Wallaroo dropped her anchor off Port Said, the British Consul came aboard. There was a conference in the captain's cabin.

Haig had deliberately failed to notify the fact that there was a man overboard. It had gone into his Scotland Yard dossier, but he had suppressed it from those on board, [illegible] a specific object.

The first news was given by a steward entering the missing man's room in the morning. They were heading for the Canal at the time, and the ship was searched by the purser's orders. The conclusion was come to that the morose Chinese passenger had committed suicide during the night by jumping overboard....

Now, in the closed cabin of the commander, Dawson Haig revealed the truth to Captain Peterson and the British Consul.

"I take full responsibility," he said; "you can see for yourselves the sort of gang I have to deal with. First, the Limehouse outrage, and now this murderous attack on me. I got off lightly, with a cut scalp and a torn sleeve!"

The commander scratched his grizzled head.

"What do you wish me to do, inspector?" the consul asked. "In my opinion, the persons whom you suspect of being associated with the missing assassin should be detained.

Dawson Haig stood up, grinning savagely, and shaking his head.

"Upon what evidence?" he demanded. "I assure you that except for a scrap of paper providentially discovered by Miss Kearney, there's nothing to associate Dr. Oestler, for instance, with any conspiracy directed against me. And even that is far from conclusive. I mean, he could explain it in all sorts of ways. He doesn't appear to be acquainted either with Miss Valeria Ednam or with Mr. Chow; and certainly not with the German, Hartog, on the lower deck. And what have I against these three people which would justify detention? I assure you"—he shook his head emphattically—"absolute nothing."

Little Benny's Note Book

Me and Puds Simkins were walking to school wishing vacation was here already instead of a few days still away, and I said, I wonder if anybody ever goes to school if they dont really have to.

Some crazy guys mite, Puds said. If I ran the werld I'd have vacation pritty near the whole year and school with what was left over, instead of the other way around, the way it actually is, he said, and I said, Sure, that's a swell idea, a lot of vacation to make you appriciate school, instead of a lot of school to make you appriciate vacation.

Which just then we heard some kid say, Good morning, Miss Kitty, proving our teacher was rite in back of us probably heering everything, and we quick changed the subject different, me saying, Oh boy, give me school, the heck with vacation.

That's a way I feel, Puds said. I want a place where I can always be lerning something and getting the advantage of an education with a good teetcher, he said, and I said, Sure, me too. I'll be sattisfied to take a vacation when I get too old to and dum to lern, and not before. School's a swell place to be. What's the idea of closing it up just when the nice weather starts? I said.

Which just then Miss Kitty walked passed us, saying, Good morning, boys!

Good morning, Miss Kitty, me and Puds said, trying to sound serprised, and she said, Are you boys familiar with the expression, to gild the lilly?

No mam, we said, and Miss Kitty said, Well, it means to try to make a thing more perfect than it is. And that's why I dont serve ice cream and cake in class every day—school is so perfect just as it is, she said.

Probably saying it sourcastic.

Stirling

Village Rate Will be 50 Mills Council Decides

Stirling, June 28.—The tax rate for the current year for the village of Stirling was struck at 50 mills at a special meeting of the council held in the Council chambers on Monday forenoon. With the provincial subsidy one mill for education purposes deducted the actual levy on the village assessment will be 49 mills, an increase of five mills over last year.

The higher levy is necessary because of an increase in the County rate, schools levy, general levy, hydrant rentals and street lighting. On the other hand there is a decrease of three mills in the debenture levy. The cost of the new roof on the community building is responsible for a goodly share of the increase in the general levy.

The various departments of the village business were discussed in detail by members of the council showing the village finances in good condition.

A comparative table of the mill rate for 1947 and 1948 with the 1948 rate in brackets, is as follows:

County rate 8.30 (9.60), schools 9.60 (10.60), library 1.50 (1.50), general rate 13.73 (19.15), hydrant rentals 1.67 (1.70), Board of Health .70 (.70), debentures 5.75 (2.75), street lighting 3.75 (4.00), total 45.00 (50.00), less government subsidy 1.00 (1.00), total, 44.00 (49.00).

Dewey, Warren Pegged to Record Of Last Congress

Philadelphia, June 28 — (AP) —The Republican presidential ticket of Thomas E. Dewey and his running mate Earl Warren have cut a pattern for a campaign pegged to a congressional record neither helped write.

New York's Governor Dewey, kingpin of the first White House drive the Republicans think they are sure of winning in 16 years, had a few clean-up decisions to make. Then he planned to head for a weekend rest at his Pawling, N.Y., farm.

Chief task for the candidates was lining up their defences for the expected assault by President Truman and the Democrats on the record of the Republican-controlled 80th Congress. Truman called it, at best, the "second worst" in history.

Dewey and Warren wrote none of that record. But they made it clear in separate press conferences Friday that they have no intention to flinch at the things that were done or left undone.

Dewey told reporters he thinks the Republican lawmakers made a "remarkable record." He listed as accomplishments the start of the European recovery plan, the income tax cut and the setting up of "a realistic foreign policy."

On other subjects, the New Yorker said that if he is elected he certainly will have a woman in the cabinet.

He announced plans not only to have Warren sit in with the cabinet but to have his running mate share in major policy decisions.

Asked if he thinks he could "handle Joe Stalin," Dewey replied that he plans to depend on normal diplomatic channels, rather than personal meetings, to get things done.

Not that he would object to a meeting with Stalin, he hastened to explain. But he said he thinks "personal diplomacy"—as Roosevelt and Mr. Truman have handled it — has been a failure.

Warren joined Dewey in urging permanent recognition for Israel.

South was not content with a correct contract of five diamonds. He jammed it into a small slam of six diamonds. This would have gone down to defeat in a hurry if west had led a heart.

But west master-minded with an opening lead of his singleton trump. Bing, bing, bing came seven trumps from south. All the dummy reds were dumped on them as east squirmed.

Take a look at the position the east player found himself in. Declarer had six black tricks unless east kept three cards in each black suit. So, east fired all his hearts.

A spade entered dummy. On the second spade topper was chucked a south heart. The spade ten was led from dummy. East won this with the spade queen and south flopped his last heart on it.

East has taken the only trick for his side up to now. He is now in the lead. And all the cards he has left are K 10 9 of clubs. He must lead one of them.

Return of club king would make it too easy. He sends forth the club ten. This runs to the dummy jack. The club that came back from dummy caught the east king in a finesse. It gave declarer 12 tricks.

East admired the astute play by south. He was also full of deep sympathy for his partner. He thought west might be feeling bad for a bad guess in the opening lead.

But at that moment his partner was saying: "Why dintcha hang onto a heart?" You could have heard a pinhead drop. East had mentally decapitated his partner.

The Movie Column

By BOB THOMAS

Hollywood, June 28 (AP). — James Petrillo has plugged the hole in his record ban. He is asking singing stars to refrain from making discs with vocal backgrounds.

Recording companies have been skirting the ban by backing their vocalists with choral accompaniment, plus harmonicas, ukuleles, and other non-union instruments.

Many singing stars are honorary or actual members of the American Federation of Musicians and thus will be obliged to co-operate in the ban.

New Horizons

Walt Disney leaves for Hawaii today and the island empire will be the next subject of his true adventure series. The cartoon wizard is preparing three or four-and-a-half hour films on Alaska.

Walt's first release in the series will be "Seal Island", telling of Alaska's fur seals in living action and cartoon. It will be shown next winter as part of an all-Disney show which will include the feature, "So Dear To My Heart", plus a short or two. It sounds like a welcome answer to the double-bill menace.

Franchot Tone is the latest to forsake Hollywood for filming abroad. After he finishes "Every Girl Should Be Married" here and "Jigsaw" in New York, he'll sail for France to produce and star in "The Man From Eiffel Tower". It's a detective story with a chase all over the Parisian landmark.

Ray Robinson Having Battle With the Scales

Chicago, June 28 — (AP) — Champion Ray (Sugar) Robinson, a little weary in his "battle of the scales" weighed in today for his scheduled 15-round title scrap in Comiskey Park with Bernie Docusen.

The twice - postponed fight is set for tonight weather permitting.

But if the Harlem flash fails to make the required 147-pound limit in the noon ceremonies, the Illinois Athletic Commission may declare his welterweight title vacant.

Robinson hit an even 147 when the bout was originally slated June 17. But rain washed it out, and four days later Robinson refused to weigh in when it was rescheduled. He admitted being overweight.

He began the drying out process all over again and is expected to make the grade. In addition to the threat of having his title removed by the Commission should be fail, is a forfeiture of a $5,000 weight bond.

The 22-year-old Docusen, a polished fighter from New Orleans who lost only two of his 58 scraps as a pro to gain recognition as the No. 1 challenger, is trim and anxious to go.

The Union is asking an increase of 16 1-2 cents an hour across the board, while the company is offering 10 cents across the board, plus an escalator clause to provide for further increase depending on the cost of living. agent for the Local, said the next move appeared to be "some indication from the Provincial Department of Labor as to when a vote of all company employees can be conducted under the Rand formula."

Syracuse Chiefs And Maple Leafs Divide Twin Bill

(By The Associated Press)

Duke Snider, who received special instructions on the finer points of hitting, mastered his lessons too well for the comfort of pitchers on seven International League teams.

Snider, 21-year-old outfielder of the pace-setting Montreal Royals, was tutored at the parent Brooklyn Dodgers' training camp this spring at swinging at balls in the strize zone only.

The Compton, Calif., youth is proving he needs no refresher course for he is tagging opposition pitching at a .326 clip.

More than half of his 45 blows have gone for extra-bases — 11 homers, 12 doubles and three triples. In addition Snider has driven in 41 runs.

Yesterday he helped the Royals take a doubleheader from Baltimore Orioles 12-4 and 2-1 by rapping out six hits in seven trips to the plate.

Jack Banta coasted to his 8th triumph and Clyde King, making his first start coming from Brooklyn, won the second.

The double triumphs enabled the Royals to open a 4½ game lead over the runner-up Newark Bears who divided a doubleheader with Buffalo Bisons.

After the Bisons beat rookie Bob Porterfield 4-3, on Johnny Bero's ninth inning homer, the Bears same back and trounced the Herd, 12-4.

Buffalo's Chet Laabs socked a round tripped in each contest to run his pace-setting total to 24.

Toronto Maple Leafs and Syracuse Chiefs also divided a twin bill. The Chiefs took the first 9-8, by scoring three runs in the 9th. Oscar Judd of Ingersoll, Ont., coasted home behind a 13 - hit Toronto attack in the nightcap.

AT THE BELLE — Maureen O'Hara and Rex Harrison have starring romance in "The Foxes of Harrow," 20th. Century-Fox film now entertaining Belle Theatre audiences.

CHURCHILL HELPS VETERAN

London, June 26—(CP)—News agent Matt Ayton of Attleborough, Norfolk, who lost a leg in the first world war, was having a special limb fitted when Winston Churchill, carrying a cane visited the hospital.

"You have a special limb and can walk without a stick?" Churchill asked.

"Yes," said Matt, "But I'd like that cane."

"Here are my hand, my heart and my stick, said Churchill.

"Look after it. It's been all over the world with me."

TINY A-SMASHER

Pasadena, Calif., June 26—(AP)—A new atom smasher, smaller than a milk bottle, has enabled scientists to calculate that the inside of the sun probably is 3,00,000 or 4,000,000 degrees cooler than formerly believed. This brings the sun's interior temperature down to about 27,000,000 degrees fahrenheit.

Only Sending Eights, Doubles To Olympic Games

St. Catharines, June 28 (CP)—Theo Dubois, Winnipeg sculler, won the singles event of the Olympic trials and came within an ace of capturing a berth on Canada's Olympic team.

But his victory Saturday over Ken Nunns of Toronto Argonauts in a hard-fought contest apparently made little impression on a selection committee, which decided later against sponsoring singles, pair oars or fours-without-cox winners.

This decision left Canada's hopes in the summer Olympic rowing events in Britain on the shoulders of Hamilton's Leander Club in the eights and Ottawa Rideau Club, represented by Ted Graves and Gabe Beaudry, in the doubles.

Dubois, who won the United States national title at Detroit in 147 and then lost the Henley here to Jack Kelly, was fairly extended by Nunns. But the Toronto sculler appeared to lack sufficient stamina for a finish punch to beat the veteran Dubois. The Winnipegger won by a length.

Hamilton Leander's crew never was headed in the senior eights It finished three lengths ahead of St. Catharines Rowing Club and four ahead of Ottawa.

In the fours-sans-cox, Toronto Argonauts finished a length ahead of Ottawa. St. Catharines came third.

The senior pair oars event went to Ottawa Rideau Club. The winning oarsmen were J. Smith and W. Blue.

Ottawa also won the senior doubles by edging out Toronto Dons.

CANADIAN SPORT SNAPSHOTS

By JACK TRACY
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Montreal, June 28 — (CP) — The world's heavyweight championship bout between Joe Louis and Jersey Joe Walcott has caused some reminiscing about the piping days when the sons of Erin wore the fight crown.

Elmer (Montreal Herald) Ferguson, who keeps pretty close tabs on fistic history got himself into a slight argument with one of the Irish supporters when he remarked a few days ago that the great John L. Sullivan never was champion of the world.

"I met him in the saloon on Criag Street run by the Costello boys," the correspondent told the scribe, "and he was the grand man, indeed. For years, I held a high position by offering friends and acquaintances to shake the hand that shook the hand of John L."

At the risk of being slugged by a polthogue or dornick, Elmer reiterated that John L. wasn't even technically world's champion and offered this evidence:—

"In the lines of the articles, signed June 28, 1882, binding John L. for his fight with Joe (Tug Wilson) Collins, July 17, 1882, at the old New York Gardens: 'John L. Sullivan, champion of America, agrees to give Joseph Collins (Tug Wilson) champion of England $1,000 and half the gate, etc.' That's what the man said."

"So we can't give any comfort to our critic," wrote Elmer. "Looks like the great John L. was merely the champion of America at fisticuffing, and drinking on the grand scale . . ."

700 GREEK CHILDREN AT RHODES

GOOD CITIZENSHIP is a lot of little things

IT PAYS TO PRAISE

For too many of us it's easier to find fault and to criticise than to look for the good points in others. But isn't it better to overlook small irritations and petty annoyances . . . and give a word of praise whenever it is deserved? A kindly word from you often encourages and inspires the other fellow to better efforts. It's a small thing in itself, but it creates a warmer understanding. Friendly encouragement and unselfish interest in others prove your "Good Citizenship".

You can help this public service effort. Make a note of some of the little things which, in your opinion, contribute to Good Citizenship.

MOTH

TINEA PELLIONELLA

Two species occur in Canada; the webbing moth and the casemaking clothes moth. One is entirely pale buff or straw color, the other greyish yellow with distinct dark spots on the forewings. They cause incalculable damage to woollens, furs, cereal and nuts. Moths are the nightmare of many housewives and food-manufacturing establishments. They thrive on dust and dry air. The darker the hideout the better they spin .. to your sorrow. They recognize no seasons in homes and industries and do their damage throughout the year.

The life of a moth takes in four principal stages. The egg, the larva or worm, the pupa, the flying moth (adult.) This entire cycle covers anywhere from two months to several years, depending upon conditions. It is the moth larva or worm that does damage. The flying moth lives only for one or two weeks during which time their sole function is to lay eggs.

Moths affect clothing, carpets, upholstered furniture, piano felts, foodstuffs, etc. There is no product on the market today that gives 100 per cent protection against moth such was the unanimous pronouncement of the chemical and textile experts in a forum recently held in New York. Tell your troubles to a specialist, he'll do the work right.

Ban is Imposed On All Shipping On River Elbe

Step is Taken by Russian Occupation Authorities

Frankfurt, June 29—(Reuters)—Russian occupation authorities today stopped the movement of all shipping on the River Elbe, including transit shipping to Czechoslovakia, the German bi-zonal transport administration announced here.

The ban covered interzonal traffic in both directions, including even Soviet zone shipping returning from the west.

It also covered movement to and from Czechoslovakia along the Elbe, a transport administration spokesman said.

Hamburg, Germany, June 29—(AP) — Gen. Sir Brian Robertson, British military governor for Germany, declared today that if the Russians persist in their blockade of Berlin it will "constitute an act of ruthless inhumanity unparalleled in the history of the world."

Situation Grave

Speaking to the final plenary session of the German zonal advisory council, Sir Brian declared:

"The situation in Berlin is grave. And I use the word grave well knowing its meaning. It is grave not only for the people of Berlin, grave not only for the people of Germany — it is grave for the people of the world."

"The people of the world will condemn unhesitatingly this effort to gain political advantage by an attempt to starve a helpless population.

"As to the morale of the German population of Berlin, it excites my heartfelt admiration. They will get every support — every support — that the Western Powers can give them."

The zonal advisory council is being discontinued because of the forthcoming establishment of a semi-independent government in Western Germany.

U. S. Prepares Moves

Washington — (AP) — United States officials were reported preparing new, tough diplomatic moves today to crack Russia's land blockade of Berlin.

Although officials maintained a tight-lipped silence, indications mounted that a diplomatic stroke aimed directly at Moscow might be unleashed tomorrow or Thursday.

The nature of any such plan was cloaked in strictest secrecy, but signs pointed to a stern note demanding that Russia lift the eight-day-old blockade and quit other unity - hampering tactics—or take responsibility for the consequences.

These were the major developments:

1. State Undersecretary Robert Lovett conferred with President Truman Monday and later attended a White House cabinet session.
2. Army Undersecretary William Draper and United States Ambassador Lewis W. Douglas went into a London conference with Foreign Secretary Bevin. Draper then flew to Berlin for conferences with the American Commander, Gen. Lucius D. Clay.

Islanders Vote In Favor Of Liquor Sales

Charlottetown, June 29 (CP)—For the first time since 1878, Prince Edward Islanders Monday voted in favor of liquor sales and did it with a resounding 73 per cent of the vote.

With only a handful of the 239 polling booths still to report, government control defeated prohibition 20,019 to 7,285, revised figures showed. The final outcome was indicated when the first 3 polls announced their totals and the commanding lead never diminished.

The government control measure, officially called the Temperance Act, cannot come into effect for several weeks because of the paper work involved, Premier Jones said Monday night.

It provided for a rationing system allowing each adult a bottle of liquor or a case of beer a week. The Act will be administered by a commission established last April.

It will replace the "Cullen" amendment, which gave Islanders the same amount of alcoholic beverage through doctors' prescriptions. The amendment was tacked on to a prohibition law in 1945.

About 60 per cent of the Island's voting strength of 52,000 turned out, despite predictions that participation would be heavy. In the general election last December, nearly 45,000 had cast ballots.

When informed of the results, Premier Jones said: "The people want a fairly strict provincial law and have repudiated the prohibition law which has been relied upon for the last 50 years. I am confident that conditions will continue to improve, provided the people co-operate in the encouragement of the new Temperance Act."

Eagle Attacks On Humans Are Under Study

Lansing, June 29 — (CP) — Reports of eagle attacks on humans were being investigated today by startled state conservation officials.

The first "attack" came recently at Riverdale in Gratiot county when a bird, described as half grown, tried to jump on Julius DeMeyer, a farmer, driving his tractor in a field.

DeMeyer leaped from his vehicle and ran for cover.

The second attack was reported by Sam Alexander, who was driving his truck in a pasture when a bird blew straight at his truck, alighted on his arm and closed its claws on his hand.

Alexander pried the bird loose and captured it alive. Conservation officials said the bird's behavior suggested it was partly trained for falconry and alighted in Norman fashion to be fed.

Weather Synopsis

Toronto, June 29 — (CP) — Synopsis: Over Northern Ontario it is cool this morning and there are widely scattered showers. Somewhat cooler air over James Bay will push down into the White River and Kirkland Lake regions by Wednesday. Very warm, moist air originating over the southern Atlantic and Gulf of Mexico covers the eastern half of the United States and Southern Ontario. Clear, cooler air now over the Western States will push into the Chatham region late this afternoon or early this evening and will cover all of Southern Ontario by Wednesday morning. A general repetition of Monday's weather is expected over Southern Ontario today.

HOUSE APPROVES RECOMMENDATION PRICES COMMITTEE

Aim at Reducing Cost of Living

Ottawa, June 29 (CP) — The recommendations of the Prices Committee—aimed directly at reducing the cost of living—bear the significant stamp of parliamentary approval today.

Whether this means the government will put them into effect remains a question for the future, but it is a matter of record that Health Minister Martin, the government spokesman, gave them a spirited defence before the commons adopted them Monday night without even the expected formality of a recorded vote.

Closing a bitter two-day debate that blocked the prorogation drive, Mr. Martin challenged the Progressive Conservative party to say which of the 14 recommendations it would oppose.

When the motion for adoption was called, none in the official opposition benches rose to record their dissatisfaction with the report, though many had belabored it during the debate. C.C.F. and Social Credit members, some of whom were lukewarm towards the report also remained seated.

The recommendations, which Progressive Conservative spokesmen charged had been drawn up by the government itself rather than the committee and thus represented unspoken government policy, were that the government "consider" these steps:

Many Things Requested

1. Removal of last November's emergency excise taxes on "commodities in common use" and removal of the import ban on fruits and vegetables.
2. Reimposition of individual price controls and revival of temporary subsidies where it was shown that hardship otherwise would result.
3. Revision of rent control regulations to remove hardship in certain cases.
4. Consideration of the Canadian supply situation and the interests of producers and consumers before removing export embargos on certain foods (apparently the embargo on the shipment of beef cattle to the United States).

The government already has indicated its adoption of another recommendation — that a commission continue the work of the committee after prorogation—by placing an appropriation for $50,000 to cover this suggestion in its supplementary estimates.

A bristling barrage of criticism came from the opposition benches before Mr. Martin, who had served as chairman of the all-party committee, closed the debate.

Study Ways of Securing Western Help For East Europe's Industrialization

By PATRICK CROSSE

Geneva June 29 (Reuters) — With the backing of 27 countries the economic commission for Europe has begun six months' intensive research on the possibility down the trade and credit barriers which divide the 16 Marshall Plan countries from Eastern Europe.

Reflecting the expressed conviction of both east and west that Europe is an economic unit which cannot recover if divided, the member powers of the commission have instructed its secretariat to pursue two lines of research.

1. On ways of enlisting west-help in the industrialization of Eastern Europe. This help must take the form of supplying capital and equipment goods to eastern countries which before the war depended largely on Germany.
2. On ways of expanding trade across the political division between post-war Russian policy and the Marshall Plan.

Wider credit facilities would form from the backbone of this expanded interchange of western machinery and goods for eastern food and raw materials.

A relatively non-committal formula — to study means of developing European industries and trade — was produced by Sweden, after eastern and western powers had wrangled for four days in secret session at the May meeting of the economic commission.

Already technical bodies of the economic commission, grouping representatives of countries most directly interested, have been persuaded that western credits to eastern countries could be well worth while.

The economic commission's researchers expect that one of their most serious problems will be the currency difficulties which already progressively restrict trade between western European countries.

Stabilize Currency And Balance Budget To Receive ERP Aid

By JOHN SCALI

Washington, June 29 (AP) — Britain promised today to keep her financial house in order in return for more than $4,000,000,000 in United States aid over the next 4 1-4 years.

In a lengthy agreement made public by the State Department, the British government pledged that in exchange for United States assistance under the European recovery program Britain will:

"Stabilize its currency, establish or maintain a valid rate of exchange, balance its governmental budget, create or maintain internal financial stability and generally restore or maintain confidence in its monetary system."

While the agreement must be approved by parliament by July 3 if United States aid now flowing under a temporary pact is not to halt, such ratification was expected with little trouble. If the agreement is approved after the deadline, American shipments would be resumed.

There had been reports of vigorous disagreement between British and American negotiators over Britain's currency. The final wording of the clause represents a victory for the British officials.

They had insisted on toning down an earlier version to avoid any impression the United States government wanted power to devalue the pound sterling at will.

Although the full amount of American assistance is not specified in the agreement, state and treasury department officials have estimated that Britain's

Says Russia May be Building Up Case to Send Men to Yugoslavia; Conjectures Rife Over Tito

Prague, June 29. (AP)—American diplomatic sources in Rome said today Russia may be building up a case to send troops to Yugoslavia.

The Kremlin-ruled Cominform—International Communist information Bureau—denounced the Communist rulers of the Balkan country Monday. Premier Marshal Tito, his whereabouts still a mystery, was castigated by name and told in effect either to adhere to the party line or be replaced. Tanjug, the official Yugoslav News Agency, said it expected a statement from Tito today.

The Italian radio said martial law was declared in Yugoslavia, but a dispatch telephoned from Belgrade to Prague said this was emphatically denied in the Yugoslav capital.

The Belgrade correspondent of The Associated Press said there was a story that martial law was declared around Nis, near the Bulgarian border, to allow police and soldiers to evacuate persons from a flood zone. The story could not be confirmed because of poor communications.

The Cominform had accused Tito and other Communist leaders of pursuing a "hateful" policy toward Russia, leaning toward the western powers, conducting a "wrong" foreign and domestic policy and departing from the Marxist-Leninist line.

Belgrade dispatches said Tito was believed to be at his Summer Palace at Bled in the north. He usually spends June there. A former Czechoslavak delegate to the United Nations said he thought Tito is dead. A high Yugoslav diplomat in Rome said Tito still is in power. The fact remained that weeks had elapsed since the strutting marshal, once a general in Russia's Red Army, had appeared in the news.

At Lake Success, Dr. Jan Papanek, former Czech U.N. delegate, expressed belief that Tito may be in grave personal danger, while high United States diplomatic officials in Washington expressed the opinion that the Yugoslav Marshal and his associates may already have been "taken care of".

By "taken care of," they meant Tito may have been removed as head of Yugoslavia's government, or merely "immobilized" for a period of thinking and repentance—or liquidated.

Moscow radio was silent in the subject for hours after the statement became public, but later Pravda, organ of the Communist party there, devoted its entire second page to the resolution, but without editorial comment.

The Cominform resolution singled out for criticism, in addition to Tito, Vice Premier Edvard Kardelj, one of the Cominform founders; Milovan Djilas, minister for Montenegro, a Yugoslav State; and Lt.-Gen. Alexander Rankovic, minister of Interior and head of Yugoslavia's police force.

Believe Canada Can Look for Day When Sovereigns Will Spend Part of Each Year in Dominion

By JAMES McCOOK
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, June 29 (CP)—Informed sources said today it is "perfectly logical" to accept the prediction made by Prime Minister Mackenzie King in the Canadian Commons Monday—that Canada could look forward to the King and Queen residing part of each year in Ottawa.

The statement caused no surprise in London where it is recognized that the United Kingdom, in a changing, developing Commonwealth, should not necessarily claim the entire time of the Royal Family.

These factors have brought home to Britain that the sovereign has responsibilities and duties elsewhere that more often will require his absence:

1. The Canadian and South African tours demonstrated a satisfaction of the overseas subjects in the presence of the Royal Family as lively as that of the United Kingdom residents.
2. The old barriers to the Royal Family visiting distant capitals is being removed with the development of air transport and rapid communication. Commonwealth centres now are within a few days of each other. Wherever he is, the King can be reached quickly by his ministers in any part of the Commonwealth.
3. Large scale emigration to Canada from the United Kingdom and Europe may mean that in the next 20 years the Dominion both in population and wealth will be more important than the United Kingdom. In that event it is only reasonable that the King should spend more time in the Dominions and it is probable that Ottawa would have the first Royal residence overseas.

"Where the King is, there is in fact the only capital of the Commonwealth and Empire," said one source.

"People sometimes think sentimentally of London as the Commonwealth capital but it is not so because each Dominion is a free independent country sharing the common link of the Crown. Thus when the King is in Edinburgh, Ottawa or in a small village anywhere, that is the capital of the Commonwealth for the time being.

One authority said it was probable that Royal visits to Commonwealth countries would have been far more extended had the war not intervened after the tour of Canada. Next year the King, Queen and Princess Margaret will travel to the Antipodes to visit Australia and New Zealand, thereafter the New Dominions of India, Pakistan and Ceylon likely will hope for visits.

LIBERALS CARRY NEW BRUNSWICK BY BIG MAJORITY

Hold 47 Seats In 52-Seat Legislature

Fredericton, June 29.— (CP)—The Liberal government of Premier John B. McNair swept back into power in New Brunswick Monday with its majority strongly bolstered.

Although rain fell in some sections, a heavy turnout at the polls gave Liberals 47 of the 52 seats in the province's largest House since Confederation.

This was the standing, compared to the result of the 1944 election when the House contained 48 members:

	1948	1944
Liberals	47	36
Prog. Cons.	5	12
Total	52	48

Incomplete Canadian Press tabulations indicated the final vote will be lower than the 1944 record of 584,016 votes which included more than 64,000 in Gloucester, this year was taken by acclamation by the Liberals.

This total is not the number of voters but the number of votes cast. Each of the 17 ridings has more than one seat.

The Liberals gained 57.4 per cent of the votes compared to their 1944 total of 48.3 per cent. The Conservatives fell from 40 per cent in 1944 to 31 per cent.

C.C.F. Fail to Elect Member

On the basis of its trend-analysis of early returns, The Canadian Press indicated re-election of the government with an increased majority one hour and 40 minutes after polls closed.

The C. C. F. which placed a total of 20 candidates in the field failed to elect a member as did the Social Credit, which placed five standard - bearers in the field in its first bid in New Brunswick.

Eight independents, one of whom held a seat in the last legislature, all failed to gain representation.

The lone woman candidate, Mrs. Gladys West, who ran under the C. C. F. banner in Queens county was among those defeated. She was trying to be the first woman to enter the New Brunswick House.

All cabinet ministers won re-election as the Liberals swept all but two of the 16 contested sidings.

Liberals swept the two cities—Moncton, and Saint John.

First Liberal candidates to gain election were reported in Saint John City, a Progressive Conservative stronghold.

It was the fourth straight election victory for the Liberals. The party swept Progressive Conservatives out of office in 1935 and remained in power at the 1939 and 1944 elections.

Increased by Four Seats

Progressive Conservative leader Hugh Mackay won a personal victory in Kings County along with his two running mates.

The only other Progressive Conservative victors were in the three - member Carleton County where one Liberal gained a seat formerly held by the opposition.

C. C. F. Leader Joseph Arrowsmith lost in his bid for election in Saint John city.

Dominion Day Exodus to Country Will Leave Many Cities Deserted

(By The Canadian Press)

Almost-deserted cities will dot Canada Thursday when families head for the countryside to celebrate Dominion Day with picnic outings.

A Canadian Press survey today indicated that the holiday exodus on this 81st anniversary of Confederation might break records. The last general holiday, Victoria Day, was cold and dreary in many areas but, with good weather expected almost everywhere, July 1 shapes up as a humdinger.

Many business places plan to close from Wednesday night until Monday morning.

By Saturday, Americans starting their celebration of the July 4 Independence Day weekend will join holidaying Canadians.

Highway department officials, what may be the heaviest weekend travel of the year, put special emphasis into their pleas for careful driving and walking. Last year there were 42 Dominion Day fatalities, most of them in traffic accidents and many others in drownings.

Twenty-one-gun salutes were set to be fired on Quebec City's Cape Diamond and near the Saskatchewan legislature buildings in Regina.

The Maritimes looked for a great rush to the ocean beaches. As elsewhere in Canada, railways offered reduced rates for holiday trips.

Ottawa expected a quiet holiday with Senators and Members of Parliament away for the summer recess and most of its 20,000 civil servants and other government workers gone from the capital for the day.

It was believed Prime Minister Mackenzie King would be on vacation at his summer home at Kingsmere in the Gatineau Hills north of Ottawa. Opposition leader John Bracken was expected at his Manotick farm, south of the capital.

Hotels in Ottawa, Montreal and Toronto reported heavy bookings many by Americans. Tourist homes prepared to accommodate the overflow.

18 Brotherhoods Notify Railways Of Their Intentions

35 Cents an Hour Increase Sought for Men by Unions

Montreal, June. 29 (CP)—A strike which would paralyze Canadian railway transportation was set today for July 15 as spokesmen for 120,000 rail workers told employers and the government they would walk out on that date unless their wage dispute was settled.

The workers, members of 18 International Brotherhoods, have been seeking a general 35-cents-an-hour wage increase since last November.

Union men, having made their announcement, could not be reached for comment. The railways said they might have something to say later.

The announcement said a strike ballot begun after the unions rejected a conciliation board report had shown "only a comparative handful" against a strike.

Negotiations Break Down

It followed by 18 days an announcement that mediation proceedings involving 28,000 members of the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway Employees and other transport workers (C.C.L.) had broken down. The C.B.R.E. spokesman claimed their membership had voted 97 per cent in favor of calling a strike in a similar dispute.

Today's announcement was made by Frank H. Hall, Chairman of the negotiating committee representing the International Brotherhoods in the dispute. He released at the same time a letter sent the railways by the unions Monday advising them of the Brotherhoods' intentions.

The letter outlined the attempts at negotiating a 35-cents-an-hour wage increase, which it said had "not brought about a settlement."

"Accordingly, the matter was referred to the employees represented by the organizations, who are covered by the various agree-

Says Her Husband Like Caged Animal At Moon's Change

Cooksville, June 29 — (CP) — Almiddy Lemyre, described by his wife as being "like a caged animal at the change of the moon," was sentenced to three months Monday on a charge of assault, occasioning actual bodily harm.

"My husband takes streaks at the change of the moon and does strange things," testified Mrs. Lemyre. "One night he stole some flowers and woke me up at 3 a. m. to tell me about it. My neighbor and I watched the calendar and sure enough, when the moon changes, he gets streaks."

She claimed he hit her with a baseball bat last Sunday in an argument. over their five children, breaking two ribs.

LESLIE DAVIDSON HANGED TODAY IN TORONTO JAIL

Convicted for Shooting Sweetheart, Mrs. M. Meredith, in Toronto Cafe

Toronto, June 29 — (CP)—Leslie R. Davidson, 29, was hanged at 8 a. m. EDT today for the fatal shooting last March 1 of his sweetheart, 25-year-old Mrs. Margaret (Mickey) Meredith.

All was quiet around the jail when the sentence was carried out. About six persons stood on Gerrard Street opposite the main door. At about 8.28 a. m. Sheriff J. D. Conover posted a notice on the door that the sentence had been executed.

At 8.45 a. m. a hearse drew up at the front door to take away the body for burial.

Jail officials reported that the Montreal-born pianist and entertainer was calm and resigned during his last hours in the death cell. One of his final acts was to write his estranged wife, Mrs. Freda Davidson, a farewell note.

The gallows were built in a small room off one of the main cell blocks in the Don jail. Prisoners who had occupied nearby cells were moved to another part of the building.

Police said Davidson, wild with jealousy, fired several shots into the head of Mrs. Meredith as she worked in a Queen Street West restaurant near the city hall in central Toronto. The girl died 30 days later in hospital.

Immediately after the shooting, Davidson dashed through the back door of the restaurant and down a lane. Police who arrested him a few hours later in a west-end club said they found him playing "Pretty Mickey" on a piano.

Met Overseas

The haunting refrain of that lovesong of the early '20s, recently revived, apparently symbolized for Davidson the bitter-sweet memories of his romance with the pretty brunette who left her husband and small son in Vancouver to join the army show in 1942. She met Davidson overseas and after the war they decided to seek fame as partners.

The partnership failed onstage and off. Quarrels flared and Davidson came to believe that his girl friend was sharing her affections with other men. Their relationship ended forever with the burst of gunfire from the restaurant booth.

Davidson's lawyer at the trial sought to show that his client acted under the stress of temporary insanity but Davidson was convicted of murder. He lost an appeal and his application for a reprieve was denied.

During his last days Davidson was a model prisoner. He spent part of his time composing a hymn. His spiritual adviser, Maj. A. B. MacMillan of the Salvation Army, said he found comfort in the Scriptures.

ONLY 15 BERRIES REQUIRED TO FILL BOX

One never knows what to expect from the plant world. Today, Mrs. DeMille, from Marsh Hill, brought a box of strawberries into the office. Now this in itself is not unusual but there were only fifteen berries in this particular quart and the box was filled to overflowing.

The berries looked more like medium-sized tomatoes than strawberries and they were almost black in color. Mrs. DeMille pointed out that these berries, they are called Fairfax, turn almost black when ripe. As for the taste. Yum! We had one.

Council Accedes to Request Of Board of Education for New Public School on Yeomans St.

Members of city council Monday evening gave tentative approval to the request of the Belleville Board of Education that application be made to the Ontario Municipal Board for permission to issue debentures for not more than $320,000 for the purpose of erecting a new public school in the city.

The new school would be constructed on the Yeomans Street property recently deeded by the city to the Board of Education. However, final plans for construction of the school building have not yet been made.

Chairman of the Board, Harold C. Seldon acted as spokesman for the delegation of Board members who attended the council meeting.

Cites Crowded Conditions

Citing crowded conditions existent in the four public schools, Mr. Seldon stated that it was necessary and unavoidable that a new school be built in the city as soon as possible. The Department of Education had already approved of their share of the cost and the city now must get approval of the Municipal Board to issue the debentures. The province would bear 35 per cent of the cost of the school. According to Mr. Seldon if an immediate start was made the school could be ready for the opening of the Fall school term in 1949.

Alderman Hyde objected that complete plans and specifications would be needed before the council could vote on the matter, but L. A. Kells, administrator for the Board, noted that tentative approval only was asked at the present. With tentative approval given the board could then proceed to retain an architect to draw plans.

Take Care of Expansion

"Would the new school on Yeomans St. take care of the expansion expected in the city?" asked Alderman Hyde.

"Yes," was the reply. "It would take care of expected expansion for the next five years.

Alderman Armstrong could see nothing wrong with council giving tentative approval to the plan. When final plans are ready there would be final estimates submitted.

"What plans are there for a school for the east end of the city," asked Alderman Allin. "It is there where most of the residential expansion will be."

In reply Mr. Seldon explained that under re-organization of the public school system, Grades 7 and 8 would be taken out of the public schools with the present Queen Mary school to be used for these pupils. This would make six to eight classrooms available at Queen Alexandra and Queen Victoria schools for additional pupils in the east end of the city.

"The Board of Education has gone over the matter very carefully," concluded Mr. Seldon. "We appreciate the new school will mean an increase in the tax rate but the matter is urgent."

Later council voted to give tentative approval for application to be made to the Municipal Board for permission to issue debentures for the construction of the new school.

Establishment of Park Area In New Docter Sub-Division Causes Lengthy Discussion

Question of the establishment of a park area in the Docter sub-division for the benefit of people who shortly will take up residence in the district, was the topic of considerable discussion at council meeting Monday evening.

The matter was broached by Alderman Tice when he asked what progress had been made with respect to making provision for the park area. It was imperative that a park be provided in the new sub-division, according to the alderman. He claimed it was ridiculous that a city the size of Belleville had not one good park.

Alderman Lazenby stated it would cost the city in the neighborhood of $15,000 to establish a good park in the Docter sub-division. Cost of the proposed two and three quarter acres of land would be from six to seven thousand. The land would need considerable fill and altogether was expected would cost $15,000.

A Total Disgrace

"Parks in the city are a total disgrace," stated Alderman Brown as he urged that something be done immediately to improve park conditions.

Alderman Follwell brought in a motion asking that a committee be appointed to meet with Bertram Docter with the view to acquiring certain lands in the Parkwood Heights area for public parks purposes. He asked that the committee endeavor to obtain an option on the property and to ascertain if Mr. Docter is willing to donate any land provided the city purchase the balance.

In reply Alderman Armstrong noted that such a committee already had been formed and was waiting for a report from a meeting with Stewart - Warner - Alemite regarding the recreational park operated by that firm. It is proposed to retain this park in exchange for property in the industrial area.

Urges Immediate Action

Alderman Follwell urged immediate action on the park matter, however, stating that if there was no action the property would soon all be sold. "Here is a completely new housing project, and no provision for a park in the area," he said.

"The question is, 'Has the city got the money?'" returned Alderman Armstrong.

"The excuse of there being no money is a ridiculous one," returned Alderman Follwell. "It has money for other things. It is a funny thing if the city is not big enough to provide a park in the area."

Here Alderman Lloyd noted that arrangements had been made by the Parks Board for an option on property. With the understanding that the Parks Board had the matter under consideration and that council was waiting for a report regarding the Pine Street recreational field, Alderman Follwell's motion was withdrawn.

Company Given Contract

Council approved of a recommendation from Gore and Storrie that the Kilmac Construction Company of Swastika be awarded the contract for the construction of sewers in the new Docter sub-division. Awarding of the contract will be subject to the mayor's approval following investigation.

Catherine Street in the vicinity of Octavia Street will be designated as a school zone commencing as of the September term, the matter being left in the hands of the traffic committee to erect the necessary signs.

Harold Carruthers, representative of the North American Life, appeared before council with respect to setting up a pension plan for city employees. Council later authorized the city comptroller to afford Mr. Carruthers the necessary information to enable his firm to submit a pension plan.

Will Purchase Sign

The city agreed to purchase an industrial sign from the Junior Chamber of Commerce at a cost of $260, the amount to be charged to the Industrial Commission budget. The sign is placed off the Trenton - Belleville highway and advertises the city as an industrial area.

Representatives of the local plumbers appeared before council asking adoption of the proposed plumbing code for this city. Council requested the solicitor to procure from the provincial department of health a copy of the proposed provincial code which will be incorporated in the local code which is also to include local regulations as recommended by local plumbers.

The Diamond Construction Company will be charged the full amount of the cost of repairs to the sanitary sewer on Sidney St. in front of the new Northern Electric plant. According to Alderman Hyde, chairman of Public Works, the contracting firm was responsible for damages to the sewer.

Streets to be Oiled

A list of streets to be oiled during the summer was submitted by Alderman Hyde, this to cost an estimated $4,500. In all 15,400 feet of streets will be oiled, including 4,100 feet of new street, 7,800 feet of streets to be built this year, and 3,500 feet of street which is now ready for re-oiling.

In order to save shade trees placed by residents of the area, hydro poles to serve Wellington Street, will be placed outside the sidewalks.

Replacement of the retaining wall at the rear of the local fire station came up for discussion under inquiries with several members of council urging its immediate replacement. Part of the retaining wall tumbled into the river some months ago.

Alderman Brown urged immediate replacement of the wall, claiming if this was not done the city might be liable for damages to adjoining property.

Must Take Down Tower

Alderman Duffy was of the opinion that the fire hall tower should be taken down as it was in a dangerous condition.

Alderman Lloyd as chairman of city property stated his committee was looking for possible sites for two new fire halls, one on either side of the river and inferred it would be a waste of money to place much expenditure on repairs to the fire hall. It was suggested that temporary repairs be made to the retaining wall.

Alderman Brown inquired regarding the re-location of stop signs in the Dufferin Ave., district and also regarding the possibility of getting water service on Wills Street.

Council approved of a motion submitted by Aldermen Duffy and Tice asking that the city police department divide their purchases of gasoline among various dealers in the city, and also agreed on a motion by Alderman Clarke that action against delinquents with the respect to changing of roof drains to storm sewers be deferred until October 1st. Reasons for the motion was that the work of changing the roof drains could not possibly be completed before that date.

Customs Excise Officers Form New Federation

On Saturday, the Customs Excise Officers from the ports of Picton, Trenton, Napanee and Belleville gathered in this city. The Bay of Quinte zone of the Civil Service Federation was organized and a board of officers duly elected.

Colonel E. A. Geen at Belleville, Mr. F. W. Sprague, Chief Officer at Corby's Distilleries and Mr. W. C. Cochrane, collector at Napanee, were acclaimed honorary Presidents. The executive staff comprised G. M. Miller, President, Max Matthews, Belleville, C. A. Worral, Picton, R. R. Robertson, Trenton, Vice Presidents and George Wardle of Belleville, Secretary Treasurer.

The afternoon was taken up with meetings of various committees and discussion of points of interest to the entire zone.

Dinner was served at the Hotel Quinte and the evening was spent with general organization of the zone.

Mr. H. A. Quinney, of Hamilton, Ontario Provincial Vice-President of the Customs Excise Officers' Association, fulfilled the duties of organizer and instituted by-laws and regulations of the zone.

Mr. J. H. Wood of Ottawa, National Secretary Treasurer of the Customs Excise Officers' Association, was guest speaker.

Mr. Wood's address on the origin, the work carried out and the results of the Federation, was greatly appreciated by all members present.

Max Matthews expressed the gratitude of the assembly to Mr. Quinney and Mr. Wood, for their kind co-operation and courtesy.

Mr. George Wardle of Belleville was unanimously chosen as the delegate to represent the local branch of the Customs and Excise Officers' Association at the annual convention to be held at the Chateau Laurier Hotel in Ottawa, in October 1948.

On conclusion of business, refreshments were served and the meeting adjourned.

Police Blotter

Disappearance of a $400 five-month-old Dalmation coach pup, owned by Mrs. Hermon McKibbon, R. R. 10 Picton, is being investigated by local police today.

Mrs. McKibbon stated she had been returning to Prince Edward county when she had been forced to stop her car on the Bay Bridge Road to permit a train to pass. While she was stopped the pup was permitted to get out of the car but when she was ready to proceed the valuable puppy was nowhere to be seen.

The owner is of the opinion that the puppy was picked up by another motorist who was also waiting for the train to pass.

Theft of a battery and electric starter from a boat at the Quinte Fisheries was reported yesterday, the theft having apparently taken place over the weekend. The boat was owned by Eric Gerow of Brighton.

The front door of the McIntosh Store on Front Street was found forced, but a check of the prem-

Immediate Construction of 103 Rental Homes in Annexed Area Approved by Council Members

The formal stamp of approval for the construction of 103 rental houses in the area north of the Docter sub-division was given by members of council Monday evening.

Official confirmation of signing of the contract with the construction firm was received in the city today and it is expected that an immediate commencement will be made in the construction of the rental houses. All homes will be five rooms with basement to rent at $37.50 per month.

Originally the plan had been to construct rental homes of several different sizes and to rent at various figures from $22.50 per month and up. However, when prices had been asked by Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation it was found impossible to construct houses to rent at the lower figure. Decision was made in favor of the basement homes with five rooms when it was found that a non-basement home with only four rooms would rent for nearly the same figure as the basement home.

"There was only $1.80 cents difference in the rental between the basement and non-basement home," stated Alderman Armstrong, chairman of the housing committee, "so we decided on the basement type home."

Alderman Duffy stated there were over 500 applications for rental homes. Slightly over 20 per cent of these had stated they could pay up to $40 per month rent. "The 103 rental homes at $37.50 per month will be acceptable although they will not take care of a certain class of veteran who wanted the lower rental homes."

Site of the 103 rental homes to be constructed is immediately to the east of the Stewart- Warner - Alemite plant, the dwellings to be built around an extension to Pine Street. The area extends to the easterly limits of the property recently annexed to the city and comprises a park of nearly two acres in extent.

Egress to the Docter sub-division will be provided by two streets which extend southward through the sub-division.

Under the agreement with the city, the municipality will provide lots and services for which Central Mortgage Housing will compensate the city to the extent of $600 per lot. Contract for the construction of the homes has been let to Moore and Sons of Ottawa. Gore and Storrie, Toronto, were given authority to prepare plans for sewers and other services.

The food committee under the capable direction of Mrs. Leda Gooch provided a splendid lunch to close the festivities.

Expect Violent Thunderstorms

Central Ontario's violent thunder storms and torrential rains were expected to continue through Tuesday and end Wednesday.

In the Toronto area Monday, a series of electrical storms caused slight property damage, street flooding and inconvenience to thousands of workers. Late Monday afternoon Stratford was drenched by a heavy rain of almost cloudburst proportions, accompanied by thunder and lightning. At almost the same time a raging windstorm tore roofs from houses and barns, smashed a cement-block chicken-house and uprooted trees at the York county town of Wexford.

Dominion weather forecasters at Malton, near Toronto, said the two-day spell of thunder and rain storms was due to slacken in the Windsor district early Tuesday. By Wednesday, the rest of Southern and Southwestern Ontario should see the last of them.

The disturbances were said caused by warm Gulf of Mexico air which came up the Eastern United States seaboard and clashed with cool Canadian air.

In and around Toronto, lightning ripped through one house, smashed bricks from chimneys of a school and store, struck a radio aerial and a hydro pole. A car taking an expectant mother to hospital stalled but was pushed out of water by a truck. Thousands were drenched by downpours. At suburban Leaside, school children were ferried across a miniature lake by boat.

Stratford's storm sewers were over-packed by heavy rain and a low-lying part of Erie Street was flooded.

..Bevin Delays Statement

Bevin meantime put off until Wednesday a statement on overall British policy in Germany which he had been scheduled to make before Parliament Monday.

The fact that Bevin postponed his parliamentary report until Wednesday indicated that the United States and Britain may be planning simultaneous statements then.

Stat Secretary Marshall is due to return to his desk Wednesday from hospital where he has been undergoing a routine physical check-up. Either he or Lovett may have some announcement on the subject at the usual State Department press conference that day.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, June 29 (CP) — Industrials and golds firmed in dull trading on Toronto Stock Exchange today. Base metals and western oils showed a weaker tone in spotty action.

Papers and refining oils moved upward on fractional gains in industrial groupings. International Paper rose 1 1-4 and Imperial Oil was up 1-4. A few utilities gained but interest lagged and the few issues trading moved in fractional range. Seagrams, Brown Pfd., C.P.A., Bank of Montreal and Abitibi were ahead.

Kerr Addison and La Luz strengthened in senior golds and Eldona sparked juniors, trading actively for a gain of 9 cents. Dulama, Chesterville, Bordulac and Little Long Lac were gainers. Preston, Kirkland Lake, Nicholson and Conwest were 1 to 5 cents easier.

Losses edged out gains in the base metals in spotty action. Waite Amulet, Gulf Lead, Eureka, Sherritt and Quebec Labrador dropped 2 to 10 cents. Silver Miller, Steep Rock, East Sullivan and New Calumet were ahead 2 to 5 cents. Consolidated smelters and International Nickel were up 1-2.

Pinnacle Street Residents Protest Placing of Meters

Residents of the Pinnacle St., area will protest the installation of parking meters in front of their residential property, it was learned at council, Monday evening when a petition bearing the names of 25 taxpayers was read objecting to the meter installation.

The petition was turned over to the local traffic committee for consideration but council later in the evening passed the by-law designating Pinnacle Street as a parking meter area.

"I don't think it is fair to residents to have parking meters installed in front of their property," stated Alderman Brown in support of the petition. "These people will have to pay for parking their cars in front of their own homes."

Alderman Tice was much of the same opinion, claiming that meters had been placed on Pinnacle Street too close to the railroad crossing, and also in an area in which "no parking" was designated. He asked why meters were being placed north on Pinnacle Street only as far as Campbell Street.

Claimed Placing Unfair

Alderman Lattimer as chairman of the traffic committee replied that meters had been placed according to recommendation of the committee. He stated it had not been planned to install meters on Pinnacle Street above Campbell Street at the present time.

Alderman Brown again came back with the protest that it was unfair to place meters in a residential area while Alderman Tice recommended meters not be placed in a residential area.

"Here we go again," replied Alderman Lattimer. "The placing of meters on Pinnacle Street was approved by the entire council. Don't let us now change our minds."

"If we in Belleville feel that we can live within ourselves and do not need the business of the surrounding district, then I say put the meters in," stated Alderman Lummiss. "If I had my say I would order all the meters taken out."

Lift Censorship On Landing of 800 Jews in Israel

The following story has just been passed by Israeli censorship which now has relaxed stops originally imposed on one factor of the Altalena ammunition ship incident.

By JAMES M. LONG

Tel Aviv June 28 — (Delayed) —(AP)—The tightest censorship since the truce began was clamped down last week on a story that 800 trained European and American Jews of military age were said to have landed in Israel from the Irgun Zvai Leumi arms ship Altalena.

These are the facts which censorship kept secret until now.

On the first day of the landing, the Associated Press was told by Irgun sources, by persons living in the landing area and by Hebrew correspondents who went to that area that 800 to 900 "new immigrants" were landed safely.

A representative of the United Nations Truce Commission told the Associated Press that reports of such a landing were being investigated.

Later, when the Israeli army had destroyed the Altalena in Tel Aviv Bay, Menachem Beigin, commander of Irgun, declared in a broadcast that the ship had brought in 800 men and six women.

Dispatches from Marseille, whence the Altalena embarked, said the ship sailed to Palestine with 800 young Jews aboard.

Jerry Salzman, 25-year-old American who came over aboard the Altalena and was wounded, said:

"We were joined aboard the Altalena by 20 Englishmen and about 800 European D.P.s when the ship stopped at Marseille."

None of this information was permitted either to be transmitted in foreign press dispatches nor printed in Israeli newspapers here.

Only once was the mention of the 800 allowed — and that after an overnight hold-up of the story by censorship.

STRIKING DOCK WORKERS WILL RETURN TO JOBS

Faced With Govt. Determined to Smash 16-Day-Old Work Stoppage

London, June 29. (CP)—State of emergency regulations aimed at releasing Britain's strike-bound economy, may not be used in view of the London dock workers vote today to return to work tomorrow.

Informed government sources said the virtually unlimited powers authorized under the King's proclamation yesterday, may not be put into force.

More than 5,000 London dock workers voted to end the 16-day work stoppage which pinched off London's food supplies. There were only about 100 dissenters.

At another meeting, 2,500 dockers and stevedores at the Surrey Commercial docks, unanimously favored an end to the strike which began when 11 dockers demanded higher pay for handling a "dirty cargo" of zinc oxide.

Declaration of a state of emergency and the broadcast appeal last night by Prime Minister Attlee, were believed to have hastened the collapse of the strike which was not authorized by union leaders.

But some 12,000 of the 16,000 Merseyside workers at Liverpool and Birkenhead remained out today along with about 18,000 in London. It was expected that the Mersey workers who walked out yesterday in sympathy, would follow London's lead.

Two thousand servicemen were unloading perishable food from 15 ships in London where the Cabinet is meeting to discuss the problem. A further 1,000 troops were standing by to help if the government decides it is necessary to extend the operation.

The state of emergency was declared by the King under a 1920 law used only once before in peacetime —in the general strike of 1936. He signed the proclamation at Holyrood House, Edinburgh, where he is expected to remain in the light of the vote to return to work.

Arthur Deakin, the Dockers' Union Chief, said the back-to-work vote was a "sound decision, and the only possible one."

The strike has delayed food deliveries and forced reduction of the meagre weekly ration of 10 pence (17 cents) worth of fresh meat. It also delayed shipment of exports, holding up the national drive for economic recovery.

The stoppage is believed to have cost Britain more than 2,000,000 working hours and lost the strikers some £300,000 ($1,200,000) in wages.

ments with these railways, their subsidiaries and their ancillaries," the letter said. "The employees have voted almost unanimously to withdraw from the service if no satisfactory agreement is effected.

"The negotiating committee has considered the matter in the light of this expressed intention, and I am directed to advise you that a concerted and peaceful withdrawal from the service will take place on Thursday, July 15th, 1948 at 6.00 a.m., Regional Standard Time. Employees in train service will withdraw at the end of their runs."

"The negotiating committee is not unmindful that, at the instance of the Minister of Labor mediation proceedings have been made available to the parties. If by such or other means it appears to the committee that a settlement can be reached, the committee will gladly give its cooperation up to the date indicated for the withdrawal from service. However, the exigencies of the situation are such that the committee cannot accept the responsibility for any further delay in the matter thereafter."

In an accompanying press release, Mr. Hall elaborated on the statement in the letter concerning the strike vote.

"Only a comparative handful," he said "voted against the strike and there were a few spoiled ballots. Never before has such emphasis been given to the strong feeling of the employees concerning deterioration of their living standards and their relatively unfair treatment compared to workers in most other industries regarding wage increases.

He said the negotiating committee was remaining in session to work out details about the conduct of the strike.

Judge Cameron Heads Board

The announcement was made on the eve of resumption of mediation proceedings by a board headed by Mr. Justice J. C. A. ed in a majority report recommending a seven-cent wage increase, was re-constituted by the Federal Labor Minister to avert a nation-wide strike. The conciliation board's report had been rejected by the brotherhoods and the unions had begun taking a strike vote.

Another mediation board, hearing a similar dispute between the railways and the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway Employees and Other Transport Workers (C.C.L.) suspended sittings several weeks ago when it was unable to settle the disagreement.

The C.B.R.E. officials announced some time ago that their membership of 28,000 had voted 97 per cent in favor of a strike but the Canadian union has set no strike date.

Unions Involved

The International Brotherhoods' letter was addressed to Vice-President N. B. —Walton of Canadian National Railways, Vice-President D. I. McNeill of Canadian Pacific Railway, H. D. Malcolmson, President and General Manager of Toronto, Hamilton and Buffalo Railway, and A. Freeman, General Manager of the Ontario Northland Railway.

Vacation Responsibilities

Holidays are here and there will be more children and boys and girls on the streets. Accordingly this is a time when the lesson of taking care should be deeply impressed. With "school out" everyone knows there is greater danger for with children at play there often is a certain risk which should be avoided.

After the work of the classroom the outdoor freedom will seem so different as there is appeal to the boys' and girls' need for relaxation of mind and body from the supreme tasks of making a success of the school year.

Wherever the children are, whether on the beach, near the family cottage, in the canoe or skiff, in bathing, or riding on the highways there is a certain danger. With those on holidays there is the possibility that the attention is absorbed in the sense of being free. Such thoughts should not however cause anyone to let down any of the safeguards which are stressed at other times of the year — the need of self-protection, by watching, looking and listening and by observing caution in whatever situation one is found. So everyone ought to be impressed with the need of playing safe and of avoiding unnecessary risks. Traffic rules count for the motorist and not only for him or her but for the pedestrian who should play safe whether child or adult.

It has been pointed out that traffic rules are made both for the driving public and the pedestrian public because there lurks danger in the streets which bear more and heavier traffic than in other days. That is necessary for the safety of the weaker and the person who is riding.

It does not pay to take a risk whether one is driving or walking or playing. Taking a chance means to throw down the safeguards, which have been gradually developed for him who drives and him who walks as modern motor traffic developed.

It must be remembered that there are more people travelling in cars and buses and trains than ever before and he and she who walk must pay regard to this greatly increased traffic which has developed in the past few years.

It will be a happy vacation for everyone if all who use the roads and streets do so with care in all possible situations. For an accident happens in the twinkling of an eye. Leave nothing to chance. That is a motto worth following. It helps the one who adopts this motto and all those who meet that person on the travelled roads.

Textiles From Ground Nuts

Plans to produce Ardil, Britain's new "ground nut" cloth, at the rate of 10,000 tons yearly have been announced in London. This synthetic material, which is claimed to have all the advantages and none of the disadvantages of wool, has been recognized as one of the greatest textile discoveries of the century. Moth-proof and crease-proof, it is resilient, soft and warm to the touch. It dyes like wool. It absorbs moisture like wool. Although Ardil is expected to be cheaper than wool, it will be complementary rather than competitive. For example, it can be used to the greatest advantage 50-50 with the natural material, the resultant fabric being scarcely distinguishable from 100 per cent wool. It can also be mixed with cotton and rayon, changing the character of the final fabric and adding warmth and crease resistance to the cloth.

Carrying Spray

Scientific ideas are catching. In the United States and Canada planes have been used in recent years to spray crops and safeguard them from insect pests. Now the United Kingdom has had the first demonstration of a new method of weed and pest control from the air by the use of a helicopter. There was a new technique used in the British experiment near Cambridge. The slipstream of air moving down from the helicopter's rotor at a speed of 20 miles an hour is used to carry the spray into the crops. Rebound from the stream of air striking the ground enables the spray to reach the underside of the leaves which up to now have been so difficult to protect adequately. Every machine is flown very low, coming down to within one or two feet of the plants. It can travel sideways, backwards or forwards with equal ease or hover for several minutes over one spot.

Friendliness

"While most of us understand the importance of the tourist trade, not all of us fully comprehend our personal responsibility in it. We talk a great deal about providing better highways, better eating and sleeping accommodation and so on for the tourists. There are important, but they are only half the story," says Cornwall Standard Freeholder.

"The American tourist is generally a friendly individual, honestly interested in what he sees on his trip, and he responds quickly to acts of courtesy and friendliness. Those who do not know Canadians well do not understand that generally speaking, we are more reserved than the Americans. We don't go out of our way to shake hands with a stranger, or bid him welcome. Let's be frank about it — very often we act as though we weren't glad to see him at all; we'll take his money, but we'll be darned if we'll give him so much as a friendly smile or a welcome in return.

"The Jaycees Courtesy to Tourists week, as we understand it, is aimed at breaking down this attitude. It isn't directed so much at the tradespeople, the proprietors of tourist cabins and so on, who come regularly into contact with the tourists. If they know their business, they'll be courteous. But there are many more of us, who perhaps have a chance to get into conversation with a tourist a few times during the summer. He'll stop to ask us the way, or to get some advice or information. We have a chance then either to make a friend or a disgruntled visitor."

Monuments to Virtue

Mr. Harry G. Archibald, fiery M.P. from Skeena, wants a monument erected to Dan McGrew, the famed Yukon character of Robert W. Service's poem. He complains that "we erect all the monuments to virtue. There is nothing to mark those who lived a life of sin."

Mr. Archibald may have intended a witticism; actually, he expressed a profound truth. While history, are and literature do keep alive the memory of evil persons, such as the Borgias, Catharine the Great, Robespierre, Hitler and others of like ilk, the real monuments are to those who have done good, who have contributed to the welfare of their countries and to the world. —Windsor Star.

Enterprise Made the West

It was the determination, the courage and the initiative of the pioneers which made the West. That was freedom of enterprise in operation. A man and his family were admired for their thrift, and the incentive which they displayed in their battle with Nature, and for the measure by which they overcame obstacles and faced vicissitudes. The West was known as the land of opportunity, in which the principles of democracy held sway and a man was free to choose his calling, work or shirk, and initiative was not limited except by the willingness and incentive of the individual.

Men believed then —as most men believe today — that democracy was the best system. The pioneer was not beguiled by the gaudy promises of Statism, for the thing which they sought most, and guarded most closely, was freedom. They knew that if their traditional economic and political liberties were infringed their opportunities would be lessened, and they would be poor indeed. — Stratford Beacon-Herald.

It is the passions that wear, the appetites that grind out the force of life. Excitement in the higher realm of thought and feeling does not wear out or waste men. The moral sentiments nourish and feed us. — Henry Ward Beecher.

Of all vain things excuses are the vainest. — Buxton.

The Packsack of Gregory Clark

Now that the holiday season is at hand, it is possible once more for us to resume our studies of the profoundest political problem of our time: can human beings be persuaded to co-operate in brotherly love and mutual respect?

The public highway is our clinic. Two or three driving a car on a highway should be enough to shake the convictions even of a Communist.

Speed up, cut in, chivvy, chisel, cheat, crowd, bluff, toot, threaten; man is a competitive creature to his roots. And on the highway, in all its naked truth, this basic fact is revealed as perhaps nowhere else. In crowds on foot, man has learned to conceal his true competitive character and do not shove too hard. Only the large and tough dare do so. But on wheels, even little whiffets of men are liberated in their essential character. Living in social communities for a couple of thousand years has not dampened in the slightest the deep ardor in all men to get ahead of the guy. Even to the extent of one car length in a mile-long queue travelling fifty miles an hour.

However, the highly individualistic quality of men is revealed not merely in the ones who want to get ahead, who speed, cut in and chivvy. There are those slow-going ones too. With the whole highway writhing and twisting with traffic, you might suppose that the slow-pokes would be imbued with a little respect for the desires of their fellow-travellers so noisily expressed all around them, mile after mile. But not they. Thirty-five miles per hour is their speed. And with sere indifference, they poke along.

There's the problem. Some want to take it easy. But both are filled with the determination to have it their way; and both are consumed by a visible irritation with the other. Man is a competitive animal, even in wanting to dawdle and there is the true knot in the human tangle.

Warmth May Menace Continents

From "Newsweek" Magazine, New York

In the Spring as giant glaciers crunch down to the fogbound West coast of Greenland, chunks break off with a violent roar and float away as icebergs. Each year some 8,000 icebergs are born, from little "growlers" to huge masses the size of city blocks. They drift up the coastline, toward the Arctic side of Greenland and down the Canadian coast of Baffin Bay with the Labrador current. About 500 a year survive long enough to menace North Atlantic shipping, and some range as far south as Bermuda (1,800 miles from the Arctic) before they melt away.

One such iceberg sank the Titanic, with the loss of 1,513 lives, in April, 1912. That disaster resulted in the International Ice Patrol, operated on behalf of fourteen maritime nations by the United States Coast Guard. Usually the observers have plenty of sightings to report in their priority radio messages. But when the Coast Guard's planes and vessels ventured out for the new season in May they were surprised to find an unusually small number of icebergs.

No sightings might be good news for seafarers, but the mysterious disappearance was a challenge the Coast Guard would not pass up. To track the problem to its source, the cutter Mendota, carrying a team of Weather Bureau experts, recently nosed out of the American base at Argentia, Newfoundland, in a high gale. For three weeks the observers would pry into the forbidding 1,400-mile West coast of Greenland to see if icebergs were still being produced.

A tentative theory was that the lack of bergs resulted from a series of mild Winters in Greenland — last Winter was 10 degrees warmer than normal. In Los Angeles, Dr. Hans Ahlmann, director of the Swedish Geographical Institute, reported an "enormous" rise in average Arctic temperatures since 1900. If the trend continued globally to the extent of melting the Antarctic ice regions as well as the main Greenland ice cap, he warned, ocean levels would some day rise to inundate the coastal plains of the continents. Already, the increased navigable season around Spitsbergen and Northern Russia was a matter of "world strategic importance".

STRENGTH FOR THE DAY

By EARL L. DOUGLASS, D.D.

GOD'S PRESENTS

A college student who is not very good at spelling recently wrote in an English composition, "God is conspicuous in the world by his presents." He meant to say, of course, that Gad was conspicuous by his "presence." But the original statement, thought unintentional, is true: God is conspicuous in a world by his presents.

God's presents are indeed conspicuous in the world. We live surrounded by them. If we are fortunate enough to live in a place where men have not destroyed the beauties of nature and replaced them with manmade ugliness, we see God's presents in our physical surroundings. Majestic mountains, cool and sparkling lakes, fertile green fields, rolling forests — all these are God's gifts. And the lovelier, though smaller, delights are his presents too — dogwood in bloom, the velvet brilliance of the cardinal, the appleblossoms, the patterns of the frost. These are presents in the truest sense, freely given to us, to be taken and enjoyed.

Even if our home is not in the lovely countryside, however, God's presents are still conspicuous everywhere. His best gifts, indeed, are not reserved for nature, but are in our fellow human beings. The love of our wives and sweethearts, the loyalty of our friends, the affection of our children, the generosity of our parents — these too are his gifts. Truly, God is conspicuous by his presents.

Mrs. Brouillette Sent for Trial On Murder Count

Toronto, June 29 — (CP) — Yvonne Brouillette, 34, charged with the hatchet slaying June 12 of Frederick Farrell, was committed for trial here Monday.

At an earlier hearing last Thursday, Farrell's landlord quoted him as saying he was going to kill Mrs. Brouillette because "she drank up all my hard-earned money."

The landlord, Nicholas Tennyson, told of hearing sounds of a quarrel and later finding Farrell's mutilated body in Mrs. Brouillette's ground-floor room.

Police Constable Ross Galbraith testified Monday Mrs. Brouillette had said: "Yes, I did it and I'm glad. He won't bother me any more."

P. C. Galbraith said he had visited the house earlier in the evening in response to a complaint of a "noisy party."

Farrell had told him: "It was just a drunken argument."

The constable answered a second call shortly after midnight.

"It was a horrible sight," he said, "like nothing I've ever seen in my life."

Farrell was "badly hacked up." Nearby he found an axe, about 14 inches long and covered with blood.

Motorist Enters Not Guilty Plea

Brockville, June 29 — (CP) — Walter Seward of Portland, Ont., Monday entered a plea of not guilty on a charge of dangerous driving causing the death of a fishing guide last week. He elected trial by jury and will be tried at the General Sessions of the Peace at Brockville.

In a preliminary court appearance, police said the guide, Delbert Hockey, was cleaning fish in front of a parked car when struck by the Seward vehicle and killed.

Seward told the court he thought the parked car was moving towards him. He admitted he had earlier consumed a pint of beer. Although Seward claimed he had applied his brake, Provincial Constable Kenneth Dennis said no skid marks were noticeable.

Magistrate Wright stated he found sufficient evidence to place the accused on trial.

DON'T BLOW BUT JUST SNIFFLE

Sniffle is the word for it — the act of drawing air audibly up the nose, smelling, snuffing.

In a comprehensive report of scientific research in the past twenty years, on the nature, cause and cure of "the common cold," published the other day, it was definitely — I don't profess to understand it, but somehow the use of this silly term definite or definitely enables you to get over a lot of weak spots without risk of disturbing your audience —definitely affirmed that the best way to deal with this indefinable ailment is simple enough: always carry 1½ dozen handkerchiefs.

Acute rhinitis, coryza, distemper, acute "catarrh," "grip," snuffles, sniffles, running at the nose, cri or—go on, you needn't hesitate to show your disregard for the rights and safety of others by calling it a simple "cold in the head" — there are millions of others who do so and get away with it, so why not you?

As for handkerchiefs, one may be convenient to have handy when you have a watery drip-drip which you just can't manage otherwise, but for such purpose it is equally convenient, cheaper and more sanitary to carry and use paper of tissue and destroy or discard it immediately.

The habit of blowing the nose is unaccountable, I believe, for much of the sinus trouble of adults and much of the acute ear ache, otitis media, middle ear inflamation, gathering in the ear, mastoiditis and impaired hearing of children. If the nasal passages are even partially obstructed blowing the nose tends to force germ-laden secretions into the sinuses or through the Eustachian tube into the middle ear cavity. If the nasal passages are not obstructed, blowing the nose with one or both nostrils pinched shut has a similar effect.

Therefore I say it is much better for child or adult to go with a noseful than it is to blow the nose, in any circumstance. Don't blow but just sniffle.

Sniffling or trying to draw the secretion back through the nasal passages, whence it may be swallowed or expectorated as may be the individual's natural preference or convenience is the natural way to deal with the condition and it favors normal drainage from sinuses and middle ear cavities by producing negative pressure (suction) in the nasal cavity and naso-pharynx.

If or when discharge from the nose cannot be managed in this way — that is, by snuffling or sniffling — it is still a bad habit to blow the nose, in the ordinary way. Instead hold paper, or tissue or handkerchief in hand under but not in contact with the nose and take a full breath through open mouth and then expire or breathe out through the nose. But never forcibly. That's all. Gently wipe away any moisture left on the surface, and resume snuffling or sniffling where you left off.

Man is the only animal that regularly drives infective material into the nasal accessory sinuses and tympanic spaces. Nose blowing is one of civilized man's bad habits.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Not Painless

I am a great Brady fan although I don't always agree with you. You say "It is Stupid to Suffer from Piles" — I would like to add it is also stupid to believe it is painless as you would have us believe.

(Mrs. O. W. F.)

Answer — I say physicians skilled in the ambulant (office, injection) method can treat most cases of internal or bleeding piles in this way with success and without giving the patient enough discomfort to complain about. This is what hundreds of persons who have had such treatment tell me. Send a stamped self addressed envelope and ask in writing (do not use clipping, please) for the pamphlet It is Stupid to Suffer from Piles. If you ask for my pile treatment, remedy or cure, you'll be disappointed.

Wheat To Eat

Is it possible to change the eating habis of people in heir thirties or forties from refined white flour, refined sugars and starches to whole wheat, etc?

(Mrs. H. L. A.)

Answer — Possible but it takes some strength of character to introduce unrefined wheat into the diet even now and then or here and there.

Sunday School Picnics

CHRIST CHURCH

Through the kindness of the Kiwanis Club, Christ Church and St. George's Sunday Schools held their annual picnic on Monday at Kiwanis Camp on Roblin Lake. A record attendance of children and parents necessitated the chartering of an extra bus. Perfect weather and an ideal situation, plus the co-operation of the entire parish, made this outing a great success. Superintendents George Meades and Oliver Owen were in charge, assisted by Ray Lennox with his megaphone. Leslie Lennox and Harry Lennox were in charge of the refreshment booth, with Chris. Legate and Horace Wright assisting. Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Button were assisting, and "Ted" Folwell, a former superintendent, was at everyone's beck and call. Mr. W. P. Flindall and Mr. J. Payne acted as referees on the finishing line for the sports. All these officials were supported by the teaching staff with the Rector, Rev. J. Grant Sparling, and his assistant, Rev. Henry Hill. Mr. T. R. Slavin supervised the beach.

Races for all ages, swimming, diving and boating, plus an abundance of ice cream and soft drinks, made the afternoon pass very quickly. Winners at the races were as follows:

Blazers Presented To Winning Bowling Teams

Members of the Belleville Bowling Club team who last year defeated the best teams from Ontario and Quebec to win the Governor General's Lawn Bowling Trophy, were officially honored for their achievement last evening when on behalf of the city they were presented with appropriate blazers.

Members of the winning teams who were presented with the blazers were G. L. Edwards, lead; H. W. Hanton, second; L. E. McLean, vice; and H. C. Argue, skip. The second team was made up of Gerald Hyde, lead; Austin Watkin, second; R. L. Zufelt, vice, and A. E. Wonnacott, skip.

Prior to the presentation of the blazers, Mayor D. L. Storey recounted qualifications necessary for a team to compete for the Governor General's trophy, noting that the two teams from Belleville last year had rolled up the highest score of any team since the inception of the contest. On the greens of the Ottawa club, the local team had defeated the Verdun club of Quebec by a score of 52 to 26.

"In recognition of the publicity brought to the City of Belleville through winning the Governor General's Cup, I ask you to accept these blazers on behalf of the city," stated Mayor Storey as the blazers were presented to members of the winning team by Ald. Tice.

Later council voted a grant of $100 to the local bowling club to assist in defraying the expenses of entertaining a British Columbia bowling team who will visit Ontario this season. The visiting team will be entertained at a banquet with a friendly game to be played on the local bowling greens. Bowlers from District 15 will take part.

Train More Nurses But Need Outruns Output of Schools

By KAY REX
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Sackville, N. B., June 29 (CP) — Canada's nursing schools are turning out moe nurses than ever before — but they can't keep up with the demands of this country's rapidly expanding health and hospital programs.

What's the problem uppermost in the minds of the more than 600 delegates to the Canadian Nurses Association biennial meeting now in progress at Mount Allison University.

And they tackled it Monday at the opening of the four-day convention when they approved a resolution that the C. N. A. send a delegation to interview the federal government about establishment of a nursing division within the health and welfare department.

The delegation would also ask the federal government "to require provincial governments to use a portion of their health grants for specific purposes which will conserve the present supply of nursing service and produce more nursing service."

At a meeting Monday night Ethel Johns of Montreal also referred to the "increased burden" which new hospital and health services would put on the nursing profession.

She spoke during a special convocation when she received an Honorary Degree of Doctor of Laws from Mount Allison.

In conferring the degree, Dr. W. T. Ross Flemington, president of the University, paid tribute to the "great contribution" Miss Johns has made to Canadian nursing.

Care of White Hair

In the funny old days of the sheltered woman, when Ma had to ask Pa if she could have a new black silk dress, the first grey hairs sent a woman into a dither. Her only means of getting anything she wanted was through charm or wheedling. Different days, different ways. Whether she has grey hair or locks of the virgin color, a woman nowadays keeps right on going about her business, whatever it may be.

If it were not for tiny pigment cells inside each hair shaft we would all be white-headed. A shaft pushes forth from the scalp in overlapping scales. It is like a glass tube; the pigment within the tube determines the color. Under the microscope, the granules can be seen. For some unknown reason these cells can disappear, when they do, you have a silvery top. They first vanish close to the scalp. A single shaft can be white close to the head and yet retain the original color at the end. Interesting, eh?

White hair is fashionable

Next to hair of perfect auburn shade, and locks as black as the raven's wing ,white hair is considered the most beautiful by artists and pulchritude experts. Definitely it is fashionable at the present time. Dyeing will probably go on forever, since there are women who hate to carry a silvery crown, but it is not such a frenzy as it has been.

If the entire growth is snow white, some conscientious specialists will refuse to darken it. They realize that the customer is in for touch-up treatments every six weeks or so, as the white threads emerge from the scalp. Pepper and salt hair is difficult to treat because white and dark hairs may come out a different color, though an expert will get around that problem.

Only the blandest soaps should be used for the shampoo; they must be free of alkali. Cream shampoos are gaining in popularity, are easily rinsed away.

White hair is inclined to be dry. By the time the snowy thatch is with one, the sebaceous glands of the scalp are less active. It may be advisable to use mineral oil the night before the shampoo, frictioning it well into the scalp, rubbing it on the ends of the hair. When arranging the coiffure, a little brilliantine can be put on the comb or brush.

Some women find consolation in having a bluing rinse after the shampoo. The results are becoming to some, do not flatter others. If the complexion has remained fresh, delicate and blooming, the white growth is to be preferred, as it gives accent to the beauty of the skin.

Time was when the permanent wave was likely to discolor white hair. There is no danger of that happening now, if the operator is experienced and conscientious.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Husband-Hunting Widows

There have been a great many letters lately from widows who frankly state that they are looking for a husband and want to know how they can find possible candidates.

Says one, "How is a widow to meet a good man? Do you know of a nice widower about 53?"

Writes another, "I am very lonely and would like to meet a very interesting man. Could you please give me some addresses?"

And still another, "I am a widow of 43 with three sons, 15, 13 and 10. I would like to meet a nice man. Could you tell me how to go about it?"

Now let me say once again what I have often said before, and that is that I have no list of men who might make good husbands for widows or anybody else; and that even if I had one, I would not give it out because I am wholly against the idea of making acquaintances in any such casual fashion.

That being that, the question boils down to what ways there may be in which single, widowed, or divorced women who would like to be married can meet men of good character who may be looking for wives.

The answer to that question is that there is no safe way I know of to find friends except in such approved channels as meeting them either through acquaintances one may already have, or through some reputable club or other organization which has both men and women members. There are many such groups today and it should not be hard for anyone who wants to join one to look around their own communities and find out what they are. I would go even further than that, and say that if a person is unable to find in his community the type of interesting club he or she would like to join, it should be perfectly possible for that person to start one himself. Every club that has ever existed had to begin somewhere with a few members, and since there are so many lonely people in the world looking for companionship, nothing should be easier than to begin a new group.

There are all sorts of ways to start one. If your church hasn't got the kind of club you want, begin it there. Or, if your town has a YWCA or a YMCA, find out what the group activities are there, and if there are none for your age group, ask if one can't be organized. It's surprisingly easy to get something started if you have the energy and initiative to begin, and once a beginning has been made, it rolls along like a snowball.

In a town on Long Island something over a year ago a middle-aged women of initiative and energy organized "The 45 Club". Not long ago she wrote me a letter about the club's program.

"Everything has been going along so well," she said, "and we really do have some wonderful good times. We hold two meetings a month and they are all well attended. Our membership consists of people who enjoy getting together and like the companionship that the club offers. It is surprising how many people there are who are just plain lonely and need the club to give them something to look forward to. I have certainly gained a great deal of this life's joy by organizing this club and I am very proud to be the chairman of it."

At the twice-a-month meetings the members play cards, games and dance, with an entertainment committee taking care of the program. Meetings are held in the parish hall of a local church part of the time, and in a public hall on the other occasions.

This Long Island club continues to be open to men and women 45 years of age or over, and I will be very glad to tell any who are interested how they can get in touch with the chairman.

The real point is that if a project of this kind can be put over so successfully in one community, it can be done in any other town where there is a man or woman of equal imagination and initiative. And it's a whole lot more satisfactory than hunting friends through the mails.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

One Way to Make a Friendship Grow

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. My daughter (20) and I (40) are spending the first two weeks in August at a seashore summer-resort hotel. My daughter's boy-friend lives about twenty-five miles from our hotel, and as my daughter knows his mother, who has said she and her family are very anxious to meet me, we will be invited to visit them, and probably to dinner. Then what would be our obligations to them. . . . should I invite them to the hotel to dinner, or perhaps send flowers on our way home after our stay?

2. When we are home should my daughter write them a thank-you note? We very much want to do the proper thing.

L. E. B.

1. If their dinner invitation arrives quite early in your stay, as it probably will, I suggest that you plan to offer them some kind of return hospitality quite soon afterward, either at your hotel or in some other attractive place in the resort or at some nearby place .It might be dinner, or luncheon, or perhaps some special occasion which they might particularly enjoy (tennis matches, for example, or an athletics meet, or a garden tour, with perhaps tea afterward, or a Summer theatre performance with dinner before). In other words, since you and your daughter will not be on your home-grounds, you should take advantage of offering hospitiality to these kind friends of some special feature of this summer resort. And taking advantage of this delightfully-accessible opportunity to know these people better and to have fun with them would be more interesting than just sending them flowers.

2. Yes . . . the way of courtesy and friendship-making is for both you and your daughter to write a note of appreciation to the boy's mother, thanking her for her kind invitation and for the happy visit with her and her family. Also if you found interest in cementing the friendship, invite her and her husband to come to see you in your home-city.

Bride's Sister Should be Featured as the RealHonor Attendant

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Is it correct for me to have both a maid of honor and a matron of honor at my church wedding? I am to have six bridesmaids, but I want to give special honor to both my sister (my only sister, and married) and a dearly-loved and life-time friend of mine (unmarried) several years younger than my sister, and several inches shorter.) Will you please give me your advice about this plan?.

Esther G.

An excellent idea, entirely correct, but needs thoughtful planning. Since your sister is in closer relationship to you, and will undoubtedly be your witness, she should be considered the real honor attendant: that is, she should walk alone in the processional, directly ahead of you and your father or whoever is to escort you up the aisle. During the ceremony she stands next to you, at your left, holds you rbouquet and, after the ceremony, returns your bouquet; as you turn for the decessional she adjusts your train and veil; in the receiving-line she stands next to you, at your right. These plans correctly point up your sister's important place as real honor attendant. Your girl friend, the maid of honor, because she will be of secondary importance, and also, practically, since she is of different age and height from your sister, should wald alon in the processional, preceeding the matron of honor; during the ceremony she should stand at the left of the matron of honor, holding her bouquet while your sister holds yours; and, in the receiving-line, she stands at your sister's right.

Your Fruit will make 50% MORE Jam or Jelly WITHOUT RISK OF FAILURES if you use CERTO

It's simply wonderful . . . the difference in jam and jelly-making when you use Certo. You get jams and jellies that look better, taste better, are better . . . and much more of them. That's because Certo is "fruit pectin" — the natural substance in fruit that makes jams "jam" and jellies "jell" — extracted and refined ready for your use.

THE CERTO BOIL IS SO SHORT

With Certo you boil only one-to-two minutes for jams — a half-minute-to-a-minute for jellies. NO prolonged, tedious boiling to make sure your jam or jelly will set. Certo makes all fruits set "just right". This extremely Certo short boil means:

1 You get 50% more jam or jelly because practically none of your precious fruit juice is boiled away.

2 The time you spend is cut down to a fraction.

3 The natural colour and taste of the fresh fruit are retained. The Certo boil is too short to dull the one or spoil the other.

If you are only a beginner, don't worry. You'll have no failures if you follow exactly the recipes provided with Certo. Since different fruits need different handling, there's a separate, kitchen-tested recipe for each one.

BE ECONOMICAL — BE SMART — MAKE JAM AND JELLY THE QUICK EASY MODERN CERTO WAY. ASK YOUR GROCER FOR CERTO TODAY.

A Product of General Foods

A pound of jam or jelly made with Certo contains no more sugar than a pound made the old, long-boil way.

LAUNCH LARGEST TANKER EVER BUILT IN CANADIAN SHIPYARD

Imperial Sarnia, Canada's largest oil tanker built in a Canadian shipyard, is shown as it takes to the water in a spectacular broadside launching at Collingwood, Ont. The 6,500-ton ship, 390 feet long and 53 feet wide, was launched by Miss Beverley Hewetson, daughter of H.H. Hewetson, president of Imperial Oil Ltd., who smashed a bottle of Canadian champagne over the ship's bow. The tanker, which will be completed in September will go into service between Sarnia, Hamilton, Toronto and Fort William.

No Parallel to Story of Nazi Perfidy

By Elwyn Jones, British M.P., in London Calling

An Englishman writing about 250 years ago defined an ambassador as "an honest man sent to lie abroad for the good of his country." Diplomatic cunning, and even deceit, have not been a German monopoly. But I think there can be no parallel in history to the tale of perfidy which the American prosecution at Nuremberg has been unfolding in the trial of eight heads of the German foreign office and of fourteen other leading figures in the former Nazi state.

It is unfortunate that this important war-crimes trial at Nuremberg, which covers a canvas almost as great as that of the international trial of Goering and his confederates, should not have opened until about two-and-a-half years since the European war ended. It is unfortunate, also, that this trial, which will apply international law and will deal with the vast panorama of international events from 1933 to 1945, should be before American judges only. The need of an effective international tribunal has not been acknowledged by the governments of the world.

I find in the reading of General Telford Taylor's opening of this Wilhelmstrasse Case a clue to much of the present difficulty in international relations. I suppose lack of trust between governments is a principal cause of present tensions.

One of the reasons for this is the experience of Europe and the world from 1933 on. Overnight, peoples living at peace and desiring only peace, and assumed by the governments of Germany, Japan and Italy that peace would continue, found themselves the victims of ruthless aggression, and their homes the scene of brutal total war. The German diplomats of the Wilhelmstrasse played a key role in this conspiracy. For it was they who engaged in the diplomatic manoeuvres and stratagems which were used to initiate aggressive wars and to produce conditions favorable to a German victory.

Ribbentrop has already been hanged for his part in this conspiracy, which involved the death in battle of over 10,000,000 people, quite apart from the millions murdered in gas-chambers and death-pits. Had this new trial not taken place, there might well have been a tendency to write off the tragedy as the work of just a few high Nazis—Hitler, Himmler, Ribbentrop, and a few others. Now the American prosecution seeks to establish that all the leading diplomats of Germany joined in the murderous policies of the Third Reich — and supported them actively to the very last.

General Taylor's case is that Hitler and Ribbentrop relied to a very great extent on the professional German diplomats. They chose Baron Weizsacker, aristocratic prototype of the career diplomat, to be State Secretary, and the co-defendant, Woermann, to be Chief of the Political Department of the Foreign Office.

There are other highly placed diplomats in the famous Nuremberg dock. There is Karl Ritter, "Ambassador for Special Arrangements" in the Wilhelmstrasse, and Von Erdmansdorff, at one time Minister to Hungary (his title "Von" — unlike Ribbentrop's — is genuine). With them are Wilhelm Keppler and Edmund Veesenmayer. All these men are charged with crimes against peace. These men negotiated treaties and gave assurances to countries like Norway, Holland and Belgium, deliberately, in order to allay their suspicions and to cloak the work of the Fifth Column, which another defendant, Ernst Bohle, was creating throughout the world. We know now that terrorism, kidnapping, blackmail and murder were weapons in the Nazi diplomatic arsenal. In this grim game, diplomats co-operated with SS men—and this is the reason why two SS chiefs, Berger and Schellenberg, are in the dock with the leading diplomats.

Schellenberg is charged at Nuremberg, inter alia, with responsibility for the notorious Venlo incident. On November 9, 1939, two British officials, Best and Stevens, together with a Dutch officer, were lured to Venlo, a Dutch village near the Dutch-German border, to a rendezvous with Schellenberg and his subordinates. There they were seized, and hurried across the border into Gestapo HQ for questioning. The statements they were alleged to have made, said to contain evidence that Holland had violated her neutrality, were used as a pretext for the German invasion.

That murder became a part of Nazi diplomacy is not news. What is new in this Wilhelmstrasse Case is the evidence as to the alleged involvement of these diplomats in war crimes and crimes against humanity. They are charged with bringing pressure to bear on Axis satellites like Hungary and Rumania to fall in line with German practices, and, in particular, with spreading and murderous anti-Jewish program of the Third Reich beyond Germany's borders.

Thus the inter-departmental conference of January 20, 1942, at which the general plan for the extermination of European Jewry was outlined, was attended by Weizsacker's subordinate, Under-Secretary Luther. The Foreign Office, through defendants Weizsacker and Steenfracht, had much to do with carrying through the extermination plans. Thus, on March 20, 1942, the defendants Weizsacker and Woermann informed the SS leader Eichmann, of Jewish extermination, that there were no objections on the part of the German Foreign Office to the deportation of 6,000 French and Jews to the Auschwitz death-camp.

On April 23, 1944, the defendant Veesenmayer was reporting from Budapest to the defendant Ritter that "as from May 15, 3,000 Jews will be sent weekly to Auschwitz". It is a terrible story. If the facts are proved, that these German diplomats were callously extending Hitler's programs beyond Germany, their behavior is even more repellent than the murderous fanaticism of those who did the actual gassing and shooting.

It is thus not only with planning and waging aggressive wars that these Wilhelmstrasse officials are now charged, but with terrible war crimes, and crimes against humanity. The prosecution charges, for instance, that the Foreign Office was constantly used to conceal from the outside world the commission of war crimes against combatants and prisoners of war.

Thus, during the war, fifty young British RAF officers who escaped from Stalag Luft III were one by one murdered when they were recaptured. The defendants Steengracht and Ritter are now alleged to have sent utterly false explanations in reply to the Swiss enquiries.

It is also charged that the German Foreign Office was involved in the murder in January, 1945, of the French prisoner of war General Mesny. The prosecution has produced a memorandum signed by Counsellor von Thadden in November, 1944, and submitted through the defendant Ritter to Steengracht. This set out in detail how the unfortunate French General was to be murdered. It stated: "The order will be carried out during the drive by either of the following methods: (1) shooting on escape; (2) poisoning by carbon monoxide gas. For this a specially built car, which has already been constructed, is required."

This trial, then, leads us straight back into the nightmare Nazi world of 1933 to 1945. But it is not only the eight diplomats who are on trial in this Wilhelmstrasse Case. The whole range of politics and economy in the Third Reich is represented in the dock. Six of the defendants were in charge of, or second in command of, important German ministries.

Linton Committed For Trial on Two Murder Charges

Simcoe, June 29 (CP)—Seth Linton, 41-year-old well-digger of nearby Charlotteville, late Monday was committed for trial on two charges of murder. He will appear again at the Norfolk County fall assizes.

Although Linton was not asked to plead, Magistrate H. P. Innes ordered him committed after witnesses related happenings of June 6 when Lewis Stewart, 44-year-old Simcoe plasterer, and his brother-in-law, John Kipp, 30, of nearby Vienna were shot to death on Linton's farm.

First to testify was Mrs. Stewart, widow of one of the victims and former housekeeper for Linton. She told of going to Linton's home after 14 years with her late husband and of taking her daughter Jo-Ann with her. About the end of May this year, she dedecided to return to her husband.

The night before the fatal shootings she met her husband in a local hotel after shopping with Linton. She said she had "a couple of beers" with her husband and had gone to the home of Ezra Linton, Seth's brother, and there decided to retrn to her husband.

Mrs. Stewart said Stewart, her brother, John Kipp and she went to Seth's to get "my daughter and my clothes."

She said the trio had gone up to the verandah and Kipp had knocked loudly on the door. Seth did not answer, so she advised her husband and brother to go out to their automobile while she phoned police from the home of neighbor Len Maylin.

Stewart and Kipp left the car and Kipp kicked in the front door of the house, she went on.

"There was shot from inside the house and my daughter ran out the back door. Both of us ran."

They crossed the road to a farmhouse. From a window she said she saw Seth Linton "standing over" her husband as he lay on the lawn. She believed he was striking Stewart with the butt of a rifle.

Maylin, a neighbor, said he also heard Linton "advising" Kipp to get off his property. Later, under questioning, he said: "I did see the pump action part of the gun in accused's hand."

Dr. E. S. Copeman, coroner, said Stewart's death was due to shock, a hemorrhage and a fractured skull. Kipp died of gunshot wounds.

Thousands of cheering Indians and government officials were on hand as the Mountbattens left Government House in a state coach and proceeded to Palam Airfield from where they took off for England.

John H. Turner RCMP Historian, Dies at Ottawa

Ottawa, June 29 — (CP) — John Peter Turner, historian of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police and considered one of Canada's outstanding conservation experts, died Monday morning in hospital here after a lengthy illness. He was 67.

As a young man he travelled widely through the Canadian North West, and was a friend of the commissioner of the old North West Mounted Police, the late A. G. Irvine. Following his appointment in 1939 as R.C.M.P. historian he wrote several books on the history of the force.

A proponent of wildlife conservation, he was conservation editor of the magazine, "Rod and Gun," and was a member of the Council of Canadian Conservation Association. At one time he was on the staff of the Canadian Geographical Journal as a writer on Canadian wildlife.

Born in Toronto, he worked as a youth for the Dominion Bank of Canada in Winnipeg and later set up his own insurance business there. He is survived by his widow, the former Katheleen Drennan, daughter of the late Col. Melville Drennan of Kingston.

Funeral service will be held here Wednesday.

HOUSE APPROVES

Opposition Had Chance

He held that the committee's work had had a "salutory" effect on prices and said he wondered, as the people of Canada would wonder, to which recommendations John Bracken, Progressive Conservative leader, referred when he called them "ashcan recommendations.

He said that if the Progressive Conservatives opposed a prices commission it meant they wanted nothing done to bring down high prices.

Mr. Martin said Mr. Bracken had been asking for the removal of the special excises taxes without consideration of why they were put on. The committee had considered this.

"So has Louie Breithaup," interjected Karl Homuth (PC—Waterloo South).

This was a reference to a recent delegation of Ontario Commons members led by L. O. Breithaup (L — Waterloo North), which asked Prime Minister Mackenzie King to take action to haul down prices.

He told the Chamber the Progressive Conservative members of the committee had had a chance to offer amendments when the recommendations were being considered. They had done nothing but oppose the suggestions.

Many Factors Enter Picture

He said the high cost of living was due to the rise of external prices, expansion of purchasing power and a number of supplementary factors. As much as 38 per cent of Canada's national income was based on her ability to sell goods to other countries where prices were higher than those at home.

Mr. Bracken charged that the government itself had brought about the rise in prices through its policies of high taxation, expansion of credit and currency and improper decontrol.

Solon Low, Social Credit leader, said the cost of living could be reduced by 20 per cent in a period of months through "wise and carefully-planned taxation reduction."

Mr. Bracken said the government had raised taxes by 200 per cent during the war and had reduced them by 10 per cent since. While the government took taxes during pre-war years, it now was taking 20 per cent.

He termed the report a most "inadequate document" which left the impression that business all over the country was to be condemned for charging high prices. Actually only a section of the business world could be accused of "so-called profiteering."

People Disillusioned

He said a return to over-all controls would "lead us to Communism." The government had overdone the job of selling controls in wartime and had led the people to believe that controls in peace time would be possible. The people were disillusioned.

The government should consider seriously the removal of many of the embargos, quotas and tariffs which were shutting off trade. They were creating artificial shortages and driving prices higher.

John Diefenbaker — (PC-Lake Centre) charged the government had a "gilt top bureaucracy" which was "following policies of Washington and making them applicable here." Parliament should determine what was needed to meet Canadian needs.

J. M. Macdonnell (PC-Muskoka-Ontario), said the Progressive Conservative party was "suspicious" of the committee report because it appeared to be an indirect way of announcing government policy. It was "utter unrealism" to say that controls could be placed back on prices.

Rodney Young (CCF-Vancouver Centre) said he felt some of the committee's recommendations were "fine" but that they would not bring down the price of bread and butter. This was the time for the House to put aside party politics and seriously study prices.

Top Relief Hurling Jobs Keep Pennant Contenders Riding High in Both Major Loops

By JOE REICHLER
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

Now is the time for all pennant - conscious managers to give a note of thanks to those athletes who hold the most thankless job in baseball — the relief hurlers.

Never before have the majors boasted so many fine rescue artists. As a matter of fact, Cleveland Philadelphia and New York owe their lofty positions in the American League to the splendid work done by that game - saving crew. The same holds true of all the first division clubs in the National League.

Last year, both Bucky Harris and Burt Shotton, respective managers of the Yankees and Brooklyn Dodgers, were quick to admit that they never would have won the flag without their ace firemen Joe Page and Hugh Casey.

This year, numerous pitchers have come up to challenge Page and Casey for the No. 1 rating. Casey has been temporarily inactive due to an injury, but Page is still carrying on in flawless style. In Casey's place have loomed such relief luminaries as Ted Wilks of St. Louis Cardinals, Clyde Shoun, Boston Braves; Russ Christopher and Ed Klieman, Cleveland Indians; Charley Arris and Bob Savage, Athletics; Sheldon Jones, New York Giants; Harry Gumbert, Cincinnati Reds and Kirby Higbe, Pittsburg Pirates.

The best relief work of the year, day in and day out, probably is being turned in by Wilks, who has appeared in 21 of the Cardinals' 61 games all in relief. He has permitted only 25 hits in 45 innings.

No games were played yesterday, but the torrid warfare resumes today in full force. Each league has four home games scheduled, all but two of them at night.

FORMER OFFICIAL DIES

Toronto, June 2 — (CP) — Michael Joseph Berry, former official of the Catholic Order of Foresters, died Friday night. He served as the Order's High Court trustee, chief agent for Canada and provincial secretary.

Olympic Future Of Theo Dubois Still in Doubt

Winnipeg, June 29 — (CP) — The Olympic future of sculler Theo Dubois is as uncertain today as are his whereabouts.

Dubois won the combined Canadian championships and Olympic trials at St. Catharines, Saturday, but was refused a place on Canada's Olympic squad, even after he had offered to pay his own expenses to London.

Subsequently:

1. Bob Richards, president of the Winnipeg Rowing Club, appealed to the Olympic selection selection committee to reconsider its refusal to name Dubois to the Canadian squad.

2. Prof. Nelson C. Hart of London, Ont., said it is "extremely unlikely" that the Canadian Olympic committee will question the rowing selection committee's decision not to send Dubois to the Olympics. Hart termed his omission from the team "a financial problem."

3. His mother in Winnipeg suggested that since Theo is Belgian-born he represent Belgium in the Olympics.

4. Toronto sports writers Jimmy Coleman and Ted Reeve rapped the Olympic selection committee for omitting Dubois.

5. Dubois' entry to defend his United States and North American singles championships was refused in Philadelphia because it was four days late in arriving.

6. Dubois left Philadelphia yesterday, presumably for Winnipeg, without giving any indication of his plans or views on the whole siutation.

Sport Writers Take Shot

The Olympic selection committee ignored Dubois because they did not regard his time in Saturday's race as adequate. This brought shots from Coleman and Reeve.

They admit that Theo is not the best sculler in the business but point out that he was good enough last year to whip Jack Kelly, Jr., 1947 Diamond Sculls champion, in the United States and North American championship.

Mrs. Dubois said she will finance Theo's way to a berth on the Belgian team if he is acceptable to the Belgian Olympic officials.

She also hoped out loud that Theo's not having been a member of the Canadian Active Army had not influenced the judges. She told what she said was the full story behind his not being on active service.

In 1942 Theo travelled to Jolliette, Que., to join the Belgian Congo army. He was accepted but was later told by the Canadian government that he would not be permitted to go as he was a British subject.

'When he was called up by the Canadian Army later, his attestation papers labelled him a 'Belgian subject' and a 'friendly alien'."

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

Dean Cromwell, 68 year old head coach of track and field at the University of California predicts in this months issue of "Look" magazine, that athletes from the United States will win half of the twenty four track and field events in the London Olympiad this summer. The eminent Mr. Cromwell should know. He has trained a few of the potential stars himself and has been selected by the United States Olympic committee to coach the American entries in the Olympics. There choice was no surprise because the Dean has been singularly successful in his efforts to spur which they themselves often regard as impossible.

• • •

Mr. Cromwell, who for years has regarded those athletes who train under his supervision as the "Fastest in the World" picks his star Mel Patton currently "the world's fastest human" to race away with the honors in the 100 meter sprint. This is not surprising because the lean speedster from the land of the orange blossom has defeated the [illegible] competition in the 100 yard dash several times this season and is awaiting official sanction of his new world's record in that event.

• • •

His prediction that Harrison Dillard will win the 110 meter high hurdles is obvious because the swift negro has not been defeated in eighty starts. Charlie Fonville is almost a sure thing in the shot put, barring a broken leg, and Barney Ewell shapes up as the best in the 200 meters. Mr. Cromwell also predicts that the U.S. will win the javelin throw, the 400 meter relay, the 400 meter low hurdles, the high jump, the pole vault, the broad jump, the discuss throw, and the decathlon. However, the wins will not be easy and he sees Australia as the closest contenders in several events.

Sweden, according to the American maestro, is a cinch to win the 1,500 meters, the 10,000 meter walk and the hop, step and jump. Jamaica will carry off the honors in the 400 meters on the flying spikes of lanky Herb McKenley and his running mate, Arthur Wint, who burns up courses with his ten foot stride is almost conceded the 800 meters. The Jamaica relay team of McKinsey, Rhoden, Wint, and McKenley are expected to be tough in the 400 meter relay.

Perhaps the biggest surprise of all is that the lone Canadian mentioned in the great coach's selection, Gerard Cote, is expected to finish fifth in the Marathon. Since Cote has been winning everything in sight this year this selection comes as a shock. However, all those expected to beat the flying Canadian from St. Hyacinthe are from abroad with England's Jack Holden picked to lead the field to the wire. Cote himself has said that he expects an Englishman to win because he would be acclimatized but he has modestly claimed third place for himself.

Last night's Junior-RCAF game was one of the best exhibitions of baseball seen here this year. Kiwanis hurler, "Lefty" Don Semark, walked but three batters, struck out six, and gave up three hits for one unearned run over the nine inning route. It was a pitcher's duel for the first seven innings as Flyer hurler Laing let the Juniors down with one run on five hits. He walked two and struck out six.

Laing had himself pulled in the top of the eighth after walking the first batter. He was losing his control and came out of the game at his own request. The ace right hander played last Saturday and pitched a nine inning game. The wing had had too much by the time the eighth rolled around last night.

• • •

The fielding was good too. The Juniors bobbled twice in the first frame to let in the only Flyer run but from then on they worked flawlessly afield. The Flyers miscued three times, twice in the eighth inning when the errors meant runs, but otherwise they were steady.

Semark faced only thirty batters over the nine innings as his mates erased runners with two twin killings. The game was played in the amazing time of one hour and fifty minutes with the first six and a half frames being completed in one hour. It was the second excellent ball game in the past four days—Northern Electric having downed Merchants 1-0 last Friday night. Perhaps the teams are finding the hot weather to their liking.

The Canadian Father and Sons Golf Association will hold its annual tournament this year on Friday, August 27th, at the Lambton Golf and Country Club in Toronto. This announcement was made by Jim Boeckh, of Toronto honorary secretary of the association.

This tournament, open to family foursomes from anywhere in Canada, is a unique event in Canadian sport. A team may consist of a father and three sons or sons-in-law with the provision that in the event of the death of a father who has played in the tournament, four sons or sons-in-law may continue to play as a team.

Eighteen holes of medal play decide the possession of the N.A. Timmins Memorial Trophy for low gross score, and the Rankin Trophy for low net. Past competition has been keen, and fields have included amateur champions of Canada, Ontario, Quebec and Bermuda. John C. Boeckh and sons of Toronto this year will defend the Timmins Trophy which they have held for the past three years, while E.J. Christmas and sons of Montreal will attemept to retain the Rankin Trophy.

Al Kelleher, former first baseman with the Kiwanis Juniors, and new sophomore first sacker with the Frood Tigers of the Senior Nickle Belt League is doing well with the northern nine, according to a recent report in the Sudbury Star, Al led the Tigers to a 15-2 victory over the Creighton Cubs pounding out three hits in four official trips and playing errorless ball afield. One of the blasts went for three bases no less.

An interested reader, and highly competent observer has written this desk commenting on the beach styles as seen at the Sand Banks and elsewhere this blistering summer. Among the enlightening remarks was a tiny four line poem with, what the author considers, is a piece of much needed advice. The little slice of doggerel is coyly entitled, "A Word to the Peach on the Beach" and runs as follows:

A WORD TO THE PEACH ON THE BEACH
The birthday suit may be kinda cute
For a tiny lassie of two,
But a gal your size, should realise,
That the "nude" look ain't for you.

Halifax, June 29 — (CP)—Take a look at your sport pages. Freud is invading the press gallery.

Those tired old cliches about thundering herds, spirited drives, diminutive second sackers and iron men are giving way to cold, objective science.

Russ (Halifax Chronicle) Stewart writes:

The usurper is personified by a graying, scholarly man (as we see him, at least) with a number if initials tacked after his name and a Phi Beta Kappa Key on his tweed vest. He is the psychologist.

No more of these hit-or-miss predictions, these quarrelsome post mortems, turned in by tired old scribes who chew cigars.

The spearheader of this athletic turn of deeper thought is Dr. J. L. Moreno, M. D., a noted psychiatrist hired by the Associated Press to predict the outcome of the Louis-Walcott match. You can't tell us he smokes a cigar.

The venerable doctor predicted Louis would win by a knockout in the early rounds — not a bad job for a cub reporter. Once he hits his stride, it may mean the end of bookmakers.

You might expect to find such terms as "neurosis," "complex," or "dream pattern" cropping up, but that is to underestimate Dr. Moreno. He keeps his language within easy grasp of hot stove leagues.

But there is evidence of a minor revolution. We find that up until the 11th round Walcott was playing a "game of chess." When a "game of chess" comes, can a "cup of tea" be far behind?

Ray Robinson Retains Title Against Docusen

Chicago, June 29 — (AP) — Ray (Sugar) Robinson's 15-round decision over young Bernie Docusen to retain his welterweight boxing crown is the story of a steak.

The machine - like New York slugger starved himself for two days to make the 147-pound weight limit. Then after tipping the scales at 146½ in yesterday's weigh-in, he drank a quart of beef broth and gnawed through a two-pound broiled steak. This was his first solid food in 48 hours of forced dehydration to shed 4 or five pounds.

That hunk of beef did it. During most of last night's title defence in Comiskey Park against the 145½ - pound, 21-year-old New Orleans challenger — six years his junior — Robinson was a blur of power and precision. He had to be to beat the dead - pan, polished little Filipino who made the champion go the route. The decision was uhanimous.

When, and if, Robinson vacates the welterweight bracket, you can put Docusen down as one of the best bets to succeed him.

Robinson emerged from the scrap a leg-weary, thoroughly tired champion. After having the ninth round taken away from him for hitting low, he opened up in the 10th and Docusen for the first time gave ground in a furious exchange. In the 11th, Robinson nailed his opponent for a nine-count with a left hook to the chin. It was the first time the youngster had been floored in a span of 58 victories in 60 bouts.

Docusen, however, refused to be the champion's 59th knockout victim in a remarkable record of 88 triumphs. He struggled up at the count of nine and stumbled into another vicious volley. But Robinson was so worn down from the flurry he couldn't finish him. Docusen brought the slim crowd of 8,883 to its feet cheering by lashing back. He battled the title-holder to a standstill until the bell.

The show, twice postponed, was put on by Promoter Irving Kovin. He reported a gross of $45,640.24 and a net of $35,107.88. Unofficially, it was said he had to gross from $60,000 to $70,000 to break even.

Robinson collected 25 per cent, $8,776.93, and Docusen pocketed 20 per cent, $7,921.57.

CORRECTLY NAMES TUNE

New York, June 29 (AP) — Puggy, a hungry Boston terrier, led a 42-year-old grandmother from Manhattan's lower east side to a $20,000 radio jackpot Sunday night.

The woman, Mrs. Mary Farber, wife of a taxicab driver, won $20,000 in prizes for correctly naming the title of the "Mystery Melody." (Correct) on a network's "Stop the Music" program. (ABC).

She explained she was at home in her three-room apartment to answer the jackpot telephone call only because it was feeding time for her pet terrier, Puggy.

'Lefty' Semark Of Kiwanis Jrs. Hurls 3-Hitter

"Lefty" Don Semark hurled a three hit masterpiece Monday night as the scrappy Kiwanis Juniors downed the RCAF 7-1 in a Belleville Baseball League game at the Fair Grounds. The portsider had all kinds of stuff on the ball striking out six batters, walking but three, and giving up a measly three hits over the nine inning course. With the exception of the first inning when they miscued twice, he was given perfect support by his mates.

The win was the fourth straight for the Juniors against no defeats. It was the third loss for the Flyers in six games.

Flyers scored their lone run in the bottom of the first inning and it was unearned. With one away Robertson got on by Lockyer's error. He was forced at second by Maracle who advanced to second on Wade's single and came home as Semark threw the ball away. Hornsby fouled out to first base to retire the side.

That was all for the Flyers. Semark allowed one hit in the second but the runner was thrown out attempting to steal second. The only other Flyer hit came in the ninth as Maracle tripled to deep left field. Donovan went back to the long grass and relayed to the shortstop who fired the ball home to nail Maracle as he tried to stretch his triple to a homer.

Two Twin Killings

Juniors pulled two twin killings to choke any Flyer rallies. Robertson hit into one double play in the third and Rhinehart grounded into the other one in the eighth.

Laing starting pitcher for the RCAF held the Kiwanis bats in check for seven innings giving up only one run on five hits. He retired voluntarily in the eighth after walking the first batter and Wade came in to pitch. Wright who had walked was sacrificed to second by Lockyer. Reeves and Donovan singled and Green got on as the shortstop bobbled. Semark walked and Jones, Strahan and Bradshaw hit safely. Wright, up for the second time got on as the first baseman miscued and Lockyer grounded out short to first, to retire the side. Five hits, two errors and a walk went for six runs.

Although Wade was combed for six hits Laing is officially credited with the loss as he walked Wright who scored the winning run in the eighth.

A fair sized crowd witnessed the contest, one of the best seen locally this year. The game was played in the amazing time of one hour, fifty minutes.

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.

New York, June 29 — (AP) — The standings show the Yankees are only one game out of the American League lead, but the stories in the papers about their pitching read as if the club was in a panic . . . Tommy Byrne, who hadn't pitched a complete game since he joined the club in 1942, was given his "last chance" Sunday and saved his job by shutting out the Tigers . . . Now they're talking about farming out rotund Spec Shea and Spec insists he was down too long to go back to the minors again . . . In other words, manager Bucky Harris is conducting a frantic search for another reliable pitcher.

Timely Warning

Publicitor Harry Mendel, who concocted the gag of mailing out daily cards which said "—days until Joe Louis knocks out Jersey Joe Walcott," posted the final one Saturday. It read: "0 days until Joe Louis knocks out Jersey Joe Walcott. 181 days until Christmas."

Arthur King Offered Bout In London

(By The Canadian Press)

The on-again off-again British Empire lightweight title fight picture between Toronto's Arthur King and Britain's Billy Thompson has shifted to London, England. Benny Huntman, Thompson's manager, announced at Toronto Monday that he has offered King's manager a title bout at London July 26 to replace a match which had been scheduled for Toronto tonight. The fight was cancelled during the weekend after disagreement over officials.

Huntman also said Toronto Promoter Frank Tunney Monday offered to stage the fight at Toronto, July 6 with an American official as referee. But Thompson already was in New York, bound for England.

A decision concerning the English bout is expected today.

The Ontario Federation of Anglers and Hunters has decided that with amalgamation of Northern and Southern Ontario Federations only a matter of weeks, the province should be sub-divided into six zones for better administration and expansion. When zoning is completed the federation will have a membership of almost 130,000.

Things are tough, as the Interprovincial Box Lacrosse League is discovering. President Dick Brayely has called a meeting for tonight to consider the league's shaky status. Pit Dussault's Canadiens, like some other Canadians, are homeless. They find rental of Lachine arena at Montreal too high and lights at Verdun Auditorium inadequate. Unless they can find a home elsewhere Canadiens may have to fold.

A. W. (PD) Carter set the pace with an eight-over par 78 Monday over his home Dartmouth, N.S., course to take a two-stroke lead in the first round of the three-day, 54-hole Nova Scotia Amateur Golf championship. The only non-maritimer entered in the amateur division, John Robertson of Ancaster, Ont., completed the day in a four-way split for eighth spot with an 85.

Clever Kitty copped the Runyon Memorial Cancer Fund featured fifth race Monday night in the Grand Circuit Harness events at Roosevelt Raceway. The fund received $7,500 from the track. The horse sped the mile in 2:10 and paid $15.30, $8.70 and $5.90.

President Leo Dandurand Monday announced that Herb Trawick, Mel Wilson and Red Noel have signed to play with Montreal Alouettes in the 1948 Big Four season. Trawick was a member of last year's club while Noel performed with Regina Tough riders last season on lease from Montreal. Wilson was centre for Winnipeg Blue Bombers in 1947.

The touring Djurgardeb Club of Sweden scored an easy 6-1 soccer win over St. Louis All-Stars Monday night. It was the second victory in three games since they started their North American tour. The next game is at Toronto, July 3.

Hamilton Tigers turned back Brampton Excelsiors 11-7 at Hamilton, Monday night in an Ontario Lacrosse Association Senior game. Mackenzie led Tigers with three goals and two assists, while Garbutt was best for the losers with two counters.

The National Hockey League Board of Governors has accepted the Art Ross trophy, to be awarded annually to the circuit's top scorer starting with the 1948-49 season. It is to be presented by Arthur H. Ross, vice-president and general manager of Boston Bruins, and his sons, Arthur, Jr., and John.

Field Whittled To 100 for Final Qualifying Tests

Muirfield, Scotland, June 29 — (AP) — The field in the British open golf tournament was to be whittled from 275 to a comfortable 100 today with final 18-hole qualifying tests.

A virtual unknown playing in his first big event, A. S. Tibbles of London, gave some of the world's best shotmakers an embarrassing lesson as he led the first 18-hole tour with a course record of 67.

Tibbles, a 30-year-old club player, finished late in the day to wipe out the pair of 68s hung up earlier by Jimmy Thomson, the long-knocking American pro, and Roberto de Vicenzo of Argentina.

Tibbles played on the Gullane course while part of the field took their shots on the tougher Muirfield layout. The contestants switch courses for the final 18.

Frank Stranahan, the Toledo, Ohio, amateur who won the British open earlier this year, came in with a round 70 at Gullane.

Among the golfers who tested the Muirfield course in the first round qualifying, Henry Cotton, Britain's veteran pro star, turn-

Canada Will Be Awarded Next Empire Games

London, June 2 (CP)—Canadian Olympic officials, scheduled to arrive here in July, can be confident that the senior Dominion will be awarded the next British Empire games.

But where in Canada to hold them is a problem.

The Canadian Olympic Committee, working on conjunction with the Amateur Athletic Union of Canada, offered the Canadian National Exhibition in Toronto the games but the C.N.E. refused to sponsor the event.

So far, no offer has been made to any other Canadian city.

Nevertheless, there's a lot of "behind-the-scenes" plugging for the Dominion going on in London and one qualified source told The Canadian Press "it's in the bag." It is up to Canada to make the bid.

Revival of the games, last held in Sydney, Australia, in 1938, is scheduled to 1950, but the informant said this would be "almost impossible" due to the staging of the European games that year.

Delegates from the Commonwealth countries will get together during the Olympics to decide the issue, "and if Canada wants to hold the games, it will get together during the Olympics to decide the issue, "and if Canada wants to hold the games, it will get every support from English and Scottish epresentatives," the informant said.

He discounted chances of New Zealand and Australia because "the last games went to that part of the world" and squashed any hope of South Africa getting them "because of the Negro question in that country."

These "Imperial games" were born in 1911 in London, held in connection with the Coronation celebrations of the late King George V.

Canada won the initial games. After a 17-year lapse, the idea was revived by a Canadian newspaper man, M. M. (Bobby) Robinson at the 1928 Amsterdam Olympics, where a five-day sports meeting was held. He organized the first Empire games proper, which were held at Hamilton, Ont., two years later. Robinson now operates a farm near Burlington.

U.S. INCOME LIENS FILED AGAINST GEN. BENNETT MEYERS AND WIFE

Baltimore, June 29 (AP)—The Federal Government Friday filed income tax liens totalling $465,812 against former Maj.-Gen. Bennett Meyers and his wife, Ila. Meyers, chief procurement officer for the United States air force during the war, now is serving a 20-month to five-year prison term for inducing a business associate to give false testimony before a congressional committee.

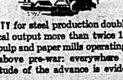
MORE JOBS for Young Canadians

TODAY CANADA'S manufacturing capacity has been increased—and diversified—to an extent never thought possible in pre-war years. Now Canada can do more — can make more — offers far more opportunities to young Canadians commencing their careers today. While established industries have been expanding, new ones have been springing up. Over 200 new products formerly imported are now being made here.

EMPLOYMENT figures, too, tell the story of our emergence as one of the world's great industrial nations; today almost twice as many Canadians are engaged in manufacturing as there were before the war.



CAPACITY for steel production doubled; chemical output more than twice 1939 level; pulp and paper mills operating at 50% above pre-war: everywhere the magnitude of the advance is evident.

DEVELOPMENT continues: on new plant and new equipment nearly four times as much was spent by Canadian industry last year as in 1939.

"...UNTOLD OPPORTUNITIES"

"If one wants to give service and work, Canada is full of untold opportunities — greater than ever. It is well, too, for young Canadians not to overlook small towns and rural parts, because in these places the door is ajar, life can be gloriously free and very full."

. . . says ROY SHIELDS of Coboconk, Ontario. He and his brother Charles have, by industry and initiative, supported by loyal, hard-working employees, attained a remarkable success as General Merchants in their rural community. Their store has been referred to as the "Biggest Little Department Store" in the country.

When partner plays hunches and cinches you get half a chance in the clinches. But troubles come piling in bunches when all he calls cinches are hunches.

Hands that are between the borderline openings are still open to opinion. Some future expert may find a rule for them. Meantime, some underbid them for a cinch; some overbid them on a hunch.

An opening of one promises five tricks, four high cards, two sure. An opening of two in a suit promises at least nine tricks. An opening of two no-trump shows seven or eight high cards.

An opening of three in a major promises eight tricks, a long and powerful suit, a sure outside trick. The same goes for opening four in a minor, which needs nine tricks to be safer.

An opening of four in a major or five in a minor shows only a long suit. An opening of three in a minor shows a solid suit of exactly seven cards. Neither has enough for a one bid.

If you open with less in any case, it is on a hunch. If your hand has more than the opening promises, it may be too safe. Which policy you pursue may depend on the type of partner you have.

An opening in which many players have different opinions is four in a minor suit. For convenience, rule permits it to be used with eight tricks. For safety, it should have nine.

Consequently, expert players avoid four in a minor opening with eight tricks when possible. If at all in doubt about it, they prefer to open such a hand with a bid of one.

A few days back was shown a hand like this:

♥J 3
♦A K Q J 6 3 2
♣A Q 5

It could open with four diamonds. It has the stuff rule says you may have for such an opening. Experts, however, prefer to open it with one diamond. Their hunch is a cinch.

Hollywood, June 29. (AP)—Don't assail the walls of Hollywood if you want to break into the movies. Go to the stage.

That's the consensus of the stars who have made the grade. The percentage of Hollywood-found stars grows smaller as the industry progresses.

The Associated Press Hollywood forum question for today: What would you advise youngsters who want to break into movie acting? Here's how it was answered:

John Garfield: "Stay away from Hollywood or you'll end up a car hop or a bus boy. Go on the stage, either at home or on Broadway. Or try television.

Sir Ralph Richardson: "You can only learn to act before an audience. When you perform, the people will either listen or cough. If they listen, you are an actor. If they cough, you are not."

Douglas Fairbanks, Jr.: "Don't try. Unless you have infinite patience and a bankroll to last through ten years of disappointments, it's better to try other fields. If you are determined to reach the screen, I think the stage is the best training ground."

Jeanne Crain: "Find out all you can about Hollywood—the expepses, the obstacles and the angles. Then find a competent person to appraise your acting ability. . ."

Robert Montgomery: "Go on the stage and turn down the first three Hollywood offers."

Joel McCrea: "Get experience first—in stock, community or college drama. Don't take a film test until you're ready for it . ."

Dan Dailey: "The essence of good acting is timing, which can only be learned from live audiences. Radio and screen aren't good training. Radio audiences aren't honest; they applaud when they're told. The camera is no audience at all."

Staff, Students Of Defence College Visit Lake Success

Lake Success, N.Y., June 29 — (CP)—Staff and students of the graduating class of Canada's defence college at Kingston Monday visited United Nations headquarters.

The group of 17 students and six staff members was led by Maj.-Gen. J. F. M. Whitely of London, England, college commandant.

Andrew W. Cordier, executive assistant to Trygve Lie, United Nations secretary - general, welcomed the group which left Kingston by air June 20.

Since that time, the party has visited United States navy, army and air bases at Norfolk, Va., Langley Field, Va., and Fort Knox, Ky.

The group, including officers of the Canadian army and R.C.A.F. as well as members of several government departments, will fly back to Kingston Wednesday, following a visit to an aircraft manufacturing plant (Grumman) near New York.

After hearing several addresses from members of the United Nations secretariat outlining the organization of the world agency, the party was to meet Gen. A. G. L. McNaughton, Canada's delegate to the United Nations.

UNSUBSTANTIAL COVERLET

A white mist which often covers the top of the 3,550-foot Table Mountain overlooking Capetown, South Africa, is called "the tablecloth."

Brighteners

Burrillville, R.I., (AP)—They broke into the brand new police station here Sunday.

The town council had arranged to inspect the $17,000 building before formally accepting it. The members arrived at noon, with the police chief, the architect, the highway surveyor and assorted civic leaders. But no one had a key to the shiny new lock.

So they heaved a rock through a window and boosted up one of the council members, who unfastened the catch, crawled in and unlatched the snap lock on the door.

Tokyo, (AP)—Fifty of the fastest postal clerks in Tokyo competed in a money - counting contest Sunday night.

There were three events. straight style; fan style; and free-style.

The communications ministry awarded 500 yen ($10) to 20-year-old Yasykore Suzuki. He set a free-style record of four minutes and 50 seconds in counting 1,000 10-yen bills. —This was 20 seconds better than his nearest rival.

Six million yen was borrowed from the Bank of Japan for the contest.

Tokyo, (AP)—The "other woman" is not always a villainous homewreck, police concluded today.

Arresting Gin Hosaka, 26, on charges of theft, they said their inquiry disclosed these circumstances:

She was the mistress of a once-prosperous merchant who now is poor.

With her baby strapped to her back, she burglarized unoccupied houses and contributed the proceeds to the merchant to help support his legal wife and six children.

Bangkok, (AP)—Siamese police reported Sunday that local counterfeiters have become cunningly modest: They are getting rich by falsifying 50-satang notes the country's lowest denomination, worth about seven cents. Why? Because few people bother to examine a bill that small.

Bangkok, (AP)—Irked at shaggy hair styles in imitation of mantinee idols, the Siamese ministry of education has ordered that no schoolboy may wear his hair longer than one centimetre. That's less than 4/10s of an inch—real close clip. The ministry is considering, but has not yet adopted, a similar ban on waves and upswept styles for schoolgirls.

AT THE McCARTHY — A shot reveals the presence of the quarry as police close for the kill or capture. Barry Fitzgerald (in the car) and Don Taylor (right) are among the detectives in this exciting scene from the late Mark Hellinger's production "The Naked City," starting Wednesday at the McCarthy Theatre.

Few Mosquito Bombers Left In Dominion

London, Ont., June 29 — (CP) — Five Mosquito bombers at London city airport are among the few left in Canada. In the last year a large number have been shipped to China.

Their days of flying are pretty well over. They now are playing the role of guinea pigs for the experimental section of the maintenance command R.C.A.F.

The planes are muffled in a coat of plastic which covers them from propellor hubs to tail light. The water proof "cocoon" is an experimental method of storing the planes for indefinite periods.

IN TIMES OF THIRST

Thames Ditton, Surrey, England — (CP) — Customers at a local pub know when it is no use asking for their favorite brew. The landlord, Vernon Branigan, wears an outsize tie made for such occasions inscribed with the words: "Sorry. No bitters."

AT THE BELLE — Maureen O'Hara and Rex Harrison have a stormy romance in "The Foxes of Harrow," closing at the Belle Theatre tonight.

OPTICAL PROTECTION

Snakes have a protective storm window over their eyes — a transparent membrane which saves the organ from scratches and injuries.

AT THE CAPITOL — Danger and adventure lurk at the end of the trail for Jon Hall, Lynn Bari and Renie Riano, in Edward Small's "Kit Carson." The picture at the Capitol Theatre tonight and Wednesday. On the same program "The Last of the Mohicans," starring Randolph Scott and Henry Wilcoxon.

HARVARD STILL MISSING

Winnipeg, June 29 (CP) — A Harvard aircraft piloted by J. L. Harrison of Qu'Appelle, Sask., and Montreal remained missing today despite an extensive week-end search in the Raith region, 40 miles west of Fort William, by R.C.A.F. search and rescue planes.

The missing plane is a war-surplus aircraft not heard from since late last week while on a flight from Calgary to Newark. N.J., for the Dutch government.

SEARCH FOR BODY OF WOMAN

Niagara Falls, N.Y., June 28—(AP)—Police are searching for the body of a woman who was reported to have plunged from Luna Island into the Niagara River's Bridal Veil Falls late Saturday.

Two witnesses said the woman wore a green dress. They gave police a straw hat and a purse containing a card bearing the name of Fred C. Becker of Buffalo.

Becker later identified the purse as one his wife carried when she left home Sunday. He told Buffalo police his wife wore a green dress when she left to visit a hairdresser.

RESIDUE FOR HOSPITAL

Ottawa, June 28 (CP)—Further steps into the winding up of The Penny Bank of Ontario were announced in the Canada Gazette over the weekend.

A government statement said The Penny Bank now had ceased to exist and that postmaster general will receive enough money on Aug. 1 to pay off all outstanding debts.

Residue of funds will be given to the Hospital for Sick Children in Toronto.

Party Leaders Open Campaign In Que. Election

(By The Canadian Press)

Communism and financial co-operation with the Federal government were the main talking points Sunday night as the "big guns" of three parties boomed in the Quebec political campaign.

With the July 28 elections exactly a month away, all three party leaders spoke. Premier Maurice Duplessis addressed a Union Nationale rally in the L'Islet county town of St. Jean Port Joli, Liberal Leader Adelard Godbout spoke in Granby, and J. Ernest Gregoire, chief of the Union of Electors, opened his campaign in Drummondville.

Premier Duplessis said Quebec needed its taxation rights. The province, he said was on the eve of unprecedented development, and this was no time to be under "administration by curatorship."

Ontario as well as Quebec had refused tax agreement with the Federal government, Mr. Duplessis said, and the two provinces represented a majority of the Canadian population.

The premier named Communism as one of the main issues in the campaign.

Will Undertake Agreement

In Granby, Mr. Godbout promised that if the Liberals were elected, they would undertake financial co-operation with the Federal government.

"We will defend your rights but we also will enter into an agreement which will permit you the benefit of your own money as is the case already with seven provinces, but of which you are deprived because Premier Duplessis does not like the Liberal party," he said.

Mr. Godbout charged the Union Nationale administration with granting road contracts in return for election funds. He said that by ill-treating the workers, the Duplessis government was encouraging Communism.

At Drummondville, Mr. Gregoire compared the Duplessis regime to the Stalin and Hitler dictatorships, and said that monetary reform was the only answer to Communism. He advocated paying dividends of $20 a month to each citizen.

POLICE GRAPPLE FOR PLANE

New York, June 29 — (AP) — Police were grappling today for a small airplane which plunged into Gravesend Bay off Brooklyn, Sunday night.

The crew of a police boat caught hold of the plane, upside down at the bottom of the bay, but it slipped from the grapple hooks and sank again.

The type of plane and identity of its occupant or occupants were not known.

PRISONERS RELEASED

Haifa, June 29 — (Reuters) — The last 12 Jewish prisoners held by British military authorities in Palestine were released today, within 48 hours of completion of the British evacuation.

They included five youths suspected to be concerned with the hanging of two British sergeants last year and five Stern gangsters, whose earlier death sentences for an attack on Haifa workshops had been commuted to life imprisonment.

AFTERMATH OF SASKATCHEWAN ELECTION RESULTS

This photo of the Canadian Press room in the editorial department of The Leader Post, Saskatoon, was taken about 3 a.m. after operators had flashed an estimated 25,000 words of coverage on the Saskatchewan provincial election to the world. Carbon paper, ticker tape and other assorted debris littered the floor after operators had labored for six hours. Results said Premier T.C. Douglas and his Socialist government returned for a second term.

Looking Ahead in Ottawa:

U.S. Livestock Market If Opened to Canada Will be Real Bonanza

(By the Ottawa Staff of the Canadian Press)

Ottawa, June 28 (CP) — The American livestock market, when it is opened to Canadian beef cattle, will be a real bonanza.

Reports have been current for weeks that the government plans to lift the ban on cattle shipments to the United States. All the government will say is that negotiations to this end are making 'good' progress. However, the general expectation is that the removal of the embargo will be announced in July.

Once the decision is made, the Canadian beef cattle producer stands to get his share—and more. Under the Geneva trade agreement, the United States will allow some 400,000 head of cattle into its market from this continent. Canada's share of this is about 250,000 head. The other participant is Mexico.

But Mexico, unfortunately for the Mexican cattle producers and luckily for the Canadians, is fighting an epidemic of hoof-and-mouth disease. Until this outbreak is overcome stringent American import regulations bar the import of Mexicon livestock and the Mexican quota will go to Canada, with the result that Canadians will be able to ship the full 400,000 head allowed.

So Busy

Parliament has noticed a trend towards a busier Senate which, with new members, may see it more active than ever next session.

The government leader, Senator Wishart Robertson told the Chamber at one of its last sittings of this session that it had done a record amount of government business. Twenty-four government bills were initiated there, compared to 15 last year and eight in 1946.

The next session will probably see a lot of the present 13 vacancies plugged with new appointments and that should mean a new spurt of life.

Labor Legislation

It is regarded as pretty certain here that the governor-in-council will reject the application of labor organizations for disallowance of Prince Edward Island's new labor legislation.

This legislation outlaws unions affiliated with national or international organizations.

It is understood that the government has decided the issue on the over-riding principle that the provinces are to be given a free hand in their own field and that in this case they have not impinged on federal authority.

DELAYED FOUR HOURS

Clifford, Ont., June 29 — (CP) —The Palmerston-Southampton freight train was held up four hours in Harrison Friday following a level crossing collision with a truck loaded with cement which derailed one of the box cars.

A truck driven by J. Vance of Embro struck the tender and was thrown on its side in a ditch by the side of the tracks. Seven succeeding box cars hit the vehicle as they went by and one car was derailed.

TWO MEN INJURED

Tavistock, June 29 — (CP)— Two men are in Stratford hospital today as the result of a car-truck accident Friday on Harmony road, two miles west of here.

The injured are Jairus Maus of Ayre, cattle drover and driver of the car, and Arnold Balfour of Stratford. Maus suffered lacerations and chest injuries while Balfour had a eight inch gash in his forearm inflicted by broken glass. He is also suffering from shock.

Prime Ministers May be Meeting In October

By JAMES McCOOK
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, June 29 — (CP) — Prime Minister Attlee today told the Commons that it is "almost certain" a meeting of Commonwealth prime ministers can be arranged in October.

Attlee, replying to questions by Ellis Smith, labor Stoke, and parliamentary secretary to the board of trade, and Edgar Granville, Liberal East Suffolk, said that Prime Minister Chifley of Australia would visit London in July.

At the start of his statement, Attlee said that he had been in consultation with his fellow prime ministers for some time, proposing an early discussion on broad questions.

The difficulty had been in finding a time suitable for the prime ministers to meet in view of their heavy domestic responsibilities. A summer meeting was not possible but he had "every reason to hope" that there would be an October meeting although the final reports were not yet in.

Extent of the discussions has not been decided, Attlee replied when asked whether the statue of Westminster interpretation in relation to India's future and Commonwealth consultative machinery would be among the subjects to be discussed.

VARIETY OF FOODS

Ants have a great variety of food preferences — some are carnivorous others feed upon nectar and honey-dew, others gather seeds and some live on fungi.

BAGGAGE CAR RUNS AWAY; HALTS AFTER 5 MILES

Philadelphia, June 29—(AP)— A runaway baggage car gave Pennsylvania railroad men and police a hectic few moments as it raced wildly over a seven-mile stretch of track before coming to a halt. The car, loaded with newspapers, had been cut from a New York-to-Washington train Sunday when it began to roll under its own momentum.

Yu'An Hee See Laughs

By Sax Rohmer

"No, no. Nothing official," was Haig's reply.

With the coming of daylight, the babel of that curious port rose to full blast. Sellers of all kinds of wares—carpets, lace, jewelry, Birmingham antiques, and the rest—set up their shops on deck, turning the ship into a miniature bazaar. The inevitable conjurer was there with his little brass cups. And there were divers—in boats who shouted—who never stopped shouting—except when they actually dived, which was rarely.

Dawson Haig, very reluctantly, had agreed to allow Eileen to pursue her inquiries in her own way; but he didn't realize that she had actually left the ship until she had been gone some time. He was watching Len Chow who, having collected his baggage, was now following a porter towards the ladder. Hartog had quietly gone ashore an hour before.

Just before Mr. Chow reached the gangway he passed a fortune teller, an evilly handsome fellow, wearing shabby European clothes and tarbush—not an Egyptian, Haig determined, but possibly a Greek, or an Armenian.

Some words were exchanged rapidly, although Haig was too far away to overhear them. The Chinaman pointed shoreward. Haig looked and saw a native boat...In this boat sat Eileen with two women passengers, the party being escorted by Dr. Oestler and the ship's surgeon!

Dawson Haig became acutely uncomfortable. The girl had played her part admirably, even to the extent of striking up a friendship with Miss Ednam. But neither from the woman nor from the Austrian physician had she gleaned anything in the nature of a clue. She was convinced and had assured Haig of the fact, that they knew she was watching them.

Hurrying down the ladder, the dark-eyed fortune teller was pulled away in a boat which waited. Len Chow followed in another. There was nothing to show that the pair were associated. But why had the Chinaman pointed out Eileen's party?

Haig stood there watching, and trying to make up his mind which of several courses to adopt. Eileen! At all costs he must keep Eileen in sight....

He was up against a closely and cleverly organized group, he alone holding all available threads in his hands. Haig walked slowly down the ladder. It was a job for three men, but somehow, it had to be done by one...

Eileen had some shopping to do at Simon Arzt, and so this store the party made this way. Dr. Castler, it appeared, had purchases to make also. The ship's surgeon, Heatherley, went along. Dawson Haig, who had been in Port Said twice previously and, oddly enough, upon the same business which saw him there now, having satisfied himself that this was the destination of the party, became interested in the movements of Mr. Len Chow.

This gentleman, depositing his baggage at the Eastern Exchange, had strolled out, standing amongst the little tables set upon the pavement like a man with nothing better to do than kill time.

The Armenian fortune teller had entered a shop nearly opposite.

Dawson Haig, wearing the tinted glasses of "Mr. Smith," sat down at some distance from the door and ordered a cool drink. He was doing some hard thinking.

At about this time, Eileen had completed her purchases. Her companions — excluding Dr. Heatherley—had allowed themselves to be lured by wonderful shawls, scarves, and other pitfalls which await unwary travellers in Eastern shops.

Dr. Oestler was inspecting a handsome casket of inlaid wood. Eileen, covertly, was watching him. That this man was an associate of criminals, murderers, she could no doubt; yet he was a most entertaining companion, and in spite of his marked ugliness, possessed the rare quality of soothing without boring.

Eileen was enjoying that sense of martyrdom so dear to woman's nature. She was helping. Actually her help was nearly automatic. Her spirit was seeking Dawson Haig all the time. Where was he? Was he safe? Did he appreciate what she was doing? With it all, she was so happy that she was frightneed.

Dr. Oestler had stepped to the open doorway to examine the casket by daylight; and:

"My gentleman," said a soft voice.

The doctor stared through his glasses at the spetker. I was the Armenian fortune teller.

"I do not wish to buy anything ha?" said the doctor good-humoredly. "I do not wish my palm to be read—no? And I do not wish to know my future. Is it so?"

"It is not so, my gentleman," the soft voice continued. "It is that I know where there are boxes such as this, but ever so much better—and cheaper."

"You know this—ha?" said Dr. Oestler, smiling at Eileen.

"You think perhaps I don't know this?"

"I think—ha?—you may. I say I do not wish to buy even such box."

"I make with you a bargain," the man went on earnestly. "I charge you nothing—nothing — unless you buy from the shop I take you to. This is my bargain."

Eileen began to laugh. "My lady laughs," said the Armenian earnestly. "But I will show her." He took her hand, as Dr. Oestler returned and placed the casket on the counter from which he had taken it. The doctor rejoined them.

"If I tell this lady true," said the man, still holding Eileen's hand, "something I cannot know except from the palm, will you come with me to the shop I show you?"

Eileen agreed. "But he'll fall down on it and expect half-a-crown all the same."

"We shall see—ha? Proceed, my good fellow."

"You belong," said the man, staring into her hand, "not to England—not, I think, to Europe, but to some country far west of Europe—perhaps it is America."

"Detected my accent," was Eileen's mental comment.

"You come not to Egypt, but to somewhere further—to India, I think. And in India someone is waiting for you—someone you love and who loves you. No!" He stared closer. "It is not so. Yet there is someone who waits. There is someone—I think in England—this one I have spoken of—who is now on his way to India, or to some place very near to India. And there he will meet you ...Ah, but still I am not right! He is here, this one—here, in Port Said!"

Eileen betrayed herself by a sudden start.

"For him there are many dangers...and for you, too, lady. I read it in your palm. But you will be married, and very happy. There will be—"

"That's enough," said Eileen, startled by the man's reading.

"Then we must stick to our bargain—yes?" said Dr. Oestler. The man smiled triumphantly. "Please follow, my lady, my gentleman," he said. "It is not far. Please follow."

Eileen was conscious of a sudden vague uneasiness. It was very difficult to appreciate the fact that she was in the company of a criminal, but it remained a fact, nevertheless, a fact that the man's strange charm of manner invariably made her forget.

"Perhaps the others would like to come?" she suggested.

Dr. Oestler nodded, returned to the shop, and presently came back. "The ladies are still absorbed with silk wear,'" he said, smiling, "silk undies—ha? So I have left Dr. Heatherley to take care of them, and I arrange that we shall meet at the Eastern Exchange in half an hour."

The Armenian led them from the Sharia Fuad into Sharia Eugenie, and thence, left, into the native quarter. Eileen's brain began working rapidly. The question repeated itself over and over again: "Should I go? Should I go?"

Perhaps even at the last moment Eileen would have conjured up some excuse. But suddenly he saw a sight which reassured her ...made her heart sing. Dawson Haig had followed Len Chow, when the Chinaman, apparently aimlessly, had set out, and had temporarily lost sight of him at a corner of Sharia Fad. Almost at the same moment he had seen Eileen—alone with Dr. Oestler—accompanied by the fortune teller.

And so Eileen, glancing back apprehensively along the narrow street, recognized the glitter of "Mr. Smith's" smoked glasses. Dawson Haig followed, twenty paces behind! Dr. Oestler was talking to the palmist-guide and could not possibly have noticed her backward glance.

On they went into several streets. Presently, in a street native from end to end, they paused. A dingy little shop on the left was evidently their objective. Eileen glanced back.

Dawson Haig was still only twenty paces behind!

The shop was purely Arab in appearance. They went down two steps into the interior, and from a dim corner te proprietor, whom the guide addressed as Mohammed, appeared.

Mohammed, black robed and white turbaned, was quite the most venerable specimen of a living Egyptian upon whom Eileen had ever set eyes. His face was a maze of tiny wrinkles, and of the color of a walnut shell. His eyes, bright as a snake's, lurked deep in cavities resembling small caves. Wisps of dirty white hair, almost indistingshable from his turban, and a straggly beard of teh same, outlined that aged countenance.

Mohammed bowed low, opened a door hidden in the dark recess from which he had emerged, and stood aside. Eileen glanced back in the direction of the street...

Dawson Haig was outside.

Confidently, now, she stepped through a big room—to pause, breathless with astonishment. The fortune teller had not exaggerated. This was, indeed, a wonder house, a treasury of beautiful things! And there were other rooms beyond.

"You see, my lady," said the palmist softly, "what I tell you true."

It was indeed true, since this, and not the establishment in Stamboul, was the principal warehouse of that great mysterious industry controlled by Yu'an Hee See. Here, to Port Said, came the choicest pieces, to be distributed for sale at discretion: some to find their buyers in Turkey some in France, some in England.

Extinguish Flames On Fairmile ML 106

Oakville, June 29 — (CP) — With flames leaping from her galley hatch, the Royal Canadian Navy Fairmile ML 106 put into harbor at Oakville Saturday, where local firemen and citizens helped to extinguish the blaze. The ship was en route from Hamilton to Oshawa when she made the emergency stop.

The fire broke out in the launch's galley when she was about five miles off Oakville. Distress rockets were fired and firemen and scores of onlookers gathered at the town wharf to watch her arrival.

At the business session, Art Carveth, Toronto, overseas squadron adjutant, was elected president.

Cominform Hdqtrs. Will be Removed From Belgrade

Yugoslavian Party Program Says Issue 'Family Affair'

Belgrade, June 30 (CP) —The Cominform headquarters is to be moved from Belgrade, it was learned today.

It was reliably reported that the new headquarters of the International Communist information bureau will be in Bucharest where the recent Cominform meeting which expelled Yugoslavia from the organization took place.

Premier, Tito, Alexander Rankovic, minister of the interior, and other Communist leaders were reported in conference here today.

It was emphasized that the decision to move the Cominform from Belgrade came from the Cominform members themselves and not from the Yugoslavs.

The rift between Yugoslavia and the Cominform on "ideological differences" appeared to be lessening when the Yugoslav Communist party announced it would do everything possible to strenghten co-operation with the Soviet Union and other "people's democracies."

The party's program to be presented by the central committee to its fifth congress July 21, made it clear that to Yugoslavia the Cominform controversy was a "family quarrel" rather than a permanent clash.

Tito's Answers Sharp

Though the program did not directly mention the criticism of Yugoslavia by the International Communist Information Bureau Monday, it was published in the official party organ Borba alongside the text of Premier Josip Tito's sharply worded answer Tuesday night to Cominform accusations that Yugoslav Communists were "deviating from the Marxist-Lenninist line." The answer denied the charges and referred to them as "lies and slander."

The whereabouts of Tito remained unknown today. Without confirmation, he has been reported variously on an Adriatic Island, at his summer castle in Bled, Yugoslavia, or in Belgrade itself.

Tuesday night the Bulgarian Fatherland Front, dominated by Communists, said Cominform criticism of the Yugoslavs "in no way alters the friendly relations existing between the Bulgarian and Yugoslav republics."

The program recommended several steps for "general strengthening" of the Yugoslav army, by tightening up discipline and supplying the forces with "modern war technique."

Yugoslav Army

"The Yugoslav army," it said, "protects the freedom and independence of the people of Yugoslavia."

"The National Independence of the people of Yugosalvia is the condition for their road to Socialism and their progress in general," the committee said in presenting the following program:

1. "Further strengthening of moral and political unity for the people of Yugoslavia."

W. PERKINS BULL, LAWYER, FINANCIER DIES AT AGE 77

Widely Known as Author, Historian and Connoisseur of Arts

Niagara-on-the-Lake, Ont., June 30 — (CP) — William Perkins Bull, 77, lawyer and financier whose interests ranged from Arctic exploration to Cuban sugar plantations, died in a rest home here early today.

The big, white-bearded business man spent most of his life in an atmosphere of excitement, roamed the world and made himself an author, historian and connoisseur of the arts.

For the last several years he was head of B. H. Bull and Sons, Jersey cattle importers and breeders at Brampton, 35 miles northwest of Toronto.

A continent-wide sensation was created by the death at his Toronto home in July, 1938, of Mrs. Mabelle Horlick Sidley, Chicago heiress. She had lived at the Bull home for some years. A post mortem examination indicated she died from natural causes and an inquest was stopped by court order.

Then it was disclosed that Mrs. Sidley had bequeathed Mr. Bull $500,000.

William Sidley, a son of the woman, tried to break the will. An out-of-court settlement was reached by which, it was reported at the time, Mr. Bull received $250,000 and other legacies in return for renouncing his interest.

Acted as Attorney

Mr. Bull previously acted as attorney for Col. Horlick's daughter, Mrs. Sidley, in her divorce action against Dr. John S. Streeter.

The divorce was granted. Dr. Streeter then sued Mr. Bull and a detective agency for $250,000 damages, claiming that their constant shadowing had injured his health. The claim was settled out of court. Dr. Streeter died in 1936.

The name of Perkins Bull had been in the headlines long before news of the Sidley - Streeter case "broke." In February, 1931, he was making a mysterious dash by automobile from Chicago to Toronto when the machine crashed into a truck near Coldwater, Mich., and Mr. Bull suffered a fracture of both hips. Although his condition was serious, he was taken by ambulance to Windsor, and then, after a stay of only one day, was moved to Toronto.

It was suggested at the time that he was escaping from Capone gangsters who had threatened his life. The question of why he was not left in a United States hospital for treatment lent some credence to the rumor built it was never corroborated.

During the First World War he lived in London, England, and his home at Putney Heath was the Perkins Bull Hospital for convalescing Canadian officers, with Mr. Bull as president and administrator.

Later he bought a 20,000 - acre sugar plantation in Cuba. He founded the town of Bartle, Cuba, and named it for his son, who afterwards became a member of the British Parliament.

Still later he helped sponsor a 50,000 - acre land settlement scheme in Western Canada. He also was founder and president of the Okanagan Lumber Company of British Columbia and president of the Sterling Oil Company of Ohio.

Mr. Bull married Marie Brennan of Hamilton, who died in 1934. There were seven sons and daughters; Bartle, William Perkins, Jr., Michael, Thomas Henry, Mrs. Harry L. Symonds, Mrs. Donald K. Gunnery and Caroline.

FLOODS DEBATE WASHES OUT HOPES OF PROROGATION

Members Criticize Grant Given to B.C.

Ottawa, June 30 — (CP)—The B. C. floods, receding on the west coast, roared into the Commons Tuesday night and washed out any hope of a late-hour prorogation.

As the Chamber drove to clear the decks for the official closing ceremony, George Cruickshank—(L — Fraser Valley) and a crew of opposition members dropped members into a two - hour whilpool over the size of the federal contribution toward flood rehabilitation.

They criticized the $5,000,000 grant and suggested final settlement be left until the total flood damage has been assessed. At the same time, they thought a new $1,000,000 dredge should be bought to provide more efficient dredging of the Fraser River.

Just to block the prorogation further, C. C. F. members launched, a midget-sized cost-of-living debate in an unsuccessful attempt to learn what the government plans to do about the recommendations of the prices committee.

The Chamber passed 291 divorce bills providing for the separation of couples in Quebec, the only province without a divorce court.

At the House opening, Prime Minister Mackinzie King said Canada will be represented at the Commonwealth Conference of prime ministers in London next October and indicated he might possibly be the Dominion's representative.

Boosting Martin For Leadership Of Liberal Party

Tecumseh, Ont. June 30 (CP) —"After seeing the way Paul Martin handled himself in the debate on his prices committee report, I am inclined to think that he is the man for leadership of the Liberal party," James Sinclair, M.P. for Vancouver North told a gathering of 150 Essex East Liberals at St. Jean De Baptiste Hall here Tuesday night.

Mr. Sinclair said that the Minister of National Health and Welfare "captures the imagination of people as no one can."

Mr. Martin's performance in the Commons Monday night, which Mr. Sinclair witnessed, was the deciding point for the Vancouver North member.

He unrestrictingly lauded the minister for the capable way in which he handled opposition arguments against the prices committee report and culminated his attack by putting in record Progressive-Conservative party approval of all 14 points in the report.

"Even the C.C.F. members were amazed at the committee report on prices and admitted that it put the blame where the blame belongs," he continued. "Such Tory members as Fleming (Donald M. Fleming, Toronto Eglinton) and Fulton (E.D. Fulton, Kamloops, B.C.) criticized the report, but they were sticking up for the monied interests in their party."

The gangling 40-year-old member from the west coast was high in his praise of Mr. Martin for bringing down a National Health Insurance program, which was introduced in the Commons last month. He stated that the idea was built up and devised by the Health Minister and has received approval of every provincial government in Canada, regardless of party politics.

1,000 Times Brighter Than Sun, 'Super-Giant Red Star' Discovered

Pasadena, Calif., June 30 — (AP) — Scientists at Case Tech's observatory in Cleveland have discovered a "super-giant red star," estimated to have 10,000 times as much infra-red radiation as the sun, a Case observer reported today. In total radiation, however, its brightness amounts to only about 1,000 times that of the sun.

Dr. J. J. Nassau, director of the Cleveland observatory, said in a paper which he read to a meeting here of the American Astronomical Society that he believed infra-red photography had enabled Case to penetrate deeper into space than ever before in the history of astronomy.

Infra-red rays were used in the current discovery by Dr. Nassau and G. B. Van Albeda of The Netherlands, visiting Case professor.

Dr. Nassau said that through the study of giant red stars "we have been able to reach the limit of our own galaxy."

The new star either was at the limit of the sun's galaxy, or outside the galaxy's rim, and was the "first discovery" of its type. It's distance from the earth was estimated at 20,000 light years.

Western Allies Are Considering Direct Approach to Kremlin To Try to Settle Berlin Crisis

—BEVIN

London, June 30 — (AP) — Foreign Secretary Bevin said today the Western Allies are considering a direct approach to the Kremlin in an attempt to settle the Berlin crisis.

Bevin made his statement in a Commons debate on Germany. In reply to a suggestion from Anthony Eden, deputy Conservative leader, for a joint British-French-American note to Moscow the foreign secretary said:

"The point made by Mr. Eden of dealing with it (the crisis) in Moscow at the appropriate moment is very much in our minds."

Eden said that Moscow is where Soviet power "ultimately lies."

Earlier Bevin said the Western Powers are determined to fly food into Berlin despite the risk of trouble with Russia.

Plans for supplying the Russian blocked city by air "have gone ahead with great speed and the results that can be achieved seem likely to exceed our first expectations," he said.

Bevin spoke in a debate on Germany. He said the western powers are partners in Germany and are determined against bowing to Soviet dictation.

Earlier Anthony Eden, deputy leader of the Conservative opposition, had urged the government to tell Moscow "we are not prepared to be intimidated by brute force or blackmail."

Cheers greeted Eden's remark.

Bevin assailed the Soviet land blockade of Berlin as a violation of four-power agreements.

He said Britain stands ready to renew four-power attempts to settle the east-west blockade in Berlin once the transport blockade is lifted.

Kings Abdullah, Ibn Saud In Complete Harmony In First Meet in 25 Years

Cairo, June 30 (Reuters) — King Abdullah of Trans-Jordan and King Ibn Saud of Saudi Arabia "reached complete agreement on national and patriotic objectives" at their first meeting in 25 years, according to a joint communique issued by the Arab League today.

The two kings were "doing ther best to ensure for the Arabs their complete independence," the communique said.

They met Tuesday at Ryad, Sadi Arabia's summer capital, for the first time since enmity sprang up between them nearly 25 years ago over Ibn Saud's annexation of the kingdom of Abdullah's father, King Hussein, and his brother, King Ali.

The communique said: "The present circumstances require agreement and unity and the bearing in mind of two fundamental principles—faith in God and loyalty in defence of our existence.

"We place our full trust in the Arab League and its political committee and make known our belief that it will study the present situation fully and recommend the suitable attitude to be taken in favor of the Arab cause and the guaranteeing of Arab interests. We are sure the Arab League strives towards the establishment of peace in the Middle East.

"We are sure if the league is forced to take up arms it will be in defence of fundamental Arab interests—honor, liberty and peace...

We declare that we are in agreement in our thoughts, our opinions and our objectives, and that we are particularly in agreement in our support of the Arab League in all the decisions within the frame of the league charter and in the limits of its responsibility specially in regard to Palestine, where we are doing our best to ensure for the Arabs complete independence and sovereignty, and to rescue the country."

Robert H. Best Given Life Term For Treason

Boston, June 30. (AP)—Robert H. Best, the American newspaper man and radio propagandist for the German Nazis for $200 a month, was sentenced today to life imprisonment for treason.

The sentence was imposed by Judge Francis J. W. Ford, who also ordered Best to pay a fine of $10,000.

Judge Ford imposed the sentence after hearing T. Vincent Quinn, assistant attorney general of the United States, appeal for imposition of the death penalty.

Best's counsel, Charles W. Bartlett, asked the court for leniency on the ground that Best was "a fanatic, a crusader— doing what he thought best for his country."

4 Persons Killed And 50 Injured

Sydney, Australia, June 30 — (CP) — Four persons were killed and 50 injured early today when a passenger train jumped the track near Harden, New South Wales, and ploughed into an embankment. It was Australia's third rail disaster of the month.

Many of the 123 passengers were immigrants who arrived in Australia only Tuesday.

Three bodies were recovered shortly after the derailment from the wreckage, which was strewn for hundreds of yards along the right-of-way. Two persons suffering critical injuries were flown to Sydney, 237 miles to the northwest.

200 JOBLESS BY FIRE

Yarmouth, Me., June 30 (AP) —At least 200 persons were left jobless after a fire destroyed the Royal River Packing Corporation Sardine Plant Tuesday night with a loss estimated by the company at $100,000. Along with the two-storey wooden building, the fire destroyed 3 1-2 carloads of sardines.

Young Woman Makes Complaint Of False Arrest

New York, June 30 — (AP) — A beautiful 27-year-old brunette who says she is the daughter of a career diplomat, charged police Tuesday with false arrest in their complaint that she "loitered for purposes of prostitution" at a New York hotel and in her East Side apartment.

Mrs. Nancy Fletcher Choremi, who said her father is C. Paul Fletcher, United States consul-general at Casablanca, obtained a writ of Habeas Corpus in State Supreme Court after charging she was detained illegally and her "honor, reputation and career are at stake."

She said her husband, George, is engaged in an export-import business in Egypt.

Police refused to let her make contact with her lawyer, she said, adding that she was charged with vagrancy although she "at no time committed any crime."

Liberals Nominate W. J. Henderson

Kingston, June 30 (CP)—W. J. Henderson, 31, Kingston lawyer and war veteran, Tuesday night was named Liberal candidate for Kingston Portsmouth riding in the next federal general election at a nomination convention held here.

Henderson was defeated by Dr. H. A. Stewart, M.L.A., in the June 7 provincial election. William Norman, Kingston Liberal Association president, explained a nomination convention was being held early so that the candidate chosen would be able to attend the Liberal National convention in Ottawa next August when a successor to W. L. M. King as party leader will be named. Henderson was the unanimous choice of convention.

OCCUPATION OF PALESTINE COMES TO OFFICIAL END

Last British Soldier Boards Ship for Home

Haifa, June 30 (CP) — The last British troops left the soil of troubled Palestine today, ending 31 years of British military occupation of the Holy Land.

In strict military order, the few remaining soldiers withdrew behind barbed wire barricades to troopships and landing craft.

Lt.-Gen. Gordon H. A. MacMillan, Britain's last military commander in Palestine, was the last British soldier to leave Palestine in the evacuation which began May 15.

He stepped aboard the ship's boat at 1:41 p.m. local time, just a few moments after the Union Jack was pulled down from the harbor office.

About 2,500 troops in all were in the last group to be evacuated leaving Haifa, last British control point in the Holy Land, in Jewish hands under supervision of United Nations truce observers.

Jewish port authority police took over control of Haifa port as the last British troops left.

"The British went out of their way to hand over the port in good order," the Jewish port manager said.

MacMillan shook hands with the port authorities before leaving.

"It is a rather historical moment," he said.

Original plans called for final evacuation Aug. 1.

(In Cairo, Jamil Mardam Bey, Syrian Prime Minister, told reporters Tuesday that the Arab governments have protested to Britain against withdrawal of her troops from Haifa ahead of schedule. Mardam Bey said Arabs consider this a violation of Palestinian truce.)

Take up Positions

As British troops were brought in from their army camps to the dock area, tanks took up positions around the harbor district and a strict curfew was imposed on all civilians.

Col. Joseph Hoffman, a U. N. truce observer, said the U.N. would supervise administration of the port by Jewish authorities.

He said 25,000 Jewish refugees interned by British authorities at Cyprus would be shipped to Palestine immediately. Men of military age among the refugees will be interned in Palestine for the duration of the U.N. truce period.

Bitterness between Briton and Jew persisted to the end. Jewish officials invited MacMillan to a farewell luncheon Tuesday but the British commander cancelled his acceptance when he heard 3 British tanks had been stolen. 1 was recovered.

In Cairo, an Arab source said Tuesday night that Count Folke Bernadotte's proposals for a Palestine settlement "imply the existence of a Jewish state which the Arabs could never accept."

A high Arab official in Cairo indicated the Arab states will not react favorably to a request of an extension of the Palestine truce to continue peace talks.

Government Facts and Figures Show Reason for Rising Prices

Ottawa, June 30 — (CP) —The government, digging deep into a lot of all-too-true figures, has come up with another answer to the irksome question of why just plain living is so darned expensive.

The Bureau of Statistics issued a report Tuesday giving these reasons:

1. Canada's trade status has been upset by "austerity" restrictions on certain imports.
2. Capital expenditure — investment in buildings, machinery and equipment — is at a high level.
3. Income still is zooming.

These are the facts on that income question: salaries and wages jumped from $1,413,000,000 during the first three months of 1947 to $1,607,000,000 in the same period this year.

What's the answer? The bureau puts it this way:

"It would seem evident that until there is some reduction in the rate of capital expenditure or some increase in the economy's rate of saving."

(That last part means that the best thing Canadians can do is save more and spend less.)

In the long run, boosted production could help stem the price rise because supplies of durable goods are built up as the demand goes down.

It said that construction contracts issued during May totalled $140,000,000, almost two-thirds greater than in any other month during the last three years.

During the first quarter of 1948 fewer imports cost $27,000,000 more than imports during the same period of 1947.

Exports are up by about $96,-000,000.

"This improved trade position has meant that fewer imported goods have been available for the domestic market, while more of

Russians "Hope" Berlin Blockade Can be Lifted Soon

Barrage Balloon Raises False Scare in British Zone

Berlin, June 30 — (AP) — One tired old barrage balloon raised a false scare today that the Russians were putting up a new obstacle to the aerial food ferry route into Soviet-blockaded Berlin.

Excited United States Air Force officials, suspecting a threat to the air lifeline to Berlin, found a supposed mass of obstacles was just an old balloon that has flown a long time in the corridor between Berlin and the British zone.

The false report, presumably based on information from pilots, first came from Frankfurt and was quickly questioned by American air authorities here.

Pilots already had been warned to fly above the 5,000 foot level of the supposed obstacles.

The report on the balloons, used during the war to prevent low-level attacks on cities, came after Marshal Vassily D. Sokolovsky had cautioned against any air traffic violations, by the United States and Britain in their effort to feed Berlin with sky - borne supplies.

Britain has asked Canada and several other Dominions to lend transport planes for this work.

Russia, however, has dangled hints of hope that the food blockade may end soon.

Russian Answers

The Russian commander, replying to a British demand that he lift the land blockade or shoulder the blame for starving some 2,000,000 Berliners in the American, British and French sectors, said Tuesday night he had learned the city had enough food to last for "several weeks."

"I hope that in this time we can have the trains running as usual," he said in a letter to the British commander, Gen. Sir Brian Robertson. The letter was made public by the Soviet - licensed news agency, ADN, only a few hours after the Berlin city council appealed to the United Nations to intervene in the city's crisis to forestall "urgent danger to world peace."

At Lake Success, Trygve Lie, secretary-general of the U. N., said he has decided against seeking Security Council action concerning Berlin at this time. He made his decision after Britain, France and the United States indicated they did not think U. N. intervention proper at this time.

Charges Made

Charges made later in the official Soviet newspaper in Germany against the Allied emergency air freight service made some westerners fear it might portend a Russian attempt to restrict use of the air corridor food lifeline.

Girl Accuses Man of Beating Her in Field

Toronto, June 30 (CP)—Eight-year-old Teresa Dowling yesterday accused Gordon Harvey, father of a 19-day-old baby, of beating her May 17 and leaving her for dead in a suburban York township field.

The trial of Harvey, 21, who is charged with abduction, assault occasioning bodily harm and indecent assault, was adjourned until Friday.

The slim little girl, standing on a chair so that she could peer over the witness box, pointed to Harvey and said he was her assailant. The young boilermaker's apprentice met her accusing finger calmly.

Teresa said she was accosted the evening of May 17 while shopping near her home for a school spelling book. Her voice so soft that at times she had to be urged to speak up, she said a man took her by the hand and led her into a field. The man told her to lie down.

"He had something in his hand and started pounding my head," the girl said.

"What happened next?" she was asked.

"I don't remember. He walked away."

"What next do you remember?"

"The police came and got me. I had been in the field all night."

The girl was found, dazed and blood-smeared, May 18 among shrubs in a field. Her skull was fractured and she had to undergo a brain operation.

Police said that on the night of June 21, while touring the neighborhood of her home with her mother and officers in a police cruiser, she pointed to Harvey as he walked along a street. Police arrested him immediately.

London's Great Dock Area Again Springs to Life

London, June 30. (Reuters)— London's great dock area, strikebound for 17 days, sprang to life again today as workers obeyed their leaders' call to bow to the government's proclamation of a state of emergency to save vital supplies.

Authorities at London, Liverpool and Birkenhead, the three major ports affected, reported "a complete resumption of work; it is a 100-per-cent response."

Barges were untethered and cranes heaved into action, but it was thought likely that the effects of the hold-up would be felt until the end of the year.

Clerks, lightermen, bargemen and stevedores who had joined in the dispute were also back on the job, as were sympathy strikers on Merseyside, on England's northwest coast, and Tilbury, down-river from London.

TWO OCCUPANTS SLIGHTLY SHAKEN

Damage amounting to approximately $200 resulted to the auto, while two occupants were slightly shaken up when shortly before midnight Tuesday a car and transport were involved in a collision on No. 2 highway east of the city.

Gerald Doyle, R.C.A.F., Trenton, was driving east followed by a Boyce Transport when as he was about to turn across the boulevard, the transport ran into the side of the car. Doyle, and Miss Hazel Reid, 72 Cedar Street, riding as passenger, were shaken up.

Police Blotter

Riding into the side of a slow moving automobile, Joseph Kaiser, pupil at Queen Alexandra School, was knocked from his bicycle yesterday. The lad was not injured and no damage resulted either to the bicycle or to the auto. Driver of the car, an American tourist, reported the incident to police.

Thieves stole a new battery from a truck owned by the Truck and Farm Supply, Church Street. The truck had been parked overnight on the adjoining parking lot.

Road Committee Of County Will Call on Minister

Hastings county road committee will interview the Hon. George Doucett, Highway minister, with a request for a development grant to apply on the rebuilding of the Hastings county portion of the Campbellford-Stirling road.

This was decided by members of county council at a special meeting Wednesday which was called to discuss the establishment of two high school districts in the central and southern parts of the county.

Members of council were not a bit perturbed over the fact that Hastings had apparently been left out by the provincial government when some weeks ago it was announced that Northumberland County was being given a development grant to rebuild their share of the above road. The grant had been announced a few days prior to the provincial election.

Representative Invited

It was brought out that the Northumberland delegation which waited on the highway minister with respect to the grant had invited a representation from Hastings to accompany them. The Hastings county delegation had been named but no further word had been received from Northumberland.

Reeve Morrison of Rawdon township was of the opinion that Hastings was included in the grant given by the government for rebuilding of the road and was entitled to its share.

Deputy Reeve Spencer differed in opinion, however, and from conversation with the Hon. W. A. Goodfellow, representative, from Northumberland, felt the grant applied only to that county.

Claims County Slack

Mr. Rollins went on to suggest that the county was a trifle slack in not arranging for its own audience with the highways minister instead of waiting for an invitation to accompany the Northumberland delegation. He also felt that the Belleville Chamber of Commerce might have included county officials on their recent visit with the highways minister when they sought completion of the Bancroft-Madoc road.

Reeve Harry Harrison, Thurlow, noted that the county road committee met each year with the highways minister during which time more consideration for roads in Hastings was urged. The committee had been informed by the highways minister that until present provincial highways were brought up to standard no new roads would be taken on by the province.

Obtained Grant Last Year

He also advised that the reason the Hastings link of the Stirling-Campbellford road had not been pressed by the committee was that the county last year had obtained a development grant from the province for Wollaston township. The committee had felt it unwise to ask for more while the previous development grant was in progress of being spent.

He felt certain, however, that a proportionate grant for Hastings could be obtained to apply on the Campbellford road, providing the department were properly approached. He was of the opinion that Northumberland had not played exactly fair with Hastings in leaving its representatives out of the delegation which visited the highways minister with respect to the road.

The motion to have the county road committee interview the highways minister in the matter saw unanimous approval of council members.

Sewers Completed On Certain Streets Says Engineer

In progress since the winter, sewer construction work on Parker and Wellington Street, and on Catherine and Sidney Streets, is now completed, according to city engineer Charles Mott. The work was done by the Diamond Construction Company of this city.

Included in the work was the construction of a storm sewer on Parker and Wellington Streets, together with the construction of the sanitary sewer on Wellington Street, and also the building of a storm sewer on Sidney and Catherine Street. All contracts were completed within the the time limit set forth in the various contracts.

Contracts for the jobs were let by council under winter conditions and with the work apparently hanging on certain councillor members had asked if the contract time limit had expired before completion of the work. This question had been asked in council on two different occasions by Alderman Allin.

Monday evening Alderman Hyde, as chairman of public works, replied that the work had been completed within the time limit of the contract and this was substantiated today by the city engineer.

Bee in Truck Cab Causes Plenty of Trouble

A bee in the cab of a truck can do a lot of damage. If you do not believe it, just ask Mr. W. Bedford, Rednersville market gardner who is a regular attendant at the Belleville farmers' market.

Early this week Mr. Bedford was riding in the cab of his truck with his son-in-law at the wheel. As the truck passed along the highway near his home a bee entered the cab and stung the driver.

The result was the truck took a nose dive for the ditch and sideswiped a tree. Mr. Bedford was jolted around and suffered two fractured bones in his elbow as he struck the steel framework of the truck cab. Fortunately the truck did not overturn.

TREES PROMISED

London, Ont. — (CP) — Cutting down of trees which fronted St. Paul's Cathedral here caused so much controversy that Dean G. N. Luxton had two signs—"promissory notes" — placed marking the spits where two new trees are to be planted in the fall.

Name Directors To Supervise City Playgrounds

Directors have been appointed to supervise the playgrounds on the East and West hills according to an announcement made today by Alfred J. Davis, general secretary of the Y.M.C.A. The permission and co-operation of the Board of Education has been granted to the Y.M.C.A. to provide a recreational program for children daily except Sundays from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. commencing July 1 and continuing to August 31. The playgrounds at Bridge and Bleecker Streets and at Octavia and Catherine Streets will be operated.

In an endeavor to provide the best possible leadership every effort has been made to secure men and women with recreational skills and an understanding of the needs and interests of children. Drummond C. McDonald, recently appointed secretary for boys' work and adult program at the Y.M.C.A. has been appointed head supervisor for the playgrounds. He has had a wide experience in the Y.M.C.A. and camping field and has already established himself in the Belleville community.

Active in Toronto

J. E. Evans, a graduate of the Ontario College of Education, will be the male supervisor of the West Hill playground. With an active participation in the Toronto Y.M.C.A. as well as leadership in Sunday School work, and having special training in Industrial Arts he is fully qualified for his responsibilities.

Supervisor for the girls will be Ruth Meades who enters nurses' training this year. She has had experience in recreational leadership through the Brownies and Sunday School work and has had particular training in sports, crafts, music, and story telling.

John Sanna, graduate of McMaster University and instructor at the University of Toronto for the past two years will be male supervisor on the East Hill playgrounds. He has conducted gymnasium classes in the Y.M.C.A. in St. Catharines and Hamilton and has also led craft classes in church and Y.M.C.A. in both cities. He has been a Y.M.C.A. counsellor with considerable experience and has been a playground supervisor in Hamilton.

Well Fitted

Eleanor Finkle will supervise the girls program on the East Hill playgrounds. A graduate of Victoria University, she is entering the Ontario College of Education this year. As a Brownie leader, Guide, and member of Patrol as well as a worker with young people in Sunday School, and church Miss Finkle has the experience fitting her well for these duties.

In order to provide this recreation program for the youth of Belleville the Y.M.C.A. is supported by the Board of Education who have undertaken to put the buildings, equipment and grounds in shape for satisfactory use by July 1.

The thorough renovation of the buildings and plumbing, which have been out of use for some years, is recognized as the first essential step in preparation. All play equipment is to be inspected and repaired, and the grass, not only on the ball field but throughout the whole area is to be kept cut.

Not only is a games' program to be undertaken by the playground directors but instruction classes in hobbies and demonstrations are planned. While the operation of the playgrounds is chiefly being undertaken by the Y.M.C.A. for boys and girls 8 to 16 years it is hoped that a committee of parents and other interested persons will be organized in each playground to supervise play for younger children who should be accompanied by a parent or guardian.

Kiwanians Hold 25th Anniversary Luncheon at Centre

"There has never been an age in history in which people did not think that their age was the worst", stated Reverend W. J. Johnson in addressing the Kiwanis Club at their 25th anniversary dinner held in the Kiwanis centre Tuesday afternoon. "And there has never been a time in which man has not learned to overcome the obstacles confronting him. I can be nothing but optimistic about the future."

The Reverend Mr. Johnson opened his remarks by stating that he was an Irishman, and as such, he firmly believed in fairies, elves, banshees, and will-o-the-wisps. Among these other-world creatures were five angels who have been aided in their special tasks by Kiwanians since the founding of Kiwanis in 1915.

"Kiwanis was founded in 1915 in the midst of a world in chaos, and dedicated itself to construction. The many messages which have been received by this club from clubs in the United States show how well the spirit of building and cooperation has been developed by Kiwanis. The boundaries between are two countries serve to unite them," stated the speaker.

The first angel mentioned was Uriel, angel of light.

Fear New Phenomena

"Pessimists have always feared new phenomena. Men feared fire, lightning, flood, famine, and machines," continued the speaker, "but always they have profited from their experience and overcome all obstacles. There is something great in men — he always learns. I cannot take a pessimistic view of things today," he said.

The Reverend Mr. Johnson continued: "Men must realize that they are living in an age of science and that religion and science, walking hand in hand, will dispel the forces of darkness."

"Raphael, the angel of reason has been speeded on his way by Kiwanis," he stated. "Man is a thinker and has learned to think the thoughts of God after Him. Today, education is making great strides, but one of the greatest should be to give the student the feeling that he is recognized. I think that the Kiwanis club, through its work with the young, is doing vital service in giving people the assurance that they are recognized as personalities," he stated.

"Kiwanis is working to break down prejudice and ignorance and in that way it is helping to speed Raphael on his way."

Michael the Fighter

"Michael is the fighter," Dr. Johnson went on, "warring constantly against the forces of evil. Destructive war is evil and brings no happiness, but where love, friendship, good will, cooperation, and loyalty abound, Michael is the leader."

"Kiwanis fosters these very sentiments," continued the speaker "and in that way aids Michael's work."

"Gabriel, the angel of song, is the great unseen leader conducting the symphony of nature," stated Reverend Johnson. "The great music festivals which Kiwanis has sponsored in Toronto and elsewhere is proof that the work of Gabriel is being furthered through their efforts."

"And lastly," concluded the speaker, "is Christopher, angel of service. The big job of Kiwanis is to do good to others.

"There are your five angels, gentlemen. Keep up the good work."

The speaker was introduced by Taylor Franklin and thanked by Maurice Button.

Kiwanians Parade

Kiwanians paraded to the Centre from the firehall for their anniversary dinner, led by Jamie Clark and buglers and drummers from the Sea Cadet Corps. Those who failed to parade, paid.

Kiwanians from Kingston Picton and Cobourg were guests of the local club today. Messages of congratulation on the completion of twenty-five years of Kiwanis achievement were read from almost thirty clubs in the United States.

Legion of honor awards were given to four of the original Kiwanians who helped found the local club in 1923. Presentation of the awards to Dr. Sam Cronk, George Lee, Jack McIntosh and Ernie Finkle was made by international representative Bruce Lattimer.

Lorne McDougall was sergeant at arms. Harold Carruthers led the singing accompanied by Phil Huddlestone at the piano.

TO INCREASE PENSIONS

Montreal, June 30 — (CP)—To help in meeting the increased cost of living, the Canadian Pacific Railway has decided to supplement temporarily the allowances payable to pensioners receiving less than $45 per month, it was announced here Tuesday.

Pensioners who now receive, or who will receive under the pension rules from $30 to $40 monthly will see this amount increased by $5, and those receiving from $40 to $45 will have their monthly total brought up to the latter figure.

Men Careless About Hair-Cuts; Barber Always Has Upper Hand

Men get their hair cut when their wives tell them to and apart from that they haven't the least bit of interest in it. What do we care how it looks, they chorus, just so we get is cut.

They flop themselves down in the barber's chair and leave it up to him. However, the question of sideburns has to be decided. It seems that during the winter months sideburns have a decided advantage due to their warming effect; just how many B.T.U.'s there are in a sideburn has not been decided. These must be shaved off in the summer to allow the wind to whistle past the ears.

The length of hair seems to be a matter of location. If the customer is from out of town a certain amount of abandon can be exercised in connection with the length; a local customer needs a little more care. It all depends upon persuasiveness of the barber and it seems that some men do get fond of short hair in time.

One Barber says that men have hair in their ears; this is cut out with the clippers being careful not to catch the drum. One night a drunk wandered in for a shave. He opened his mouth while having his moustache clipped and nearly swallowed the clippers.

The barber definitely has the upper hand. No discussions of hair styles take place and should some adventurous chap suggest a snip here and a snip there; he is listened to in heavy silence and perhaps the back is cut just a wee shade higher than before. This usually stops this sort of bravado.

The men do however have the hair above their ears shaved in order to produce a sort or relief effect around their ears. There must be a reason!

The small indulgence that is allowed them is a pale pink powder for after-shaving known as "pink powder." No feminine fripperies here.

Just to show you how careless men are about haircuts in general one man visiting Belleville today stated that he had his hair cut three times in three days. It seems he had it done once in Orillia; stopped in Toronto to have a shave, the barber thought he wanted a hair cut and so he had it done again. He travelled back to Orillia and tested his own barber. Without a word his barber cut it again! That he said was too much!

Financial Negotiations

Washington, June 30. (AP)—The United States and Yugoslavia were reported near final agreement today on a financial deal which would net Marshal Tito's government about $30,000,000.

The extended negotiations over this money accord may have been one of the issues that set off the cominform attack Monday against the Belgrade chief.

For several months the United States government has been seeking payment of about $20,000,000 in claims for American property nationalized in Yugoslavia. Tito, on the other hand, has been laying claim to some $50,000,000 in Yugoslav assets which the United States froze in 1941 to keep it out of Axis hands.

About a month ago, however, the Yugoslavs appeared anxious to reach a reasonable settlement on the nationalized property. They are reported to have proposed a figure somewhere near the $20,000,000 asked by the United States.

The American government, in turn, appeared ready to unfreeze the $50,000,000 in Yugoslav funds as its part of the two-way arrangement.

The reported financial deal evidently has not been directly influenced by Tito's sensational split with Communist leaders. But it does tie in with growing speculation here that if he finds himself in an impossible position with his Moscow Allies, he may turn actively to the western powers for help.

RUSSIANS "HOPE"

"Claims that this service is designed to feed Berlin are a bluff to cloak the plundering of the city by shipping out machinery and products on the return flight," the paper, Taegliche Runschau, said.

United States air force planes landed at Berlin's American airfield at eight-minute intervals Tuesday in an effort to stretch out available food supplies in the western sectors until late July or early August.

The R.A.F. also took an active part in the shuttle service.

Sokolovsky also announced that the highway to Berlin from the west would remain closed indefinitely "to stop illegal importation of currency from the western zones to Berlin."

Barge Traffic Halted

A British official in Hamburg said today that barge traffic, the British zone's last ground supply link with Berlin , has stopped moving along the Elbe River. The barges had been held up at the Russian control point at Wittenberg.

The Russians relented in one phase of their blockade. Through their official press they announced they had offered to restore fresh milk deliveries to western sectors from their surrounding zone"in exchange for compensating foodstuffs."

In the Soviet zone the Russian-sponsored Socialist Unity Party announced a two-year economic plan for the Soviet occupation zone. The program called for increased production during the 1948 and further big advances in 1949-50.

Demand for Farm Labor Reaching All-Time High

With haying oerations now in full swing throughout the Hastings district, the demand for farm labor is reaching an all-time high according to officials of the local Employment Service. With the labor supply short it was expected that many of the applications for farm workers would not be filled.

Up tc the present time eight farmer workers from western Canada had reported at the local employment office. There are applications for approximately 40 men from the West.

Wednesday morning, four Dutch single men arrived in the city and were posted to farmers in Prince Edward and in Hastings.

Thursday morning 35 Displaced Persons from Central Europe are expected to arrive in the city to be placed on farms in the Belleville district. All the D.P.'s are single men and are under agreement to stay in agricultural work for one year after their arrival in Canada.

The majority of the Displaced Persons expected to arrive were confined to German concentration camps for periods during the war.

Decision Reserved On Radio Station For Smiths Falls

Montreal, June 30 — (CP) — Supplementary information regarding applications for radio station licences, for operation at Smiths Falls, Ont., and Roberval, Que., were heard Tuesday by the CBC Board of Governors. Decision was reserved.

Clarence Warner apeared for Warner, Warner, Pollie, Cullen and Company, seeking the Smiths Falls licence.

Mr. Warner, asking for a 250-watt broadcasting licence, said he already has $6,700 lined up in National advertising business. From a survey he had made and he is confident Smiths Falls could withstand another depression if one should come.

He would like to start operations in September. At first the transmitter building would be used for studios. There now is $12,500 cash on hand for financing.

A Department of Transport witness said their investigation showed the department is prepared to negotiate with the Federal Communications Commission of the United States concerning a 250-watt station in Smiths Falls. If there was difficulty with the F. C. C., the station's power might have to be reduced to 100 watts.

Chairman A. D. Dunton of the CBC board told Mr. Warner he wanted to make it clear there is no assurance of CBC network facilities.

Mr. Warner said he was prepared to go ahead without this and that the station would be only a daily advertising medium in Smiths Falls. He said he already had promises of $2,000 monthly in advance as advertising revenue.

Rains Brighten Crop Outlook

Toronto, June 30 — Rains have brightened the entire crop outlook throughout the province, the Ontario Agriculture Department's weekly crop report said Tuesday.

Rain was badly needed in Halton county and the new moisture will prove a stimulant to spring grain crops. Lambton county reports that the rains will serve to fill out the grain and add to the heavy hay fields.

Strawberries and root crops benefited from the moisture and prospects for a big yield in the latter are reported excellent.

Liberals Increase Their Total Vote In New Brunswick

Fredericton, June 30 — (CP)—With about 10 per cent of the vote still to be recorded, this year's New Brunswick election figures were slightly lighter than in 1944 — 506,135 to 584,016.

While the total possible vote was somewhat reduced by the fact that five members were returned by acclamation in Gloucester, this in turn was almost offset by the addition of four new seats, one in each of four multi-member constituencies. One of the new seats was in Gloucester itself; in Moncton city electors could vote for two candidates compared to one in 1944; in Restigouche and in Madawaska they could vote for three instead of two.

Therefore, leaving the acclamations out of it, the electorate this year had 17 men to elect compared to 48 in 1944.

With one less man to elect, the Liberals ran their total vote from 282,367 in 1944 to 290,343 in 1948, increasing the average vote per Liberal candidate from 5,882 in 1944 to 6,177 in 1948.

The Progressive Conservative total dropped from 233,401 in 1944 to 157,080 in 1948, but they had only 40 candidates running, compared to 48 in the previous election. The Progressive Conservative average-per-candidate was down from 4,862 in 1944 to 3,927 this year.

Similarly, the C. C. F. total dropped from 68,248 in 1944 to 32,595 this year. With only 20 candidates running, however, compared to 41 in 1944, the average - per - candidate was little changed — 1664 in 1944 and 1629 yesterday.

WANTED FAMILY WARD

Regina — (CP) — A local woman cracked her hip recently in the General Hospital while visiting her father. She will still be able to visit her father who is in the same hospital but won't be able to see her mother who is in the Grey Nuns across the street.

Woman Given Two Years In Reformatory

Sault Ste. Marie, June 30 (CP) — Judge J. H. McDonald Tuesday morning sentenced Mrs. Margaret McLean to serve two years, less one day, for her part in the armed robbery of the Royal Bank branch at Wellington and John Streets on April 22 for which Edward Greschuk is serving a five-year term in Kingston penitentiary.

Judge McDonald found Mrs. McLean guilty on the third count of the indictment which charged her with being an accessory after the fact to the armed robbery.

He said that he had come to the conclusion Mrs. McLean was the driver of the car used in the robbery and that she waited outside while Greschuk robbed the bank.

However, in view of certain evidence presented, Judge McDonald said that it was difficult to state the exact extent of Mrs. McLean's guilt and found her guilty on the third count.

The other two counts were robbing the bank and being an accomplice to armed robbery.

Mrs. McLean's sentence will date back to April 22 when she was taken into custody.

The 28-year-old mother of three children and Greschuk were arrested only a few hours after the bank had been robbed of $10,000.

Mrs. McLean showed very little emotion when she heard her sentence.

She smiled a bit while being escorted out of the court room.

Canada in World Role

Eighty-one years ago on July 1st Canada became a nation, the first Dominion in the British Empire. The British North America Act passed by the Parliament of Britain on July 1st, 1867 brought together Upper Canada (Ontario), Lower Canada (Quebec), Nova Scotia and New Brunswick into the federation of British Provinces.

In those eighty-one years the Dominion has developed, more of the Canadian Provinces joining, Manitoba in 1870, British Columbia in 1871, Prince Edward Island in 1873, Alberta and Saskatchewan (from the Northwest Territories) in 1905.

Confederation was a mark of progress in the growth of importance of the Provinces for united the Dominion of Canada is more than the sumtotal of the Provinces.

Today as the senior member of the British Commonwealth of Nations the Dominion assumes greater importance than ever in her history. As a member of the United Nations Council she has been able to take a leading position in world affairs as spokesman for the middle powers. Her position as the world's third trading nation has given this country new and grave responsibilities in the prolonged post-war unsettlement.

Canadians can look back on a past, rich in the examples of manly courage and enterprise in developing this vast land stretching from the Atlantic to the Pacific Ocean. This story of development will forever be an inspiration to other lands. The far-flung Colonies in North America had found their way to unity and political harmony step by step. Self-government and legislative union of Upper and Lower Canada was one of these first steps of progress. Out of this came in the course of time Confederation.

Onward the nation moved. The Dominion gained new powers which added to her responsibility as well as to her independence. In 1879, she obtained the right to give preference in tariffs to another Colony or Dominion, in 1881 the right of representation when treaties concerning her interests were being discussed and in 1897 the right to demand that a treaty considered inimical to her interests should be repealed.

The Statute of Westminster of 1931, however, saw Canada reach the culmination of the steps towards independent nationhood. This country was therein defined as one of the "autonomous communities within the British Empire, equal in status, in no way subordinate, one to another, in any respect of their domestic or external affairs, though united by a common allegiance to the Crown and freely associated with them as members of the British Commonwealth of Nations."

Recently the world saw another proof of the freedom which Britain gives, as India, Pakistan and Ceylon assume fuller stature as Dominions. Canada has served well as an example and inspiration to her sister Dominions.

In the British Commonwealth of Nations is indicated to the world one of the great democratic principles of all time. In this age when the Old World is torn with so much anxiety and split into so many smaller segments that federation of states is again seen as the best possible step to guarantee the civilization which Europe and the West have produced, confederation as shown in Canada might well be an example for a Confederation of Europe.

Costly Traffic Accidents

there is any means of preventing at least wealth on the roads, highways and streets of Canada was told at a meeting of the Canadian Federation of Mayors and Municipalities. It was that five persons die every day in the Dominion in traffic accidents, and property losses are incurred at the rate of one hundred and forty dollars every minute. The sumtotal of economic loss is more than seventy million dollars every year. Such figures are appallingly large and enough to make every citizen think deeply and for motorists and pedestrians to put themselves on the stand and ask what they are doing to cause this and what they are doing to prevent this and what they have achieved by their efforts to save life and property.

Figures presented showed that only about ten per cent of accidents can be traced to mechanical defects. The inference is clear.

Ottawa Journal commenting on this "terrible toll in human lives" says these figures should cause "many to wonder if there is any means of preventing at least a part of this annual loss" and suggests that one method would appear to be greater education of all three groups of people concerned, the police, motorists and pedestrians. Too much is being taken for granted, for instance that practically anyone capable of shifting gears and pressing an accelerator should be allowed to drive a car. There is little or no attempt made by any agency to teach ordinary traffic manners and courtesy and the rules of proper and organized driving, says the Journal, adding that "disregard of these simple and fundamental rules is the cause of many an accident."

This awful toll on roadways and highways and streets calls for the closest attention of everyone, driver and pedestrian. Everyone must feel an interest for it affects everyone at lease economically for it lays an immense burden of wastage of wealth upon the country and worse than that it takes a toll of life which would mean the equivalent of a very large village of people every year.

Some day by some means conditions will be improved for the losses are too great to be continued. Education of drivers and pedestrians — in fact of everyone — will in the meantime serve a great purpose in preventing accidents.

This is the holiday season with more highway traffic than ever in the year. The lesson is clear — drive with vigilance and walk with care to save your own life and limbs and those of others.

New Plague in West

The ancient Egyptians were visited by 10 plagues, and no doubt felt themselves very badly done by. However, Western Canada this year seems likely to equal the Egyptians in number, if not in intensity. The Winnipeg Free Press lists seven of them—floods, forest fires, frost, cut worms, drouth, soil drift, and now grasshoppers. The 'hoppers are the latest to arrive, and are doing considerable damage in central Saskatchewan and some other areas. No one cares to predict what might come next.

The hot weather of the last few weeks has hatched the grasshoppers in the billions in Saskatchewan. Fortunately, the Western farmers are not as helpless as the Egyptians were, when the locusts descended upon their fields. Tons of poison are being flown to the affected areas, and farmers are spreading it by every means possible. They are using sprays, home-made spreaders, and even by hand. In some places, flame-throwers are used to destroy the young 'hoppers before they can get started. But even with the best efforts, they have destroyed thousands of acres of young crops.

The grasshoppers flourish in hot, dry weather, and the best answer to them is a good soaking rain and slightly lower temperatures. However, the farmers cannot afford to wait for it. They are out, day and night, fighting the grasshoppers with every weapon that comes to hand. — Cornwall Standard Freeholder.

Nosey Types

A zoology professor at the University of Nebraska says there are eight basic kinds of noses. We don't know what they are, but our eight favorite kinds of noses are as follows, says the St. Louis Post Dispatch.

The nose that is followed by its owner, that nose that is not poked into other people's business, the nose that isn't kept too close to the grindstone, the nose that isn't altogether as plain as one on a man's face, the nose that isn't being paid through, the nose that isn't cut off to spite a face, the nose that isn't turned up at anything, and the nose that isn't looked down at anyone.

When these eight basic noses are brought together in one basic nose, we not only like it, but the person that goes with it.

SEASON'S END

Put away the yellow candles
And the cups with double handles,
Put away the shallow saucers
For the carrots and the peas.
Put away the bunting, splendid.
Now the banquet season's ended,
Put away the long head-table.
It is time to be at ease.

We are done with chicken winging,
Done with song sheets and the singing,
Done with picture-taking fellows
On their ladders towering high;
Done with women, young and older,
Ladling soup across your shoulder,
And the one who wants your ticket
Ere she passes you the pie.

Put away that grim loud speaker
Which turns out to be a squeaker;
And that list of willing workers
To be asked "to take a bow!"
Send the makers of orations
On their annual vacations,
For the banquet season's over.
It's the picnic season now.

FLOODS DEBATE

Agriculture Minister Gardiner declined to indicate when the ban on beef exports to the United States will be lifted.

Labor Minister Mitchell said no government controller will be appointed for companies involved in the lake shipping dispute.

The Senate met briefly and adjourned until today for the possible prorogation ceremony.

Opening the flood debate, Mr. Cruickshank felt the government could do more than grant $5,000,000 for the relief of the 2,500 farmers in the Fraser Valley. It had found all the money it needed to fight the war and had made large grants towards European relief.

He did not believe it was the wish of the Canadian people that only $5,000,000 be provided for the flood victims.

E. D. Fulton (PC — Kamloops) said rough estimates indicated damages in Fraser Valley alone would come to $30,000,000. This did not include the cost to the other flooded areas.

Mr. Cruickshank was joined by Howard Green (PC — Vancouver South) and Rodney Young (CCF — Vancouver Centre) in urging more extensive dredging of the Fraser River.

Works Minister Fournier, whose department handles dredging said he would act on the recommendations of his engineers, now in British Columbia. Should they recommend extensive dredging operations, he would try to find sufficient funds for the work.

Will Not Say

In the side debate on prices, Finance Minister Abbott reiterated that he could not say when the government would remove the 25-per-cent excise taxes imposed last November in the dollar-conservation program. This was one of the recommendations of the prices committee.

However, the government would give "immediate" consideration to the committee's suggestions, which also included a request for reimposition of some price ceilings and revival of some subsidies.

Stanley Knowles (CCF — Winnipeg North Centre) said the question of the high cost of living was "embarrassing" to the government.

Angus McInnis (CCF — Vancouver East) said the people were more worried about the cost of living than about budget surpluses.

Mr. Dalton drew attention to the fact the government had reported a surplus of $255,000,000 for the first two months of the current fiscal year and said that at this rate it would end the year with a surplus of $1,000,000,000.

Rodney Adamson (PC — York West) tried unsuccessfully to abolish the foreign exchange control board by moving that an estimate for $268,000, earmarked to cover the board's expenditures, be reduced to $1. The motion was defeated on a vocal vote.

He felt that the abolition of the board and the lifting of its restrictions on currency would help to ease inflation.

He said the board's restrictions were preventing a necessary flow of free trade between Canada and the United States.

MORAVIA R. FLOODS TOWNS OF NISH AND PEROTTE

Paris, June 30 (AP) — The United Nations International Children's emergency fund said Monday night it had received a message from Belgrade that the Moravia River had flooded the towns of Nish and Perotte. It was not determined immediately whether there were any casualties.

ACUTE SITUATION IN PERU

Lima, Peru, June 30 (AP) — President Jose Luis Bustamante Rivero declared Monday night that Peru is in a state of "acute national crisis." He said he will assume extraordinary powers to rule by decree. Political tension in Peru had become "dangerous" and there were indications that "something violent and obscure is being hatched at the bottom of the political strata."

FLATTER HEELS OR NONE AT ALL

A news story quotes a chiropodist who opined that girls who wear flat heels in their 'teens are likely to have thick ankles and legs almost as muscular and unattractive as men's legs when they are grown up. So the chiropodist advised girls to wear higher heels.

The thickness of ankles does not depend on the muscularity of the legs. As a rule the ankles of a young woman who is fairly athletic are at least as slender and look more slender than those of a young woman who wears high heels constantly and is therefore unable to indulge in any greater physical activity than walking a few yards a day—like a horse.

In these sad days of high school imitaton of university football, children in their early 'teens smoking, drinking, and other manifestations of degeneracy we need not mention here, the shoe store people clearly regard you as a nut if you ask what ever became of the "spring heels" which girls wore when you and I were young, Maggie. It is the same reaction as that you got when you tried to buy in Winter time a pair of oxfords (low shoes) such as some people wore in the summer. You had to take high shoes (boots) if the calendar said it was winter, or wait till next summer.

My advice to anybody and everybody not under medical or surgical care for foot trouble is this: The less heel you wear at any time the better. In fact the less boot, shoe or foot cover you wear at any time the better. This applies to good health, good looks and comfort. I assume you are not an idiot and so you know enough to protect your feet from rough going and from snakebite.

Further I advise that the less rigidity, restriction, pressure, confinement or support your footwear imposes upon your feet the better.

If any one wants my opinion or advice about footwear (any one, that is, not under the care of physician or surgeon) it narrows down to this:

Go barefoot or as nearly as possible barefoot as much of the time as you can—this will keep your feet, legs and health at their best.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Human Anatomy

Please recommend a book for laymen who want to learn something of human anatomy.

(R. T. M.)

Answer —Only thing of the kind I have seen is Atlas of Human Anatomy, 80 pages with excellent colored illustrations, published by Barnes & Noble Inc., New York.

Bed Wetting

Seventeen, still wets the bed. I know how embarrassing it is for the poor kid because I was fifteen before I stopped wetting the bed . . . doctors say the child will outgrow it but . .

(P. R. F.)

Answer — Send stamped self addressed envelope and ask in writing for pamphlet The Bed-Wetting Habit. A good many healthy normal young recruits for Army and Navy had to be treated for bed-wetting before they were assigned for service.

No Throwback

After I married I learned that my husband had colored blood. His great grandfather was German, married an Irish woman, his grandfather from that union married an Indian part Negro, his father Indian part Negro married to an Indian part Negro. They are all very light, my husband looking like a German blonde. I am Irish and English. Is our daughter likely to have colored children?

(Mrs. M. H. R.)

Answer—Your daughter's children will be not darker nor more German - Indian - Irish - Negro looking than herself or her husband. Aside from apocryphal stories and malicious gossip such a thing as a "throw-bac" just does not happen in the human family.

STRENGTH FOR THE DAY

By
EARL L. DOUGLASS, D.D.

INDIFFERENCE AS BAD AS WICKEDNESS

When Dwight Moody was visiting England, he was asked whether he thought enough was being done to bring the gospel to the unsaved masses, and Moody's answer was, "I am told that there are 150,000 people in this very city of Sheffield who never go near a place of worship, and for whom there is actually no church accommodation provided, even if they were willing to take advantage of it. It seems to me, if there be upon God's earth one blacker sight than these thousands of graceless souls, it is the thousands of dead and slumbering Christians living in their very midst, rubbing shoulders every day with them upon the streets, and never so much as lifting up a little finger to warn them of death and eternity and the judgment to come.

"Talk of being sickened at the sight of the world's degradation! Let those of us who are Christian hate our vices because of our own degradation and pray God to deliver us from the calamity of the world's blood. I believe that if there is one thing that pierces the Master's heart with unutterable grief, it is not just the world's iniquity but the Church's indifference."

This declaration needs hardly more than just to be stated to be understood. We need the full grace of God, however, to take it to our hearts and do something about it.

Freedom of the Press

What precisely is meant by that familiar phrase, 'freedom of the press'?

Fundamentally it is not a special privilege reserved for newspaper publishers. It is rather a phase of a much larger freedom—the freedom of all men to speak their minds openly and without fear. The press claims no right which should not belong to every citizen in a democracy, but freedom of the press is an all-important part of this larger freedom; because, under modern conditions, the press is the principal agency by which the ordinary man receives the information he needs to judge the actions of his rulers and make up his mind on public issues. Without newspapers, or with only gagged and blindfolded ones, he is in the dark, and helpless. An unfettered press is therefore one of the essential bulwarks of a democratic world

If any proof be needed, it is provided by the record of the Fascist and Nazi dictatorships. Rigid control of all sources of public information, and especially of newspapers, was the corner-stone upon which those regimes were founded. Without it, they could never have held power. With it, they could do as they pleased, to the eventual ruin of their own peoples as well as much of the rest of the world

This disastrous chapter of history should provide a warning against any attempt, by governments or by private interests, to restrict the essential freedom of the press. A free people must stand on guard not only against direct censorship, but also against more insidious encroachments. Nominal freedom is not enough. The only truly free press is one which can record the news faithfully and comment on it frankly, without fear of direct or indirect punishment. Neither the press nor the public is safe with anything less than this.

All liberty, of course, involves obligations. The obligation of a free press is to be truly free. It must be thorough, accurate and unbiased in its reporting, sincere and thoughtful in its editorials, and resistant to all outside pressure. It must be both cautious and bold—cautious until it knows all the facts, bold when it is sure of its ground. It must, above all, be inspired by devotion to the public welfare as its staff understands it.

Such a newspaper is worthy of the privileges which the English-speaking peoples have traditionally granted to their press. Such a newspaper is also the best guardian of the liberties of the people.

Pupils, Teachers Entertained At Foxboro School

On Friday, June 25th., pupils and teachers of Wallbridge, Turner's, Marsh Hill and Brookdale Public Schools were entertained at Foxboro Public School.

At nine o'clock in the morning about 200 pupils with their teachers assembled on the school grounds and devotional exercises were conducted by the pupils and their teacher, Mrs. John Good of Marsh Hill School. Rev. Lloyd A. Shorten, Foxboro, addressed the children. He referred to the many buildings which are being erected in this vicinity and to construction in which children are always keenly interested. He drew attention to the great amount of digging required and the importance of the foundation. In a deeply inspiring manner he led the children to see that they are, during their school years laying the foundations on which they must build their lives.

The pupils of Wallbridge School under the direction of their teacher, Mrs. Irene Phillips presented a play, "The Brahman, the Jackal and the Tiger". The script had been prepared by the pupils. Two little girls from this school sang a duet. Marsh Hill girls sang "Flow Gently Sweet Afton" in two parts and Mrs. Iva Rikley's pupils furnished musical numbers

At the close of this program all schools marched to the flag pole where an impressive flag-raising ceremony took place.

Under the guidance of Mrs. Good, Mrs. Rikley and Mrs. Sine, pupils of Grades 1, 2, 3, and 4 were taken into the school building and a film in which Shirley Temple played the story of "Heidi" was greatly enjoyed.

The Senior pupils on the school grounds carried on organized sports under the direction of Rev. Mr. Shorten, Mrs. Hayton and Mrs. Phillips.

When the film was completed the juniors went outside for games and the Seniors went inside to see the picture.

At twelve o'clock everyone sat down to a picnic lunch. Foxboro school furnished iced lemonade after lunch. Mr. Everson, teacher at Brookdale School took charge of a Senior ball game.

The afternoon program was carried on in a similar manner. The feature film was "Victor Hugo's "Les Miserables". Several cartoon films were also shown and greatly delighted both young and old.

Mrs. Phillips and Mrs. Good on behalf of the visiting schools thanked the teachers and pupils at Foxboro for a profitable and pleasant day. In response Mrs. Sine said the success of the day belonged as much to the visitors. It had been a co-operative effort and had proved very worthwhile.

Kindly parents with trucks and cars were responsible for transportation.

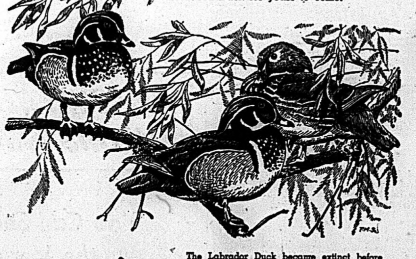
Doomed to extinction?

A duck that nests in trees and prefers wooded swamps to open water! That's the Wood Duck, the most beautiful of our waterfowl. They are well protected by law, but the draining of wetlands and clearing away of the dead tree trunks they nest in presents a serious threat to their survival. Everything you do to preserve their natural nesting areas will help to conserve the Wood Duck for years to come.



The Labrador Duck became extinct before 1900. Today 44 stuffed specimens are all that remain of this little sea-duck, showing what happens when sound conservational practices are neglected.

Quake Casualties Total Thousands Estimates State

By FRANK L. WHITE

Fukui, Japan, June 29 (AP)—Allied sources said today the number of dead and injured here would total 2,500 after Monday's violent earthquake.

(A Reuters report quoted a military government team as saying 3,155 were dead and 7,752 seriously injured. The team said that this deathroll covered Fukui city and 39 surrounding villages and that the city itself had 1,000 dead).

Those who went through the 'quake here said it was almost as if Fukui was hit by an atom bomb. The city of 85,000 is heavily damaged.

The first tremors burst water mains. Fires flashed but authorities were helpless before the flames without water.

Half the city, mostly wooden houses and structures, went down in the first tremor or so. Ninety-five per cent of what was left was burned and scorched and turned into rubble.

Governor Harukazu Obata of Fukui Province estimated throughout the area that 3,155 Japanese were killed and 7,752 were injured severely. These totals include Fukui city, rebuilt from the ruins of a wartime B-29 raid. It is 200 miles west of Tokyo.

Throughout the prefecture, the governor added, 30,721 dwellings of all types were wholly or partially destroyed.

During the first hours, 1,000 injured Japanese moved through an American first aid station here. Brig.-Gen. Eugene L. Harrison, in charge of the station, said about 10 per cent of the first thousand patients were hurt seriously.

Harrison said 39 bodies had been recovered. Sixteen of them were under a collapsed theatre and the balance under a meeting house.

Australia Downs England by 409 In Second Match

London, June 29 (Reuters) — Australia today defeated England by 409 runs in the second cricket test match at Lord's. The tourists also won the first match at Nottingham.

England's 10th and last wicket in the second innings fell just after lunch for a score of 186. England's first-innings score was 215, while Australia scored 350 in the first innings and 460 for seven wickets, declared, in the second.

The end came in the third after lunch when Douglas Wright England bowler, was caught off a ball by fastbowler Lindwall.

The result was a foregone conclusion when play started this morning with England needing 499 runs with seven wickets to fall. But what was not expected was England's complete collapse.

Dennis Compton was out to the second ball of the day to a catch by Miller and the English captain, Norman Yardley, was bowled by Ernest Toshack.

The remaining wickets then fell cheaply.

Toshack had the best figures of the Australian bowlers in the second innings, getting five wickets for 40 runs.

Prime Minister King May Possibly Attend Commonwealth Meeting

Ottawa, June 30 (CP) — Prime Minister Mackenzie King indicated to the Commons Tuesday he may possibly attend the October meeting of Commonwealth Prime Ministers despite his expected departure from leadership of the Canadian government in August.

Answering a series of questions in the House, he said Prime Minister Attlee had expressed the wish that he attend the London meeting personally. He had explained about the August convention.

"As to what will be thought best to do can best be decided, I should think, after that meeting (the convention)," he added.

Replying to C. C. F. leader Coldwell's question as to the purpose of the Empire gathering, Mr. King said he presumed it would be similar to the Prime Ministers' meeting held two years ago and that "matters of general interest to all the nations of the Commonwealth" would be discussed.

"However," he said, "I am not aware of any general agenda which has been arranged thus far."

Guerrillas Take Malayan Town

Singapore, June 30 — (AP) Two Guerrilla bands striking from the Malayan jungle captured the town of Jerontut in Pahgna State Monday night.

The raiders set fire to the police station, then withdrew with at least five hostages including a police officer, after shooting up the town, which lies 250 miles north of Singapore.

More than 40 persons have been killed in two months of violence which British authorities blame on the communists.

Calls German S.D. Leaders Spies Of West Powers

Berlin, June 30 — (AP)—The Russian - sponsored press Tuesday accused Kurt Schumacher and other German Social Democrat leaders of being anti-Russian spies in the pay of the western powers.

The official Soviet newspaper Taegliche Rundschau carried the charges in the form of a "confession" bearing the signature of Wilhelm Lohrenz, former member of the Social Democratic party executive committee in Berlin. Lohrenz has been in Russian custody for two years.

The Social Democratic party, a left-wing organization, has been the bitterest and most outspoken enemy of German communists and Russian policy in Germany. Schumacher is leader of the party.

Lohrenz was quoted by the paper as saying he was arrested in 1946 while on a spying trip into the Russian zone for Schumacher and United States authorities.

The statement said: "Schumacher is attempting to convert the organs of the party into a spying organization under the orders of English-American Imperialistic circles."

Several American and British military government officials were named in the "confession."

16 Jet Fighters Will Pay Visit To Great Britain

Washington, June 29 — (AP)—The United States Air Force, which some day may need quick reinforcement in Europe, will send 16 jet fighters off on an exploratory trans-Atlantic flight next week.

The mission of the trip, said an announcement today, is "to determine the feasibility of ferrying jet-propelled combat aircraft over the route, study the logistical and operational problems involved" and get in some limited training overseas.

In Britain, the fighters will pay a visit to the R. A. F. base at Odiham from which a flight of British jets is scheduled to depart July 1 for a visit to the United States.

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

They go wild, simply wild over a long suit. So much so that they forget the tricks to be lost in other suits. As a result they open without enough and wonder what struck them.

South is the dealer and holds this hand:

♠A Q J 10 8 4
♥J 6 4
♦6 5 2
♣10

It lacks stuff and things for an opening bid. It is short a sure trick. It is short two high cards. It is short a trick. All of these is it short for an opening bid of one spade.

All it has is a good looking double breasted long suit with a hole in it. The lapels are missing. It is frayed around the edges. There is no lining to it. Otherwise, the hand is undressed.

When a partner is caught opening such a hand he gives you some argument. It may be this: "Sure it is missing a high card and sure trick strength. But it has compensating values in my trump suit."

Compensating values my eyebrow! What the guy had was nothing but an uncontrollable urge. He could not restrain the desire to play the hand at his long trump suit.

Times are when some standard needs of a hand may be replaced with substitutes. Such substitutes may compensate for other items. But they are compensating values only when the subs are adequate.

Having heard of such synthetic replacements, some players take advantage of the idea. A stubborn ox uses it as an excuse to break rules without knowing how to warn partner of what he is doing.

Unusual trump length will often compensate for a lack of big cards in that particular suit. Or in support of partner when also having short suits. But not for the losers in the same hand.

This dealer should pass. He can respond if partner passes. Or even stick in a low gambling defence. But if he opens such a hand he should order another round of compensating values.

Intercounty Race Tightest in Years

(By The Canadian Press)

That fight for first place in the Intercounty Baseball League couldn't be much closer even if the league called in a script writer. First the pace-setting Waterloo Tigers seem headed for a neat lead and then the second-place Stratford Nationals close in to whittle down that lead.

Last night was no different. The Tigers held off Guelph Maple Leafs to hang up a 7-5 decision to boost their lead to one full game over the idle Stratford club, while Guelph, by losing, dropped 5½ games off the pace in fifth spot. No other intercounty games were played.

In the Nickle Belt League, league-leading Sudbury Shamrocks defeated Garson Greyhounds 8-4, while the Frood Tigers - Copper Cliff Redmen tilt was postponed because of wet grounds. The lone Timiskaming loop game saw McIntyre Macmen edge Kirkland Lake Greyhounds 2-1. The Central Ontario circuit fixture between Oshawa and Batawa also was postponed. It will be played Thursday as part of a twin bill.

Bucky Harris Predicts New York Yankees Will Win American Loop Flag

By JOE REICHLER
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

Manager Bucky Harris of the New York Yankees put his neck in a noose today by predicting flatly his world baseball champions would win the American League flag again.

This sudden burst of frankness might have been prompted by last night's 7-0 victory over Boston Red Sox.

It wasn't the result of the victory so much as the fact that the triumph came on the anniversary of the start of their epochal 19-game winning streak of last year, which made a shambles of the American League pennant race.

A season record Yankee Stadium crowd of 70,491 saw Ed Lopat make it three straight for the New Yorkers.

The red-haired southpaw handcuffed the Sox with three singles. Ted Williams got one of these to extend his consecutive hitting streak to 15 games, but his league - leading average dropped three points to .412.

The victory enabled the Yankees to move into second place, one game behind the leading Cleveland Indians.

Fireballer Bobby Feller gave a display of his old - time form, pitching the Indians to a 6-2 triumph over Detroit Tigers. Feller fanned eight and scattered eight hits in beating his old rival, southpaw Hal Newhouser. It was Feller's seventh victory against 8 losses.

A's String Snapped

Washington snapped Philadelphia Athletics' seven - game winning streak with a 5-3 victory. The victory boosted the Nats into fifth place ahead of the Tigers. The Penetanguishene, Ont., pitcher, Phil Marchildon, was the loser. It was his sixth defeat against four victories.

Chicago White Sox moved within 2½ games of the seventh-place St. Louis Browns by defeating the Brownies 4-1. Lefty Bill Wight pitched seven-hit ball for his fifth victory.

The fourth place New York Giants emerged from their batting slump with a vengeance, poling 5 home runs to swamp Warren Spahn and Boston Braves 11-3. Sir Gordon paced the Giants' 17-hit attack with two home runs.

The Braves retained their 1st-place lead of half a game over St. Louis Cardinals as the Redbirds were whipped by the Cubs in Chicago 3-1. Johnny Schmitz downed Harry (The Cat) Brecheen in a southpaw duel.

A pinch single by Howie Schultz in the 14th inning scored Ted Kluszewski from third with the run that gave Cincinnati Reds a 6-5 victory over Pittsburgh Pirates in the longest National League night game of the year.

A two-base muff of a fly ball by centrefielder Carl Furillo paved the way for two Philadelphia runs which gave Blix Donnelly and the Phils a 2-1 victory over Ralph Branca and Brooklyn Dodgers. It snapped Branca's 7-game winning streak.

Ezzard Charles Signs to Meet Jimmy Bivins

New York, June 30 — (AP)— It's been less than five days since Joe Louis laid his crown aside but already there is considerable stirring in heavyweight boxing ranks.

Here are the rapid-fire developments:

1. Ezzard Charles, Cincinnati light heavy rated a leading contender, is reported ready to "fight from one to 10" for the championship and, as a starter, is signed to meet Jimmy Bivins of Cleveland in Washington Aug. 2.

2. Gus Lesnevich, world's light heavyweight champion who is one of the "big three" in the heavy picture that includes Charles and Jersey Joe Walcott, expressed delight over the prospect of a September bout with Walcott.

3. Walcott said he didn't think much of a proposed tournament to decide Louis' successor. He figured his two bouts with the Brown Bomber earned him a sort of "crown prince" role and that he should fight either Charles or Lesnevich, not both, for the title.

4. Jack Solomons, leading British promoter, counted himself in on the deal and announced he plans to have a part in the series to determine the new champion.

Lesnevich arrived in England yesterday for the July 26 defence of his light heavy title against England's Freddie Mills. He said he thought a fight with Walcott would be "any boxer's dream."

Solomons said he wanted to match Bruce Woodcock, British Empire heavyweight champion, against Lee Savold, Tami Mauriello or Toronto's Vern Escoe next September, with the winner taking on the Lesnevich - Mills victory.

"The Americans have had the deciders in their country long enough," he said. "I'm out to beat them at their own enterprising game."

Montreal Begins To Pile up Lead In International

(By The Associated Press)

Montreal Royals are beginning to pile up a commanding lead in the International League's pennant scramble.

Manager Clay Hopper's hustling crew opened a 5 1-2-game lead over the runner-up Newark Bears last night by taking both ends of a twin bill from Syracuse Chiefs 6-5 and 10-6.

In the opener, the Royals spotted the Chiefs three runs in the first inning and then came back with one in their half and five more in the second to take a lead that they never relinquished.

The Royals piled up a 7-0 lead in the first five innings of the nightca pbehind Don Newcombe. Clyde King relieved Newcombe with one down in the eighth and held Syracuse hitless the rest of the way Newcombe. Newcombe, Al Gionfriddo and lJmmy Bloodworh led the Royals 13-hit attack by clouting homers.

The double defeats dropped the Chiefs from third to fifth place. The rained-out Bisons moved into third and Rochester Red Wings hopped from sixth to fourt hby taking a twin bill from Jersey City Giants 4-3 and 10-5.

Red Wing Rookie Frank Gravino homered in each game to boost his output for the year to 15.

As a result of their double setbacks, the Giants fell from fifth to sixth place, a game in front of Toronto Maple Leafs who turned back the last-place Baltimore Orioles 4-1 and 5-2.

Lou Possehl halted the Orioles on three hits in the first encounter and Jock Thompson checked the hapless Orioles on nine blows in the finale.

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

Sports fans in the city and district should have their fill of the old ball game when Friday morning rolls around because there are five, count em gents, five, ball games lined up for the holiday. And one game is scheduled for tonight Tonight, the Belleville Merchants take on Napanee in a Belleville Baseball League game at the Fair Grounds. The game will be played under the lights.

• • •

Napanee will be aiming for its sixth straight triumph tonight in an effort to remain atop the league standings. The Merchants on the other hand, will be out to avenge the defeat which the Gibbardville gang hung on them earlier in the month and would like nothing better than to be the first team to halt the high flying crew.

• • •

McTaggart, ace right hander of the Napanee squad, will likely get the starting assignment. McTaggart, who worked something like sixteen games last season, pitched a nine inning thriller in Oshawa recently for the Kingston Locos of COBL. He went well throughout the game but lost in the ninth inning as the Motor City crew pushed over 3 runs.

• • •

Softball addicts have three games to choose from on the holiday. In the afternoon, Bourgeau's Garage, last year's Commercial Softball champs, tangle with Toronto Commercial champs at the Fair Grounds. Bourgeau's came with a rush last year to nose out the Quinte Dry Beverage squad for the Wishing Well Trophy. Currently they have won two and lost one. Their only defeat was at the hands of the Houston Knotholers, who are leading the league at this point with four victories and no defeats. A handsome mantel model radio will be drawn for as the gate prize.

• • •

There will be only game of a scheduled double header at the Alemite field in the evening. The Quinte Dry Beverages will not see action against Corbys. Houston, league leaders to date, meet the American Optical nine in the nightcap under the lights. Both games should be over by 9.30 p.m.

• • •

Baseball fans are to be treated to a double header in the evening, as the Batawa Shoemen tangle with the Oshawa Merchants. Second place in the COBL race is at stake with the Shoemen leading the Merchants at present by one game. A double win by the Shoe crew will land them right alongside the Peterborough Petes whereas a twin loss will dump unceremoniously into the darkness of third place barely out of the clutch of the up and coming Locos from Kingston.

• • •

It was only by the grace of the Petes that the Batawas are at present holding down second place alone. While the men of Eaton were dropping a decision to the Locos here last Saturday the Petes were dumping the Oshawas 12-4 in the Motor City. The Merchants can hardly be expected to let a chance like this spoil their quest for second place and they will undoubtedly be after the two wins. It should prove to be interesting ball. First game gets away at 6.30 while the second tilt will commence after a twenty minute breather between games.

Bob Bunton, ace righthander of the Kiwanis Juniors has been advised by his doctor not to pitch for at least a month. The wing has been troubling Bob of late and a recent examination showed that two of the muscles have knotted leaving him powerless to throw that high hard one.

Bob, who has borne the brunt of the hurling chore for the Juniors for the past two years has pitched only one game for them this year. He was loaned to the Northern Electric squad of the Belleville Baseball League and pitched two games for them, one of them an eleven inning 5-5 duel with Picton's Frankie Dyer.

In his second start he fell down badly and was forced to quit the mound after a few innings. The Kiwanis kids waist deep in pitchers this year will manage without him for a while but come playoff time his services will be in demand. The Juniors have Art Wright, Don Semark, and Joe Nolan to throw at the opposition until Bunton returns.

Those damp gentlemen who lay the coin on the line, rod and reel, will be out tomorrow for the payoff as the bass season officially opens. But unless you own a power boat, chances are that the practice which you have had with the rake will not be sufficient to ward off a crop of blisters. The best way to avoid the puffed hand is to take the young man of the house along and ask him to imitate an outboard motor. Or better still, stay home and go to the ball game.

The poem, printed yesterday and credited or discredited, as you will, to one Quipley Q. Quidmyster, has drawn a heated reply from a lady who bills herself, Jessie Jawbreaker, Miss Jawbreaker, we assume that she is single, has enclosed a poem with the request that we print it. with the request that we print it.

In the accompanying letter she says, in part: "Who is this guy Quipley Q. Quidmyster? And is he ashamed of his middle name? I think that he is operating under a synonym."

Miss Jawbreaker's venture into the world of poetry??? is as follows:

Rowing Assoc. Asked to Re-Open Dubois Question

(By The Canadian Press)

The Canadian Association of amateur oarsmen will be asked to reopen the question of an Olympic singles representative for Canada, the executive of the Ottawa Rowing Club decided Tuesday night. Secretary Gordon Smith was instructed to wire the club's decision to J. L. Murray, secretary of the C.A.A.O.

The singles in the Olympic trials at St. Catharines last Saturday was won by Winnipeg's Theo Dubois, but he was not named to the Olympic squad after it was reported the Olympic Rowing Selection Committee found his winning time not up to standard. Meanwhile, the sculler's mother, Mrs. Alice Dubois suggested Theo row for his native Belgium at the Olympics and said she would pay the expenses.

At Toronto, the Ontario Lacrosse Association decided that three players who recently returned to Ontario from Quebec will be eligible to play in Ontario. The players are Jack Porter and Nick Powliss of Ohsweken, near Brantford, and Vince Ready. The Association executive also upheld a ruling that Jack Dorney, a senior player, must play for Weston.

The Quebec Boxing Commission announced Tuesday the Fernando Gagnon-Jean Richard featherweight title bout scheduled for Montreal next Tuesday would not have the official sanction of the Canadian Boxing Federation. The fight would not be sanctioned on grounds that the Montreal challenger is not listed as No. 1 contender. Gene Letourneau, technical adviser to the Federation ,said Spider Gene Letourneau, technical adviser to the Federation, said Spider Armstrong ranked first, followed by Ted Lindsay and Ted Swain.

Two Montreal Soccer clubs are practising for a clash Thursday to determine which will meet the winner of the Ontario Provincial finals in Dominion Cup playoffs.

Carsteel's 5-3 victory over Stelco Saturday gave them a two-point edge in the second section of the Quebec Province finals. Date of the game between Quebec and Ontario winners has not yet been set.

Practising what they preach, Ontario Sports writers took to the links Tuesday at the Hamilton Golf and Country Club at Ancaster. Al Proud of the Guelph Mercury took low gross honors with 82. Ivan Miller of the Hamilton Spectator turned in low net score of 71, while Jim McKay of the Woodstock Sentinel-Review came second with 72.

The pace-setting Owen Sound Crescents stretched their lead to five points at their home rink Monday night with a 14-6 Ontario Lacrosse Association Senior Victory over Mimico Mounties. Tommy Skordoff was the higher scorer with four goals and an assist for the winners, while six men shared the Mimico goals.

At Dartmouth, N.S., Eddie Crowell of Halifax's Ashburn Club took a one-stroke lead in the second round of the Nova Scotia amateur Golf Championship Tournament Tuesday, replacing stablemate A. W. (Pud) Carter as the pacesetter. He carded a seven-over-par 75 for a 36-hole total of 153.

Telephone Team Cops First Win Of the Season

In a Commercial Softball League double header at the Alemite Field Tuesday night the Bell Telephone copped their first win of the season by downing the Belleview Glass 5-2, while Moose Lodge upset Bourgeau's Garage 4-2 under the lights.

A home run by Miller in the top of the first gave the Phones their first counter and they added four more in the next four innings without a reply from the staggered Glass. A single, double and a base on balls counted one for the Phones in the second frame and they added another in the third as Reid blasted a homer to deep right field.

The Bell boys counted their last two runs in the fifth on Reid's second homer of the game, two singles, a walk and an error.

The Glass counted two runs in the bottom of the fifth as Coates walked and scored as Meens drove a four bagger to left field. Carr connected for a triple but was held at third and did not score.

Empy, starting hurler for the Glass, went five innings striking out two, walking five and giving up nine hits for five runs. He was relieved by Barnhart in the sixth who struck out none, walked none, and gave up two hits for no runs for the remainder of the game.

Reid went the route for the winners, striking out six, walking three, and allowing three hits for two runs over the seven-inning route.

Moose Scores Upset

In the night game the Moose Lodge upset the favored Bourgeau Garage nine 4-2. Garages scored their two runs in the first two frames and threatened to run off with the verdict, but the Lodge lads tightened down to squeeze out a win.

Bourgeaus scored once in the first as Callaghan, who reached first via an error, was doubled home by Burley. McGuire's home run in the second frame accounted for the other Garage tally.

The Moose broke into the scoring column in the third getting two runs on a walk and a homer. They were held scoreless until the sixth when they counted two more on a single, and an error that went for four bases. Pidgeon led off the sixth with a single and Carson then smacked a long hard one into deep right field that was bobbled by the fielder. Carson romped all the way home on the error.

W. Fitzgibbon, hurling in a losing cause for the Garage, struck out one, walked two, and gave up six hits for four runs. Galpin went the route for the Moose, striking out three, walking one, and giving up eight hits for two runs.

ROYALTY VISITS LONDON HOUSING PROJECT

Princess Elizabeth and her husband the Duke of Edinburgh, are shown walking through the Cherry Orchard housing estate in Greenwich, South London, as eager crowds, wanting a glimpse of the Princess, are held back by London police. In a short ceremony after their visit to the estate, the Duke received the freedom of the borough. Columnist Noel Whitcomb of the London Daily Mirror stated this week that he understood Princess Elizabeth was preparing to have her baby, expected later this year, without an anaesthetic. Childbirth with or without an anaesthetic ic a matter of controversy in Britain at the moment.

AT THE CAPITOL — Eddie Dean and Chief Thundercloud, known to the radio listeners for his performances as Tonto, chief aid to the Lone Ranger, are seen in a gallop for life scene in PRC's "Romance of the West," opening Thursday at the Capitol Theatre. On the same program in color "Red Stallion." Special matinee Thursday at 2.15.

AT THE BELLE — Tense moment from Paramount's "Caged Fury," coming today to the Belle Theatre. Lovely Sheila Ryan looks on as Richard Denning and Buster Crabbe come to grips over her in this scene from the action-packed thriller about love and revenge under the big top. The Louis-Walcott championship fight pictures are an added attraction.

AT THE McCARTHY — Barry Fitzgerald as Detective Muldoon, of the New York Police Department is an interested spectator while Dorothy Hart comforts her semi-conscious fiance, Howard Duff, who is suspected in the complicity of a crime Muldoon is investigating. This is a scene from the late Mark Hellinger's production "The Naked City," starting today at the McCarthy Theatre.

London Letter

By JAMES McCOOK
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, June 30 — (CP)—The historic City of London will have one member instead of two in the next Parliament and be merged with other districts, despite Conservative protests against the Labor government's "lack of imagination."

Home Secretary Chuter Ede, piloting through Commons a bill for the redistribution of seats, said that although he accepts the historic importance of the City of London he cannot forget it has fewer than 5,000 resident electors while the average constituency has 55,000.

Instead of retaining a proud individual status which allowed its two members to sit on the government front bench wearing silk hats on special occasions, the City of London will be merged with Finsbury, Shoreditch and the inner and middle Temple areas when redistribution is effective.

Fog Grows Thicker

Beverley Baxter, Canadian-born Conservative member for Wood Green, said Labor arguments in favor of the revised constituency reveal "this creeping common sense, this grey averageness which the party opposite is creating . . . this grey fog grows thicker and thicker under the manipulation of the party opposite."

Long ago the City of London, with its guilds and city companies, had given refuge to members of the Commons who had the courage to vote against a king.

Politics

"I look upon the progress of politics in this country and I think there may come a time when some of us will also have to go down the river and hide from the wrath to come . . .

"There is the real spirit of the Socialist party, to destroy anything which has roots in the past, to build a world upon our little second-rate selves. That is what the Socialist party is doing in this country."

Ede said the government recognizes London's place in history but each generation of parliamentarians has to deal with the facts of its time.

Looks for Increase

"I hope that the time will come when there will be a substantial increase in the residential vote in the City of London," he added.

The City of London constituency covers the old city where the Romans built their first settlement about 2,000 years ago. Beyond this sprawls the vast development of streets and suburbs that comprises the more modern city where other constituencies elect their representatives to parliament.

Three Cabinet Ministers Speak To U.S. Editors

Ottawa, June 30 — (CP) — In trade, defence and friendship, the affairs of Canada and the United States are interwoven in a pattern of mutual support, three cabinet ministers Tuesday told a group of United States editors.

Guests of a two-day conference of business paper editors, representing some 35 New York and Chicago publications, were External Affairs Minister St. Laurent, Defence Minister Claxton and Resources Minister MacKinnon.

Mr. MacKinnon said it was not enough for Canada just to consolidate wartime trade gains, neither was it to be accepted that the Dominion was "to become a self-sufficient nation."

"What Canada is trying to achieve," said the minister, "is a greater measure of stability in our domestic economy and restoration of a multilateral trading system on a sound basis."

Defence Minister Claxton proposed the erection of a memorial at Ogdensburg, N.Y., "where the pattern for Second World War operations" was started.

He said the Ogdensburg declaration between Prime Minister Mackenzie King and the late President Roosevelt formed the pattern of joint action which brought ultimate victory.

Project Successful

The defence project at Churchill, Man., was proving eminently successful, said the minister, and was a "grand demonstration of the way in which Americans and Canadians could work together."

Joint defence between Canada and the United States proved that no other two countries in the world have such capacity to work together. He traced its history to the Ogdensburg agreement.

External Affairs Minister St. Laurent emphasized the importance of North American solidarity and said the United Nations Security Council was not sufficient.

"Though the Security Council still bears the name 'Security Council,' many of us feel it is not in the position to give the degree of security we all desire."

It was therefore vital that blocks of nations form mutual security arrangements. The close Canadian - American ties were "the only reasonable things to do."

RAPID RECOVERY

London — (CP) — Although Britain's merchant navy lost more than 11,000,000 tons of shipping during the Second World War, it is now only 1,000,000 tons short of pre-war strength. Just before the war Britain had a gross of more than 16,000,000 tons.

RATIONING EFFECTIVE

Stockholm — (CP) — Rationing of electricity in Sweden recently was abolished after seven months. Consumers showed such loyalty and eagerness to co-operate that more current was saved than requested, resulting in additional power for productive purposes.

DEER ROOM-MATE

Ottawa, Ont. — (CP) — For keeping a fawn in his bedroom, an Ottawa man was fined $25 and costs. This expense was in additions to the cost of providing "two quarts of milk and large quantities of baby food" daily.

Yu'An Hee See Laughs

By Sax Rohmer

Eileen experienced a sense of bewilderment. It was amazing, in fact, terrifying . . . Opening as it did out of that tawdry little shop—what did it mean? What could it mean? She looked around that Aladdin's Cave, and slowly the realization came t oher that only a Rockefeller could have bid for the contents . . .

Dawson Haig pulled up before the shop of Mohammed.

Further consideration had convinced him that his earlier fears for Eileen were groundless. His own life hung upon a thread. This is recognized. And he had scrupulously avoided overhanging windows and watched warily any who walked too closely behind him. But he had no intentions of leaving her alone in the company of Dr. Oestler.

He entered the shop, and looked about him. Place was empty. Haig clapped his hands—and a moment later the aged proprietor appeared, bowing low.

"What can I do for you, my gentleman?" he creaked.

"I came to join my friends, who arrived here just ahead of me," Haig replied.

"Ah!" Mohammed nodded. "Yes yes. Wait one moment. I will tell them. Wait but one moment." . . .

The door of the treasure house was opened, and he had a glimpse of a long, low room lined with shelves and cases. The sound of Mohammed's shuffling slippers grew faint—died away.

A blank wall faced the shop, and there were no passers-by. It was a queer backwater, and Haig wondered what had induced Eileen to visit it. He stared again through the open door. Then he moved forward and looked along the room.

Like a flash of summer lightning revelation came . . . This was a branch—or perhaps the parent establishment—of Joe Lung's Limehouse emporium!

Came the sound of shuffling footsteps returning. The aged Arab reappeared.

"My gentleman," he said, "I am sorry to keep you waiting, but your friends have gone."

"Gone!"

"By the other door."

Haig stared through dimness, seeking for the expression in those sunken eyes. "They didn't stay long!" he snapped.

The old Arab spread his palms eloquently. "They buy nothing, sir."

"Show me the way to this other door," Dawson Haig directed. "I shall overtake them more quickly by going out that way."

Mohammed bowed low. "Please follow," he said . . .

Haig entered, his hand upon the butt of an automatic. Yes, the very arrangement of the place told him now that this was the receiving house. Jo Lung's was merely a salesroom. But — Eileen. . . .

"This way, my gentlemen." The Arab, mounting three steps, indicated a further room beyond.

Dawson Haig followed. A second treasure cave stretched before him, this devoted entirey to carpets, rugs, tapestries, and silks. There was a sort of narrow passage connecting this room with another beyond. Through this corridor the aged Arab was hurrying. Haig increased his stride, entered the passage almost on the heels of Mohammed—and . . .

"My God!"

Too late, he knew . . . to what "other door" this old fiend had led him . . . The Bath of Feathers!

Dr. Heatherley and the two women passengers from the Wallaroo sat at a table outside the Eastern Exchange, long drinks with straws before them. Presently Dr. Heatherley glanced at his watch.

"Our friends are late," said he. "They must have found the Mystery Shop."

"What's the Mystery Shop?" one of the women asked.

Dr. Heatherley smiled. "All sorts of stories are told about Port Said," he replied, "most of them frankly lies. There's supposed to be a store here compared with which Simon Arzt is merely Woolworth's. I've never found anybody to lead me to the Mystery Shop, but I believe there is such a shop. Dr. Oestler may know where it is."

Even as he spoke, Dr. Oestler, smiling broadly, bore down upon them.

"Well, my friends," he said, taking a chair, removing his hat and mopping his forehead. "I have walked quickly, ha—hoping to overtake our Miss Kearney."

"Hoping to overtake her?" said the chip's doctor blankly. "But she was with you! You said that you and Miss Kearney were going to make some purchases elsewhere."

Dr. Oestler nodded his head vigorously. "It is so," he agreed, "it is so. Yes. We went, as I said. This shop is not a hundred yards from here. It belongs to a Greek—ha?—who has most excellent perfumes. Miss Kearney also knows it well. I excuse myself—ha?—while she is making her selection, for I see it will occupy her for at least a quarter of an hour—yes?" He shrugged deprecatingly. "I call at another establishment that I know of and purchase—ha—these five hundred cigarettes, look—then hurry back. Miss Kearney has already left the shop of Ostopolos, and so I continue to hurry—and here, yes, you see me."

The ship's doctor stood up. "It sounds very odd to me," he said. "Port Said's healthy enough in these days, but not for a woman walking about alone. I'll walk back with you." Dr. Heatherley, turned to the two women. "Please excuse us for five minutes," he added. "Don't start back until we rejoin you, or you get lost, too."

With Dr. Oestler he set out. Before a small shop not more than two hundred yards from the Eastern Exchange, they paused. A sauve gentleman who wore a black-pointed beard smiled agreeably.

"I left a lady about twenty minutes ago," said Dr. Oestler, "You remember?"

"When I returned, she had gone—you remember?"

The surgeon was watching the speaker. "Did she say where she was going?" he demanded.

"No, sir. She purchased a small sample of jasmine, such as this—" he indicated one—"a larger size of attar of rose, of this kind—" he held up a long cut-glass phial shaped like a square ruler—"and three small tubes of other essences—I forget which she selected."

The surgeon stared at Dr. Oestler, and then, without a word, walked out of the shop. "I suppose there's nothing to worry about," he admitted, "so, as you seem to know and A 1 tobacco merchant in this town, doctor, I like a really genuine Egyptian cigarette myself, and my stock is low. Do you mind taking me along!"

"But not at all!" Dr. Oestler replied genially.

When they reached the store, the Egyptian owner immediately recognized Dr. Oestler. The ship's surgeon, baffled, bought fifty cigarettes and departed. But when they returned again to the Eastern Exchange, Eileen Kearney had not returned.

At the end of a very uneasy half-hour, Dr. Heatherley stood up suddenly. "Let us see the ladies into a taxi for the ship," he suggested. "And then, perhaps, Dr. Oestler, you would step along to the American Consulate with me?"

As Yu'an Hee See sat at a large writing table, he pressed a bell. Almost before his tapering finger was raised from the button, a Chinese servant entered, and dropped on one knee, extending a silver tray upon which a paper lay. Taper fingers took the document, the servant bowed until his yellow face nearly touched the blue carpet, stood up, and went out.

Yu'an Hee See read:

"No news of the Hangman. May take it for granted he is drowned.

"Len Chow has succeeded. The lady is on her way.

"Joseph, the new Armenian, did good work here.

"Mohammed reports Dawson Haig, chief inspector C.I.D., is dead.

"Joseph, recommended by Mohammed, joins up here in place of Fernand.

"R.M.S. Wallaroo in the Canal. British and American consuls Port Said very active.

"Position on Wallaroo strained in regard to doctor and madame, but legally secure.

"Len Chow due at Keneh tomorrow five o'clock. Franz Hartog reports from Cairo.

"Polodos arrived Stamboul tonight."

Yu'an Hee See removed his glasses. His oblique eyes became quite closed, and he remained motionless for several minutes, hissing softly. Then, again he pressed the bell. The Chinese servant came instant to his summons.

"Effendi Aswami Pasha."

The servant bowed low, and withdrew silently.

Port Said was seething with indignation. When towards dusk it became evident that Eileen Kearney had been abducted, for no other conclusion remained, both the American and the British consulates set to work in earnest.

The town was combed with a nicety calculated to discover a rat in a cornfield. But no trace could be found of the missing girl. Dr. Oestler's account of what had happened was simple enough. Miss Kearney had suggested walking along to the shop of the scent merchant; and he had accompanied her. The doctor's statement was confirmed both by the Greek scent merchnant and by the Egyptian tobacconist. Mr. Len Chow, it was learned from the Eastern Exchange, had caught the train to Cairo, only having had lunch in the hotel. Of Franz Hartog no trace could be found.

The news, of course, was known on board, and a state of consternation prevailed. Port Said was living up to its ancient reputation. Every woman passenger who was ashore hurried back to the ship, as though the place had been in a state of siege.

Captain Peterson paced his cabin, his tanned, lined face haggard with anxiety. The company's agent sat at the desk, Shale, the British Consul, standing beside him, and the American Consul stood by the door.

"It's all very well, Mr. Forman," said Shale, addressing his American confrere. "But what can I do?"

"What can you do, sir?" the other retorted. "A young American citizen — daughter of my friend Kearney in Colombo — is kidnapped in broad daylight when —she is in the company of a suspected person! What can you do!"

"Suspecter, yes," cried the other desperately. "But that's not proof!"

"What puzzles me," the captain interjected, trying to pour oil on troubled waters, "is the absence of Inspector Haig. If we had the authority of Scotland Yard behind us, we might be able to act. Besides, what evidence there is, he holds."

"It's little enough," said the British Consul—"unless he had added to it since this morning."

Mr. Forman's face was very stern. "In short, sir," he said, "you don't intend to take any steps about this gang of crooks you've got on board; although you know—whatver the evidence may be, and I say damn the evidence!—that they are certainly responsible?"

"But the inspector himself assured me that there as nothing to justify an arrest," said Captain Peterson.

"Another point: the attempt to murder Inspector Haig off here last night is good enough to show the type of desperados we're dealing with."
